SURVEY TRACES WAR'S PINCH ON NEUTRAL LANDS

Supply Sources and Trade Crippled.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The heavy burden imposed on many neutral countries by the direct and indirect effects of the war is described in a report of the German Institute for Business Research covering the first six weeks of the war.

The increase of prices means, for these countries which usually exchanged raw materials for finished products, a considerable decline in their international trading conditions, the report said.

In many cases the sudden rise in insurance and shipping rates caused by war risks has had the same effect, resulting in a substantial rise of import prices. Lack of tonnage or nearness of naval war zones made it impossible for some countries to maintain imports on the usual scale. Because of belligerent naval operations, deep sea fishing, in certain European countries, practically has come to an end.

Suffer from Devaluations.

The neutral countries whose currencies are linked to those of larger powers also will suffer from any devaluations of the British pound, the French franc, and the Swiss, Dutch, and Belgian currencies.

The countries suffer from interception of shipping by warships of the belligerents and seizure of articles—including foodstuffs—which are contraband by the warring powers. Because of efforts to conserve their own supplies, many normal suppliers of the neutral countries have withheld their shipments. This is particularly true in the case of coal and gasoline.

For these reasons, a number of difficulties arose in the first few weeks of the war which prompted the neutral governments to enforce drastic measures to insure the supply of the home market. Embargoes, maximum prices, seizure of raw materials and semi-finished goods, rationing of raw materials for industrial purposes, and ration cards are already in daily use in many neutral countries.

Fuel Is Rationed.

The rationing of fuel and gasoline appeared to be the most urgent necessity almost everywhere. In certain countries the use of private cars has ceased altogether.

Belgium and the Netherlands voluntarily restricted the use of gasoline. The Scandinavian and Baltic countries decreed restrictions of gasoline and fuel use because of inability to get the materials from Great Britain and America, their normal suppliers.

With regard to food supply, the position of the neutral countries depends on whether they produce a surplus or require subsidiary imports. Denmark, for instance, which normally must import two-fifths of its grain supply, has decreed an admixture for wheat flour. In Norway wheat flour can be obtained only with ration cards.

Reduce on Meat.

Meat and dairy products have been rationed directly or indirectly only in exceptional cases—notably Bulgaria and Greece.

Generally in the neutral countries the war has caused a growing shortage of supply and a consequent increase in the cost of living.

The following survey attempts to give an impression of the extent to which the neutral countries of Europe already have been compelled to introduce rationing measures.

BULGARIA.

Sept. 7—Two meatless days a week decreed.

Sept. 8—Gasoline rationed with admixture compulsory, use of private cars prohibited.

Sept. 11—Volume of newspapers reduced.

Sept. 13—Butchering of calves and lambs forbidden; registration of wholesale stocks of various fats and oils, sugar and groceries, textiles, and footwear ordered.

GREECE.

Sept. 3—Withholding of food stocks from sale made punishable by law.

Sept. 12—Four meatless days a week decreed; households forbidden to store more than a week's supply of foodstuffs, except wine, oil, olives, and butter.

Sept. 13—Shipping lines restricted because of coal shortage.

Sept. 15—Sale of flour by bakeries and mills to private customers pro-

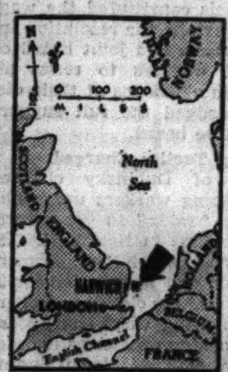
SHIP WITH 400 ABOARD BLOWN UP OFF BRITAIN

LondonBlamesNazis for Disaster.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19 [Sunday].—Carrying to death 140 or more of its passengers and crew the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar sank last night 20 miles off Harwich, England. The vessel was wrecked by two blasts—German mines, the British said.



Arrow points to area where liner sank.

About 260 survivors, including women and children, were brought ashore by trawlers, which raced to the scene. From these, many of them seriously injured, was pieced together the story of the disaster—the worst suffered by a merchant ship since the war began.

Mines damaged two other ships near the spot where the Simon Bolivar sank. Both made port. Their names and nationalities were not disclosed.

[A Latvian freighter also sank in the North Sea after striking a mine, according to a message from Brussels reported by the British broadcasting corporation as picked up by radio in New York. Some members of the crew were reported lost.]

British Accuse Germans.

The British admiralty's charge that Germans laid the mines which sank the Simon Bolivar was denied by authoritative sources in Berlin. The German officials declined to comment further.

No Americans were reported aboard the 8,309 ton vessel which was bound for the West Indies. The liner carried 400 passengers and members of the crew.

Survivors, wrapped in blankets and bandages, arrived in London on a special train. Suffering from shock, exposure or other injuries, they told stories of nerveracking struggles in the water following the explosion. The women arriving in London did their best to comb their bedraggled hair and smooth out their clothing. A few carried babies.

Master Killed on Bridge.

Steward J. H. Wristers declared the Simon Bolivar was shaken by a "terrific explosion."

"The master, Capt. H. Voorspuiy, was killed on the bridge," Wristers said. "It seemed as if the explosion was right under him. All oil pipes burst and people in the cabins were smothered."

The ship was listing sharply, he added, and some of the lifeboats could not be lowered properly.

The steward said a second explosion, apparently another mine, came within 15 minutes of the first.

"I saw about 80 people in the water and the sea was covered with oil," he related.

Among the injured survivors was a baby, 11 months old, and a little boy who called continuously: "Where is my daddy?"

Believes Torpedo Sank Ship.

L. H. James of British Guiana and several other survivors here expressed the opinion, tho not confirmed, that the Simon Bolivar instead of hitting a mine was torpedoed.

James, one of the third class passengers, said:

"I was in the cabin talking with friends shortly before midnight when there was a terrific explosion. I rushed up on deck looking for a life belt. There was a smell of gun powder and the ship was in pandemonium. Men and women screamed and cried hysterically.

"I pushed my way toward the bridge and saw two officers—I think one was the captain—sprawled on the deck, one with his face badly smashed.

"Toward the bow, members of the crew and passengers were lying on the deck. Some seemed to have their legs and arms broken. Some were jumping crazily into the water.

"After the second explosion the ship started to sink rapidly. A little

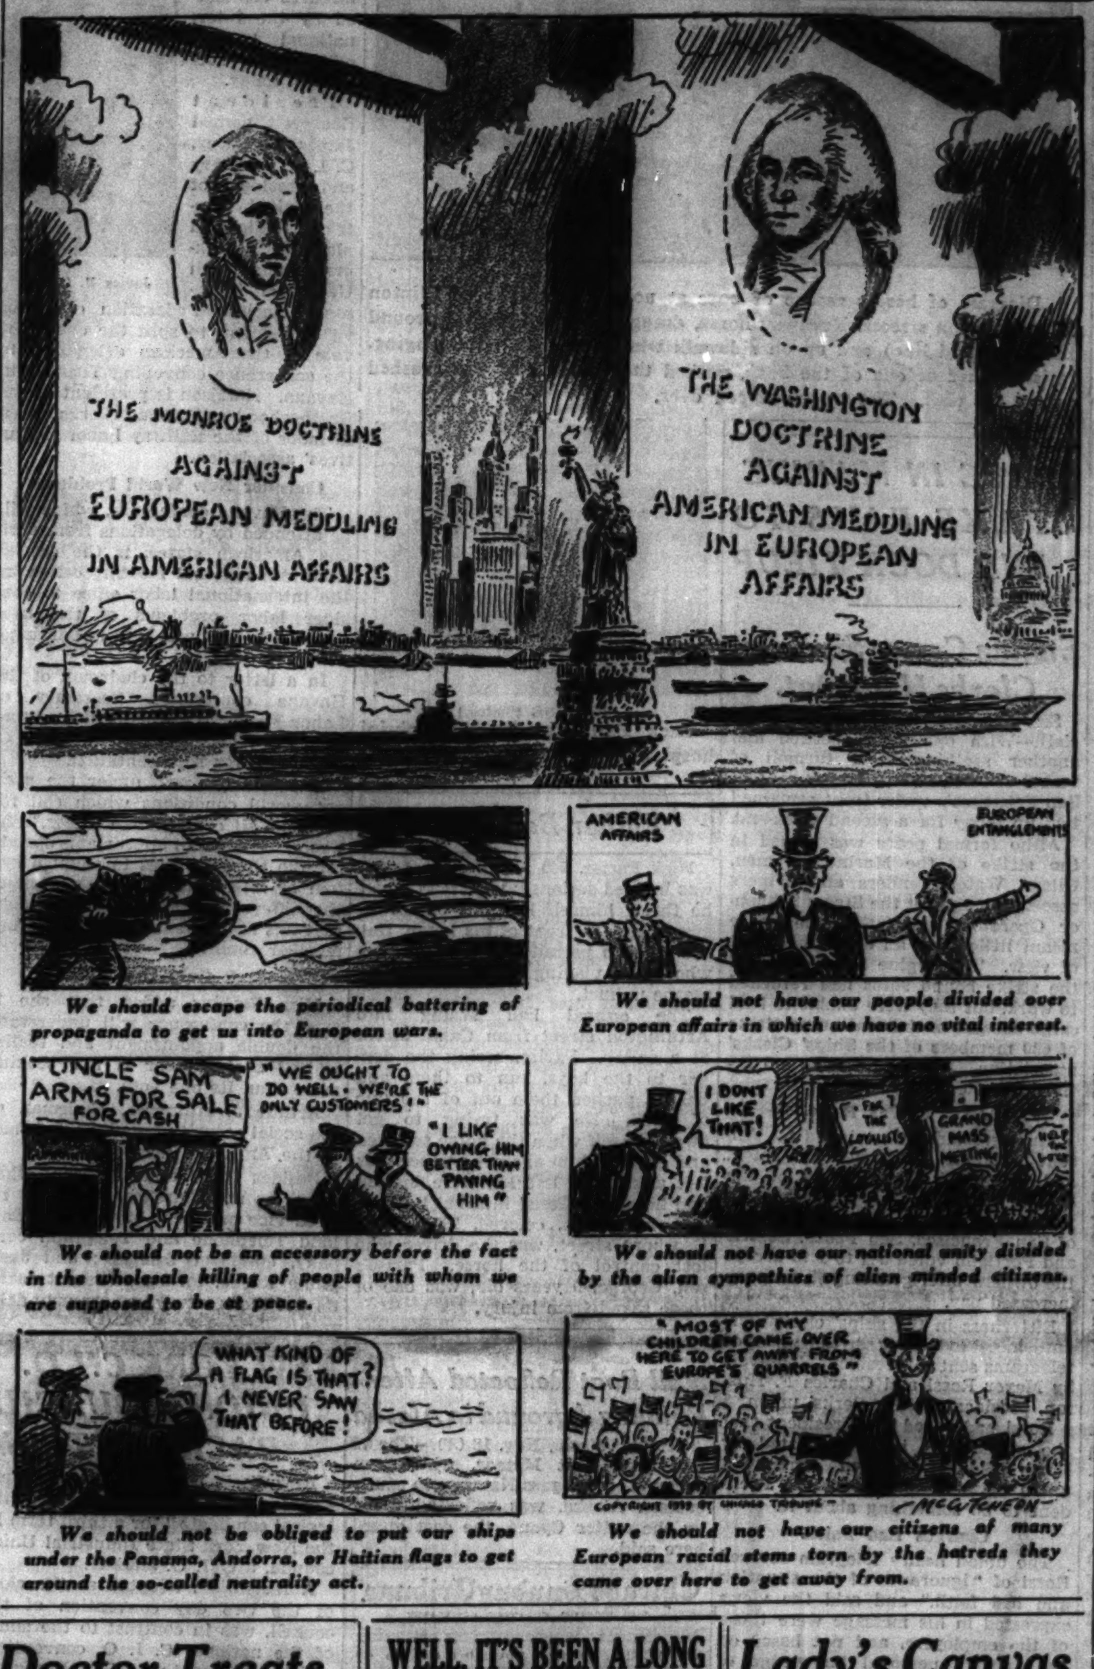
WHAT A WORLD OF TROUBLE THIS NATION WOULD BE SAVED if It Should Adopt the Washington Doctrine of Nonentanglements in Europe



We should escape the periodical battering of propaganda to get us into European wars.

We should not have our people divided over European affairs in which we have no vital interest.

We should not be an accessory before the fact in the wholesale killing of people with whom we are supposed to be at peace.

We should not have our national unity divided by the alien sympathies of alien minded citizens.

We should not be obliged to put our ships under the Panama, Andorra, or Haitian flags to get around the so-called neutrality act.

We should not have our citizens of many European racial stems torn by the hatreds they came over here to get away from.

Doctor Treats Killer Under Death Threat

A physician on the south side was forced under threat of death last night to give medical aid to the long haired colored bandit who shot and killed Vito Addante, a world war veteran, Friday night and in turn was shot by the latter's young son, Patsy, 13 years old.

The murderer was traced soon afterward to the neighborhood of 55th and State streets. A police search was being concentrated there early today.

Accompanied by another colored man, who brandished a knife with a five inch blade, the wounded slayer appeared at the office of Dr. F. W. Wand, colored, 5501 Prairie avenue. He demanded help.

Suspect Ruse; Flee.

Dr. Wand superficially dressed the killer's wounds—one in the left side, another in the right leg, and a third in the left thigh. Two of the bullets were still imbedded; they were not removed. While Dr. Wand was treating the wounds his chauffeur, Herman Finley, stepped into the room. The doctor motioned to him and he slipped out to call police. The two men, suspicious, fled without waiting for completion of the treatment.

Not long afterward police, in response to an anonymous call, picked up William Bragg, colored, 5738 Indiana avenue, driver of a jitney cab, who told of driving the slayer, whom he did not know, and a colored woman to Dr. Wand's office. He said he later dropped them off at 55th and State streets.

Picks Up Father's Gun.

Meanwhile, Police Commissioner Allman and others were praising the Addante boy—Pasquale, nicknamed Patsy—as a hero. Patsy and his widowed mother, Rose, appeared at the inquest yesterday into Addante's death. They told of his murder in their grocery at 369 East 54th street.

Addante fired one shot at the bandit, but was killed by the gunman's return fire. Patsy picked up his father's pistol and shot seven times at the killer.

WELL, IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME SINCE MAMMA WALKED DOWN AISLE

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 18 (AP).—Six eager, bright faced parents went down to defeat in a question contest against six junior high school pupils—equally as eager, but brighter.

The parents smiled knowingly as the youngsters floundered for the meaning of e pluribus unum, but the order was reversed when this one was fired at the parents:

Name the musical compositions played as a bride marches down an aisle and when she leaves.

"The Wedding March," one mother guessed. Other parents tried, but also failed.

The pupils—who scored 1,845 points to 1,788—looked on indulgently as the correct answer was announced: "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and wedding music from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

THINKS A CHANGE IN HITLER'S DIET WILL CALM HIM

STOKE, England, Nov. 18 [U. P.].—"If only Adolf Hitler changed his diet he would be a more reasonable man," Mrs. Eileen Murphy of the British Commercial Gas association said in a speech here.

"He has a passion for eggs and for vegetables cooked in fat and these two forms of food eaten to excess create a torpid liver. A man with a torpid liver is bad tempered, unreasonable, and difficult to handle. An ill-balanced diet produces an ill-balanced man.

"If Hitler had less eggs and butter and the German people had more, the world would be a more peaceful place."

Hog Lost 68 Days Goes on Milk Diet to Regain Weight

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 18 [Special].—A hog missing 68 days from the Richard Waddup farm, near here, was found today in a large drain tile, three-quarters of a mile from where it had entered. It had lost 80 pounds in weight. Placed on a milk diet, the animal is recovering.

Lady's Canvas Proves Shroud to Henry's Art

This problem in artistic appreciation confronted the residents of Oak Park yesterday: Is Henry Hartman's sign on the south wall of a building at 140-44 South Oak Park avenue a perfect creation [as Henry insists] or is it [as others claim] a hideous monstrosity?

Henry is a sign painter of some 25 years' experience in the community. A few weeks ago, four occupants of stores in the South Oak Park avenue building—a hand laundry, a beauty shop, a tea room, and a chop suey parlor—hired him to devise a sign advertising their respective businesses.

Love's Labor Is Lost.

For many days Henry labored. Last Friday the sign, measuring 9 by 12 feet, was completed and affixed to the wall. Henry surveyed it proudly.

The whole sign was bordered with a wide strip of black. The names of each business establishment, printed in shining ebony, were in squares marked off with lines of light brown, crested with thinner strips of white. And the entire arrangement was set against a background of gleaming lemon-yellow.

No sooner had the sign been put up than critics arose. Most vehement was Dr. Annie E. Blount, a physician and former suffragist, who lives at No. 146, next door to No. 144—and onto whose front yard the huge sign faces.

Dr. Blount objected to the color scheme. She said it was hideous.

It's Curtains for Henry.

So, with the aid of a few others who felt as she did, Dr. Blount strung up a canvas sheet on several trees in her yard. The trees are in front of the sign. Thus Henry's handiwork, except for narrow strips at the top and one side, is shut off from public view.

Henry was indignant.

"Why, what does she mean—hideous?" he cried. "Why, that's a perfectly presentable sign; anybody'll tell you! She can't do this to me!"

But Dr. Blount had done it to Henry.

Wife a Nagger 27 Years, Says Banker in Suit

Socrates, the philosopher, had a wife named Xanthippe, whose scolding has reverberated down the centuries. But, to come down to cases, Harold Eckhart, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, informed the world yesterday that he has a wife, too.

Mr. Eckhart eulogized her in reverse in a 40-page crossbill for divorce and answer to her bill for separate maintenance. His bill, filed in Circuit court by the law firm of Alden, Latham & De Young, denied her allegation that he had deserted her. The bill presented Eckhart's argument that he was entitled to a divorce on the ground of "constructive" desertion.

Married in 1912.

The banker and his wife, Ruby G. Eckhart, were married July 10, 1912, at Madison, Wis. Eckhart admits that he left their home at 1025 Pine street, Winnetka, on June 28, 1938, removing to the Homestead hotel in Evanston, but denies that he took this step without provocation.

"By her own conduct toward him over a period of years," the bill states, "she made his life wretched and unbearable by repeated and continual fault-finding, complaining, nagging, and by cruel and inhuman treatment."

The next 39 pages sketch the nature of this treatment, which, Eckhart asserts, made it impossible for him to perform his duties at the bank with his customary efficiency.

Held Him Up to Ridicule.

His wife's whole attitude, the bill states, was to discourage, belittle, and ridicule him; there was no joint social life; she refused to associate with his friends and business associates; not once in the 21 years since they moved to Chicago has he been able to have a business associate at home for so much as a single meal.

Eckhart said that after coming to Chicago he decided to finish his law studies. He studied at home, and eventually took the bar examination, but his wife nagged at him for his exertions.

Without assistance or encouragement from his wife, he says, he designed and built the Winnetka home into which they moved in 1922. His wife, he adds, found nothing but fault with the house, and had no appreciation of his efforts during the next 10 years to improve the grounds.

After their third child was born in 1929, Eckhart adds, he thought the family had outgrown the home and suggested it be enlarged. Mrs. Eckhart, however, would not coöperate.

Buys a New Home.

So Mr. Eckhart bought a new house, but his wife, he states, was even less pleased by that, registering her opposition by throwing a pot of coffee at him in the spring of 1933, after they had moved in. She then urged that they remodel the old house and move back, and Eckhart agreed on condition that she cease her fault-finding.

Eckhart, the bill says, spent $10,000 fixing up the old house, and lost $7,000 in the sale of the second house. To please his wife he had moved all the shrubbery and perennials from the old home to the new. Then he had to move them all back again.

Eckhart says he started to play golf in 1934, but his wife objected every time he got out his clubs. Once, she told him, she had read of a golfer being struck by lightning and hoped it would happen to him.

Not until 10 years ago, he states, did he start to smoke—and then, never in the house—but his wife nevertheless objected. She refused to let him buy a new car in 1926, altho his Maxwell was then seven years old.

There are three children, Alan Dale Eckhart, 21 years old, a student at St. John's college, Annapolis, Md.; Edith Robin Eckhart, 17, and Gerald Geisse Eckhart, 10. The younger children live with their mother.

The Corpse That Whistled

Alone on the bleak shore, he was about to chop some wood for a fire. As he stood there, his ears were accosted by a muffled whistle. He sidestepped like a farm boy who had trodden on a snake. For the moaning whistle had plainly come from beneath the earth! Read "The Corpse That Whistled," thrilling tale of the far north, by Arthur Stringer, in the fiction section of today's Tribune.

C.I.O. GRABS KEY JOBS IN CHICAGO RELIEF AGENCY

OfficialsTellDanger in Union's Spread.

Executives in charge of relief distribution in Chicago expressed alarm yesterday at the growth of C. I. O. unionism in the Chicago Relief administration staff. The C. I. O. is rapidly taking over key positions in the relief organization, they declared. They gave names and titles to prove their assertions.

Those who discussed the subject said frankly that they were "afraid" to be quoted. They announced that the fear was not of physical harm. The political consequences which might follow criticism of the C. I. O. and which might be distasteful to Democratic party leaders, was what worried them, they added.

The union to which relief executives object is known as the State, County, and Municipal Workers of America, local 30. Altho the SCMWA as it is called, has refused to disclose its membership, it is estimated that it has gathered about one-sixth of the 2,300 CRA workers into its fold. Organizers say the unionization of these workers is progressing rapidly.

Drawn From Social Workers.

Approximately 1,600 of the CRA employés, which the SCMWA is trying to unionize, are professional social workers, or are under the supervision of such workers. The union is said to have enrolled most of its members from this professional social work group.

"There is no place in a relief organization for a C. I. O. union," one official stated. "We are not so constituted that we can bargain with such a group and their reputation is that of being trouble makers and of being in favor of unlimited relief."

Among the charges made against the C. I. O. union by relief executives interviewed yesterday are:

1. That the union collaborates closely with the Workers Alliance which purports to represent reliefers in a campaign to increase relief allotments and budgets.

2. That SCMWA members are occupying key positions in the relief administration, where they force newly hired professional social workers to join the union on the promise of better jobs and more pay.

3. That the new union organizers are bragging openly that their organization has slowed down the routine work in some district relief offices and has delayed for more than a month a special investigation of all Chicago relief clients.

Cite Power Wielded by C. I. O.

Altho neither the C. I. O. nor the Workers Alliance admits an affiliation, the two organizations have worked together in many instances.

As an example of the power wielded by the C. I. O. in relief distribution, authorities recall that C. I. O. strikers against the General Motors corporation early in 1937 forced the relief authorities in Flint, Mich., to support their strike by putting the strikers on the relief rolls. This action by the C. I. O. raised relief costs in Flint almost 1,000 per cent overnight.

The city administration of Detroit learned in 1938 that the C. I. O. had a stranglehold on the administration of relief there. By a unique agreement with the city relief organization the United Automobile Workers of America was allowed to investigate the needs of the families of about 9,000 strikers. Later Detroit police charged that regular relief workers who belonged to a C. I. O. union favored automobile plant strikers when giving out relief.

Why Fears Are Raised.

This coöperation between C. I. O. unions within and outside the CRA is one of the factors which relief authorities fear may occur here as a result of the growth of unionization among relief workers.

One relief official recalled that last year relief authorities in Jasper county, Ia., were threatened with mob action unless they gave relief to C. I. O. strikers who had closed the big Maytag Washing Machine company plant in Newton, Ia.

A few days after the strike began on May 9, 1938, about 200 strikers swarmed into the county courthouse at Newton and held members of the county board of supervisors prisoners for four hours until they promised to give subsistence aid to some of the strikers. Three hundred C. I. O. men on strike subsequently were placed on the relief rolls.

When the board rescinded the order nearly two months later, a committee of C. I. O. representatives appeared before them and virtually threatened it with a repetition of mob action. They warned that another group might visit the courthouse if the stoppage order were not withdrawn.

The supervisors were alarmed but refused to give in. However, when the National Guard took over the town three weeks later after a series of disorders, they were instructed by Gov. Nels G. Kraschel to set up machinery to give relief funds to whoever asked for it.

Increases Tax Burden.

The governor's summary action in overriding the will of the county authorities gave to the C. I. O. members relief money on which to continue their strike and imposed on the harassed county an additional heavy tax burden.

As a further indication of the C. I. O.'s philosophy of relief it was recalled yesterday that two years ago a C. I. O. organizer boasted publicly that WPA officials had come here from Washington to force special relief grants for men who were striking against the Republic Steel company. These Washington agents, attempting to aid the C. I. O. strikers, insisted that Leo M. Lyons, CRA head, give special consideration to the strikers.

Lyons could and did make a strong fight against these "suggestions" from Washington. At that time there were only a few C. I. O. people in his own organization.

Show Dual Positions.

The list below shows the persons elected as officers of the union local early this month, their positions in the union, and their work title in the relief administration. All except the typist and the property and insurance investigators are professional social workers. The list follows:

Helene Alinsky, president	Supv. caseworker
M. Levin, vice pres.	Prop. and ins. inves.
M. Cayton, corres. sec.	Supv. caseworker
G. Pikser, treas.	Supv. caseworker
L. Mulligan, rec. sec.	Typist
V. Runge, fin. sec.	Supv. caseworker
G. Tempkin, leg. com.	Asst. supv.
I. White, educ. com.	Supv. caseworker
A. Ginsburg, pub. com.	Sr. caseworker
C. Tennon, soc. com.	Jr. caseworker
A. Quadow, griev. com.	Prop. and ins. inv.
L. Epstein, member. com.	Sr. caseworker
Walter Blanks, trustee	Caseworker
Wm. Diffay, trustee	Sr. caseworker
Simon Rubin, trustee	Sr. caseworker

Relief authorities said that the positions of supervising caseworkers and superintendents and their assistants in charge of CRA offices are positions most sought after by the union. Assignments to these positions are made by the clique of professional social workers in charge of all social workers on the CRA.

Supervisors in Power.

"Supervising caseworkers, as their title indicates, have charge of the work of the great bulk of the social work staff that actually deals with reliefers," one official said.

"If the supervising caseworker is a member of the union it is easy to drop hints to newly hired social workers that the way to get along and be scheduled for promotion and more pay by the supervisor is to join the union. Superintendents of district offices and their assistants, of course, wield even more power in this respect."

Another official said that each member of the union was under order to call three nonunion members of the CRA staff each day in the union's campaign to increase its membership. The calls are said to be made on CRA telephones and time.

One explanation given for the relative scarcity of the relief clerical workers in the SCMWA is the $1 a month collected by the union as dues. The clerical staff is not as highly paid as the professional workers. The clerical staff also is said to know that 75 cents of the $1 dues goes on to the Washington offices of the union and only 25 cents of its remains here.

The boast that the union had been able to cause a slowdown of work in both the routine interviews with reliefers and a slow down in the city wide special investigation of reliefers was contained in the union's fly sheet of Nov. 13.

City Issues 540 Retail Liquor Licenses in Day

Louis Rixmann, city collector, reported yesterday that 540 retail liquor licenses were issued by his office during the day, bringing the total for the current six month period, which started Nov. 1, to 8,354. During the preceding six month period, 9,091 were issued.

END OF CHRYSLER DISPUTE WITH CIO IS BELIEVED NEAR

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP).—A wage issue tonight prevented an immediate agreement to settle the Chrysler labor dispute, but negotiations, adjourned until tomorrow, remained in the most hopeful state they have reached since the 44 day impasse began.

Federal Mediator James F. Dewey and officials of the corporation and C. I. O. United Automobile Workers halted conferences at 11 p. m., agreeing to meet again at 2 p. m. tomorrow. The night parley ended amid indications that peace was near, and that 100,000 idle men might soon return to work.

"Everything is settled except the wage issue," Dewey said. "The union made a proposition which was not acceptable to the corporation. The proposal was discussed at some length, but we did not reach any conclusion."

Some May Work Tomorrow.

Dewey, who did not make known details of this issue, said it would be discussed tomorrow. The fact that Sunday negotiations were scheduled was believed further evidence that terms of agreement were in sight.

Corporation sources said that in event of settlement by tomorrow some Chrysler workers would be called back to duty Monday and in increasing numbers in succeeding days. Operations would regain a normal stage by the end of the week.

Richard T. Frankensteen, C. I. O.-U. A. W. director for the Chrysler plants, announced after adjournment of the negotiations: "We made good progress tonight, and we look for further progress tomorrow."

Believe Production Issue Settled.

Previous to tonight's session, first after dinner parley in the six weeks of negotiations, Dewey had said a tentative understanding was reached on almost all matters except those involving money.

Dewey's reference to money matters was taken to mean a general pay increase, various wage adjustments, and vacations with pay demanded by the union. The tentative understanding thus would apply to arbitration of grievances and production control, basic issues in the long fight.

The union's rank and file, Frankensteen said, will vote whether to ratify a negotiators' settlement within 12 hours after it is reached.

Frankensteen proposed that Chrysler corporation give its idle employés an advance on future pay as a Thanksgiving present. He suggested a sum of $10 to $15, which could be deducted from wages later.

The corporation made no immediate comment on the proposal, but Herman L. Weckler, vice president in charge of operations, indicated informally that it might be difficult to arrange.

Labor Board Rules for C. I. O.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The National Labor Relations board certified the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers of America today as sole bargaining agent for the 15,000 employés in the seven plants of the Briggs Manufacturing company, which makes automobile bodies and now is shut down as a result of the Chrysler-C. I. O. dispute. Over the protests of the A. F. of L. United Automobile Workers of America, the board recognized the C. I. O. union's request to act on an employer-wide basis.

Company Vice President Helps Picket Own Plant

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 18 (AP).—Charles C. Gaubatz, vice president and part owner of a cleaning establishment, joined a picket line in front of the place today. Gaubatz is a member of the chauffeurs' union. He announced that the fact he has worked for the firm 30 years and owns stock in it wouldn't keep him from sanctioning the strike called to enforce wage demands. His brother, George, is manager of the shop.

PEACE IN MARINE STRIKE FAILS TO END DOCK TIEUP

Engine Crews Sign, but Clerks Hold Out.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 18 [Special].—With one strike settled and another seething in a turmoil of verbal conflict, almost 10 per cent of San Francisco's water front remained tied up today for a second week-end.

Altho formal peace was signed in the strike of the Marine Firemen, Oilers, Water Tenders and Wipers association against the Steam Schooner Operators association the peace meant little from an operating point of view. The engine room crews of the strike bound ships had returned to work, but they were unable to load cargo because of the continuing strike of 650 members of the Ships' Clerks' association. Thus practically no activity resulted.

Accept $5 Pay Raise.

The agreement was signed by Vincent J. Malone, secretary of the union, and Ralph W. Myers, head of the owners' association. According to union spokesmen, the engine crews of San Francisco, San Pedro, Seattle and Portland voted 3½ to 1 to accept the owners' offer granting $5 a month increased pay.

Bitterness in the ships' clerks' dispute increased today in the wake of telegrams sent to President Roosevelt by Mayor Rossi and Charles F. Huston, president of the clerks' union.

Rossi had wired the President that the strike had been instigated by Harry Bridges, alleged communist union agitator, and asked the President to do something about it.

Charges Bad Faith.

The union head's telegram accused Rossi of "ignorance of the situation and bad faith," and said the views expressed in his message were those of the employers, and not based on the mayor's personal knowledge of conditions.

No reply was received to either telegram. A dispatch from Hyde Park, N. Y., where the President was spending the week-end, indicated that Roosevelt was inclined to be cool about both messages because both had been given widespread publicity before they were received by the President.

There were no formal meetings between employers and union spokesmen today.

MORRISON, ILL., WOMAN DIES.

Father Badly Hurt

Nick Parise, 540 Arthington street, was injured seriously yesterday when he threw himself in front of a runaway horse in front of his home. But his heroism permitted six little boys who were playing in the street to escape unhurt.

The animal had swung into Arthington street from Canal street at a gallop. Parise, seeing the danger to the boys, ran to them and hastily pushed them out of the line of peril. He was trying to get away himself when the horse swerved and crushed him against a fence. His left ankle and left leg were broken and he also suffered internal hurts.

Henry Smith, colored, 2935 South Dearborn street, was the driver who lost control of the horse. Parise's son, George, 9 years old, was one of those saved from injury.

C. I. O. WINS VOICE IN INTERNATIONAL PARLEY ON LABOR

Roosevelt Splits Union Vote at Havana Conference.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 [Special].—The protracted efforts of the C. I. O. to obtain government recognition in the appointment of American labor delegates to conferences conducted by the international labor office finally succeeded today.

James B. Carey.

President Roosevelt named James B. Carey, C. I. O. secretary and president of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers, along with George M. Harrison, American Federation of Labor vice president, to split the one labor vote of the American delegation to the conference convening Tuesday in Havana. Harrison is president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and a member of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

Consider New World Problems.

The Havana conference, which will be attended by delegations from various American states, is the second American regional meeting called by the international labor office to consider labor problems of the new world. The first was held in Santiago, Chile, in 1936.

In a letter to the chairman of the Havana conference, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins explained that both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. had asked for representation.

"At this moment, under the present world conditions which call for unity of all constructive forces," she wrote, "it does not appear appropriate for the United States to adopt a system of alternating representation of the different organized labor groups that has been put into effect by other member countries."

Seek Only One Vote.

Miss Perkins added that she is sure the conference will understand the double appointment and realize United States labor is not seeking more than its one vote.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the social security board, is chairman of the American delegation.

Besides Carey and Harrison, other members are Clarence McDavitt, retired vice president of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, employer delegate; and Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, government delegate.

NEW YORK C.I.O. UNION COUNCIL BACKS 3D TERM

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—President Roosevelt was indorsed today as "the logical candidate" for a third term by the New York State Industrial Union council, a C. I. O. affiliate.

A resolution, adopted at the close of the two day convention of the council, was in contrast to the stand of the national C. I. O. convention, which last month at San Francisco took no action on the third term question.

Many of the 500 delegates, in heated debate, indicated their unwillingness to support the resolution until it had been determined whether this country is to remain out of the European war.

GARMENT UNIONS AT ODDS AFTER 25 YEARS' PEACE

Independents Charge C.I.O. Raiding.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 [Special].—Jurisdictional warfare broke out today between the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, an independent union of 250,000 members, and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which is affiliated with the C. I. O.

Sidney Hillman [upper] and David Dubinsky.

President David Dubinsky and the general executive board of the garment workers, which broke away from the A. F. of L. to help organize the C. I. O. but later became an independent union, announced the end of a 25 year friendship with the clothing workers' union. The latter, headed by Sidney Hillman, has more than 135,000 members.

Accused in Resolution.

After the quarterly meeting of the executive board a resolution was made public accusing the C. I. O. union with invasion of the independent union's jurisdiction in the bathrobe and other industries, "in flagrant and barefaced breach of trade union law and principles."

Charging this constituted the waging of open warfare, the resolution instructed all locals and joint board of the garment workers to resist all such acts with all means at their disposal, and pledged the full support of the executive board.

Raiding Tactics Charged.

Associates of Dubinsky charged that the clothing workers union had been making "raids" to get control of union members in New York City industries over which the garment workers union had jurisdiction for 25 years. They said the clothing workers union was offering wage concessions and lower working conditions in order to lure away employés from signing agreements with the garment workers union.

On the other hand, they went on, the garment workers union had refused numerous requests to enter the glove, laundry, and cleaning, and dyeing industries because it did not want to invade the jurisdiction of the clothing workers union and disturb previous friendly relations.

QUIZ LAUNCHED IN PLANE CRASH FATAL TO TWO

Investigators Study Story of Ship's Owner.

Inspectors for the civil aeronautics authority started an investigation late yesterday into a plane crash early in the day near Shabbona Grove, in southern De Kalb county. Two Wheaton college students were killed in the accident and the owner of the plane, who had no license to fly passengers, was injured.

The dead were John Drawz, 24 years old, of Duluth, Minn., son of a world war pilot, and Robert McKissick, 19, only son of a Denver, Colo., broker. The owner of the ship, an 11 year old American Eagle, is Russell Wright, 30, chief electrician at Wheaton college.

Investigators learned that the plane took off from the West Chicago airport in weather so bad that commercial planes all remained on the ground and that it was far off its course [Duluth was the destination] when it hit a tree, plunged into a cornfield and burned.

Survivor Tells of Crash.

The story told by Wright, who was thrown clear of the wreck and injured only slightly, was being given critical scrutiny by the inspectors. Wright said Drawz, who held a limited commercial pilot's license, was piloting the plane and that McKissick was in the front cockpit beside Drawz.

"I was in the rear seat," said Wright.

Wright said that all three in the plane realized they were lost in the mists and were turning to retrace their course when the crash occurred. Residents of Shabbona Grove previously had told of hearing the plane's motor as the ship circled, and of assuming that the flyers were seeking a place to land.

The plane had no compass. It had controls in both the front and rear cockpits. Investigators said that the pilot normally would operate the plane from the rear cockpit.

Seek to Learn Condition of Ship.

Wright's license forbade him to take up any one but an experienced pilot. It was admitted that Drawz's license authorized him to fly the ship. Inspectors were interested, they said, in finding out whether the plane, for which Wright is reported to have paid only $200, was in a safe condition.

It was learned that the ship had made a forced landing in a cornfield before the start of the trip where Wright was flying it from Lombard, where it was housed, to the West Chicago port. He continued his journey, however, and arrived safely in West Chicago.

Ole Larson, a farmer, witnessed the crash near Shabbona Grove. He said that Wright, apparently dazed, was about 15 feet from the wreck when he ran up. Larson said there was an explosion at the time of the crash. Wright helped him pull the bodies of the two students from the burning ship. One theory was that the explosion had killed them.

Drawz and McKissick were studying to enter the ministry, and Drawz was student pastor of the Glen Ellyn Baptist church. Their friends said they had planned to conduct a revival service in Duluth today.

INDIAN SUMMER'S COURSE IS RUN; THE RAINS COME

That warm, sunshiny weather of a belated Indian summer had run its course yesterday. A misty drizzle, expected to continue intermittently today, dampened the city, altho temperatures still remained in the middle 50's. C. A. Donnel, forecaster, had expected the pleasant weather to remain for a day or two more, but a mass of humid air swept upward from the gulf arrived sooner than expected.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Auguste-Albert Pinson, a retired banker, of Sartrouville, a Paris suburb, celebrated his 100th birthday by marrying his housekeeper, Mme. Carbonnier, 75 years old, it became known today.

The marriage was not to have taken place for some time yet—on account of the war—but Pinson became ill on his birthday and, believing the end near, called in the mayor, who performed the ceremony.

GUNMAN SLAIN IN A 15 MINUTE PISTOL BATTLE

Trapped by Sheriff with Only One Arm.

(Turn to today's Graphic Section for the illustrated story of the capture and execution of Charles Shader, murderer, who was the last man hanged in Illinois.)

BULLETIN.

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 19, Sunday (Special).—State Highway Policeman Cecil Brockmyer, shot last Wednesday by Willard Shockley, desperado who was killed in a gun battle with peace officers yesterday, died of his wounds at 3:30 a. m. today.

Shawneetown, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—A robber sought for shooting a state highway policeman was killed today in a fifteen minute gun battle with peace officers in the Shawneetown business district.

The gunman was Willard Shockley, 2? years old, an ex-convict. He was identified by Chief of Police Richard W. Nuse of Wood River as the companion of Mary Jane Watson, 17 years old, who was arrested at Alton on Nov. 8. She admitted holding up three restaurants with a young man "for the thrill of it." The girl is now in the Madison county jail at Edwardsville awaiting grand jury action. Her home is in East Alton, where Shockley lived recently for a short time.

Victim Near Death.

Shockley had been hunted since Wednesday night for the shooting of State Highway Policeman Cecil Brokmyer, whose home is in Shawneetown. The officer is near death in a Harrisburg hospital, a bullet having paralyzed him from the waist down.

The bandit was shot to death by a one-armed sheriff, Ed Hines, who handles a gun expertly in his left hand, and his deputy, Reuben Davis.

Shockley hitchhiked a ride to Shawneetown this morning in the motor car of Noah Kurstine, owner of a mine, who picked the fugitive up about nine miles west of here on Highway 13. Kurstine thought he recognized Shockley from newspaper photographs but said nothing and drove into town with him.

The miner parked in front of the courthouse and, after he and Shockley got out and parted amiably, went inside and notified Sheriff Hines. Shockley meantime entered a nearby clothing store.

Tries to Shoot Deputy.

While the gunman was buying a pair of overalls in the store, Deputy Davis came in the front door and ordered him to surrender. Shockley whirled and reached for his gun. Davis' first shot struck him in the abdomen.

Despite his wound, the robber ran out a back door, firing as he fled. None of his shots nor those of the deputy took effect. Shockley ran nearly two blocks, hid behind a small shed, and opened fire on Sheriff Hines and Davis as they approached.

They returned the fire so hotly he was forced out of his refuge. He dashed to a parked automobile and climbed in the back seat. When Hines called on him to give up, Shockley yelled: "Come and get me."

The sheriff ordered a large crowd of onlookers to stand back. Then he and Davis blasted away at the desperado. He fired back for a time but as the car became riddled with bullets his gun was finally silenced.

Several members of a posse, which had quickly formed, were armed with pistols and rifles. It is not known how many, if any, fired at Shockley.

Ira Adams, one of the group, suffered a superficial bullet wound on the left leg.

Davis' hat was shot from his head.

Shockley was dead when the officers reached the car. At least four bullets had found their mark, one passing thru his right temple.

The series of crimes that ended in Shockley's slaying began last Saturday night when he robbed a Centralia taxicab driver of his machine. On Wednesday he held up a filling station in Harrisburg and robbed the attendant of $20.

A few hours later the same night Patrolman Brokmyer stopped in front of a garage at Carrier Mills and asked the owner if he had seen a man of Shockley's description. Told that the desperado was in the garage then, Brokmyer walked inside to question him. Without hesitation Shockley shot him and fled in the stolen taxicab.

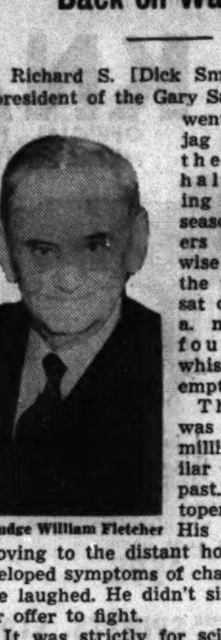
4 EYE OPENERS PROVE ACCURACY OF DRUNK METER

Gary Safety Expert Climbs Back on Wagon.

Richard S. [Dick Smith] Kaplan, president of the Gary Safety council, went on a lone jag yesterday in the Gary city hall. Disregarding the rule of seasoned drinkers that it's unwise to imbibe in the forenoon, he sat down at 9:45 a. m. and took four jolts of whisky on an empty stomach.



Judge William Fletcher

The reaction was as noted in millions of similar tests in the past. The lone toper got a jag. His eyes began roving to the distant horizon, he developed symptoms of chair-crawl, and he laughed. He didn't sing, however, or offer to fight.

It was strictly for science, and if Mr. Kaplan has any doubts, he can be officially informed that he was legally drunk.

Drunk! Says Meter.

A test on the drunk-o-meter, which is used to measure the alcoholic content of the blood of motorists suspected of driving while intoxicated, showed .164 of one per cent of alcohol in his blood stream. The limit, at which a drinker legally is adjudged drunken, is .15 of one per cent.

The experimental drinking bout was intended to remove doubts in the mind of Judge William Fletcher of the Gary Municipal court regarding the reliability of the drunk-o-meter. In the past Judge Fletcher has refused to accept its readings as evidence. He was present to observe Kaplan's reaction, as were Policeman Walter Le Hayne of the state force and Kaplan's daughter, June, 16 years old. After the second drink she was heard to plead:

"Father, dear father, come home with me now."

Breath Doesn't Count.

Kaplan took his four drinks without a chaser, then waited 20 minutes. In the interim, Carl Taylor of the police traffic bureau, rinsed his mouth with whisky, then blew into a balloon which captures the breath of the drinker for the drunk-o-meter. When the contents of the balloon were tested, the drunk-o-meter failed to register, proving that a whisky breath doesn't mean a thing.

When Kaplan's contribution to the balloon was tested, however, the drunk-o-meter found him to be intoxicated. The test indicated that police who have used the meter reading as a basis for estimating the number of drinks taken by a motorist were in error, because alcoholic volume cannot be computed by percentage.

Judge Fletcher expressed himself convinced that the drunk-o-meter provided accurate evidence of intoxication and said he would accept its testimony in the future. And Kaplan, a teetotaler up to now, went back on the wagon.

Kentucky Woman Is Found Beaten to Death Near Home

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 18 (AP).—The battered body of Miss Bonnie May Robinson, 30 years old, missing for three days, was found at noon today in weeds just off a footpath leading from her Park drive residence to a mailbox. An autopsy revealed evidence of attempted rape. A wisp of red hair was clutched in her left hand.

MANTENO MILK PRICE DOUBLED; STUDY CONTRACT

Cicero Concern Is Only Hospital Bidder.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Milk delivered daily at the Manteno State hospital, where polluted water caused a typhoid fever epidemic last summer which took 53 lives, costs taxpayers twice as much as it did a year ago.

This became known yesterday as a result of an investigation conducted in the last week by State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee county and a special grand jury. It was learned that the West Towns Dairy, Inc., 1623 South Cicero avenue, Cicero, transports more than 600 gallons of milk to the Manteno institution every day at a price of 25 cents a gallon.

The price is an increase of 8½ cents a gallon over that paid during the three month period that ended last Sept. 30. Word was received from Springfield that the West Towns dairy was the only bidder on the present contract.

Chief Clerk Questioned.

State's Attorney Shapiro yesterday questioned Frank Krueger, chief clerk at the Manteno hospital, about the cost of the milk supply and its quality.

Shapiro said he has established that the water supply at the hospital was polluted and that food served to the 5,200 inmates was the subject of many complaints. He said he does not want the typhoid epidemic to be charged against the milk by persons who thereby would excuse their alleged neglect in failing to provide pure water.

It was learned that the hospital's milk formerly was provided by a Kankakee concern which used the product of Kankakee county dairy farms, but that a few years ago the Cicero company started bidding against the Kankakee company.

Price Boost Shown.

Records disclosed that at this time last year the Kankakee company supplied 60,000 gallons of milk for 11.99 cents a gallon over a 90 day period. The records, supplied by S. L. Nudelman, state director of finance, showed that for January, February, and March, 1939, the West Towns Dairy company was low with its bid of 13.2 cents a gallon.

For the next three month period the West Towns dairy was low with a bid of 11.9 cents a gallon, the next lowest bidder being the Kankakee company which bid 11.99 cents.

The Kankakee company bid 18 cents a gallon for the July, August, and September period, and the Cicero company bid 16.5 cents and won the contract. The Kankakee company did not bid for the period which began last Oct. 1, and as a result the Cicero company's bid of 25 cents a gallon was accepted.

The state's specifications call for milk with a 3 per cent butter fat content, altho formerly Manteno inmates were served milk with a butter fat content of 3.5 per cent. Chicago dairies serve milk that averages 4 per cent butter fat, it was explained, but only 3.25 is required by city ordinance.

Quality of Milk Questioned.

The quality of the milk supplied to the Manteno hospital by the Cicero company was questioned some time ago, Shapiro learned, and for the remainder of that three month period the milk was supplied by the Kankakee company, as the milk at that time was purchased on the open market.

Last month Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, suspended managing officer of the Manteno hospital, said he found that the bacteria count in the Cicero concern's milk was too high and for a few days the contract was abrogated. Later, however, the Cicero company resumed its deliveries. The company blamed the spoilage of the milk on its handling at Manteno.

Investigators in Kankakee were told that A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare, who accepted blame for not having guarded against the pollution of the water at the hospital, authorized the Cicero company to resume its deliveries last month.

Shapiro said the grand jury will meet again tomorrow and, if its members desire, the inquiry may include the milk contract awards.

ROLLER-CHOPPER BATTLE IS ON AT CANARY EXHIBIT

A quiet little battle, full of chirps and trills, is under way in the Hotel Sherman. It is the rather ancient battle of rollers vs. choppers.

Narrowed down, it is just a parallel to the current battle between the lovers of symphonic and "hot" music, according to the directors of the Greater Chicago Cage Bird club, in whose eighth annual show the rollers and choppers, both canaries, are on trial.

The difference lies in their song. That of the chopper [who sings alone and likes it] is high, sharp and full of native wild notes. That of the roller, usually teamed with three other birds in connecting cages, is a cultivated contralto song, the result of 200 years of breeding and training.

"The roller is the symphony," a roller breeder said proudly. "It is the only bird trained to sing in a quartet. All the others are jazz. They," scornfully, "are for the home."

"The chopper sings the natural song of the canary," a chopper breeder said happily. "A wild, untamed, ecstatic song that brings joy to those who hear it." So there you are!

WITNESS TELLS HOW REDS GRAB REINS IN UNION

Sees Organization Taken Over by Communists.

John L. Matuszyk knows what it is to organize a union and see it taken over by the Congress of Industrial Organizations. He blamed the change on communists, whom he charged now control the union, in telling about it yesterday at a closed hearing in the Hotel Sherman before Congressman Martin H. Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities.

Matuszyk was president of the United Farm Equipment Workers' association, organized at the International Harvester company tractor works in 1933. In February, 1937, the independent union affiliated with the C. I. O., changing its name to Farm Equipment Workers' committee.

Tells of Communist Intrigue.

Between these dates was stretched a line of communist intrigue, during which "boring from within" tactics were used with great success, said Matuszyk. In his testimony Matuszyk made the following charges, among others:

1. That the president of the union local, Archie Hummell, is a communist with the party name of "George Hartman," and that he was a delegate to the communist party convention in Pittsburgh in 1934.

2. That Joe Weber, also alleged to be a communist of long standing, is regarded as the "top leader" of the C. I. O. union in the tractor works. Matuszyk said he attended party meetings with Weber.

3. That Harry Shaw, head of the Cook county division of the communist party, acts as contact man between the F. E. W. C. and other C. I. O. unions.

Agrees to Join Party.

In 1936, Shaw asked him to help organize for the communist party in the tractor works, Matuszyk said. He was told he could do this by making out a list of likely prospects for the party. Matuszyk said he demurred but after lengthy discussion agreed to join the communist party.

He joined with the party name of "John J. Mitchell," he said, but only paid his dues for one month. His number was in the 59,000 series, he declared, and he received a book for dues payment.

Infiltration by the communists continued until most key positions were occupied either by party members or sympathizers, he said. A humorous twist in the membership drive was the recruiting of Adolph Kuhn, a member of the German-American bund, who joined to spy on the Reds, Matuszyk said. He named several other men of whose party membership he had personal knowledge.

In Full Control, He Says.

When asked to what ex ent communists controled the union, Matuszyk replied:

"To the full extent."

He asserted that he had attended communist meetings with al the men he named. At some of these the main subject was the recruiting of volunteers to fight for the loyalist cause in the Spanish civil war. Shaw was the chief of this activity, he added.

Strategy of the communists in running the union, the witness said, was to hold their own meetings at 1648 Van Buren street to decide upon policies before each union meeting. The presiding officer at the union meeting was a mouthpiece for Weber, he said.

"There was no trouble in putting the communist decisions thru," he declared. "Care was taken to make it all appear spontaneous when motions were made from the floor, and so forth."

Offered Organizer's Job.

After the C. I. O. had taken over the union, Matuszyk said, Van A. Bittner, director of the Steel Workers organizing committee, offered him the job as national organizer for all farm equipment workers. Bittner is not a communist, he said.

"I made a little survey and decided I had to be a communist to be effective—otherwise I knew I couldn't get any coöperation," said Matuszyk. "I didn't want to become more entangled in communism, so I turned it down."

Matuszyk lives at 4226 South Gunderson avenue, Berwyn.

A spokesman for the C. I. O. farm equipment workers union attempted to spike Matuszyk's testimony even before the witness appeared. The spokesman showed up outside the hearing room and told reporters that Matuszyk probably would testify, and that Matuszyk had been expelled from the union two years ago for "Red baiting" in a union election.

Leaves for Detroit Quiz.

Congressman Dies will resume his investigation here on Tuesday. Last night he went to Pittsburgh to interview six witnesses and will hold a one day hearing in Detroit tomorrow.

Earlier in the day he heard officials of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing committee of the C. I. O. They were subpenaed to testify after a former president of the Armour & Co. local of the union told Monday how funds of the members were diverted to communist activities. This witness was Alphonso Malachi, colored.

Herbert March, district director of the PWOC, denied that he had been an organizer for the young communist league, but admitted attending meetings of the organization. He was asked about payments to union officials over and above their salaries. His reply was that the money was for them to pay union bils.

Questioned on Flow of Funds.

Henry Johnson, colored, assistant national director of the PWOC, was questioned about a steady flow of union funds to organizations which have been branded procommunist by the Dies committee. He admitted the payments, but said he didn't know anything about the communism part.

Johnson said he had been active in the International Workers' order, ostensibly a fraternal insurance organization, with 175,000 members. Again he said he was ignorant of communist connections. More than half of the officials are communists, it was testified before Dies in Washington.

Volunteering as character witnesses for the two men were Charlotte Carr, head of Hull house, and Prof. Malcolm Sharp of the University of Chicago law school.

Dies issued subpenas for three officials of the American Federation of Labor union at the stockyards, the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America. They are Thomas Devero, John Saltis, and George Dasho.

Gets Names from March.

Dies said they were summoned because he was given their names by March when the C. I. O. leader was asked whether he knew of any one carrying on un-American activities. A complaint charging that the Dies hearing was timed to influence a national labor board election for Armour employés on Tuesday was sent to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins by Don Harris, assistant director of the C. I. O. union. Dies said the summoning of the A. F. of L. officials disproved the accusation.

In line with a statement that there is much work yet to be done in this area, Dies said that the Fichte bund [fight league] is now attempting to incite racial hatred among Greek-Americans. Head of this bund is Oscar C. Pfaus, a former Chicagoan who is in Germany.

Dies revealed that a subpena awaited Pfaus. The outbreak of war prevented his return to this country, upsetting plans to establish what Dies called a national Nazi publication.

Names Others in Scheme.

The magazine, with Nazi financing, was to have on its editorial board a dozen leaders of sympathetic movements, Dies said. He asserted that the committee had been prepared to act on the basis of documentary evidence, when the scheme blew up. He said the letters between Pfaus and the following men show that all were expected to serve the publication:

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, Atlanta, Ga., imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan.

Edward Hunter, Boston, head of the Industrial Defense association.

Donald Shea, Baltimore, Md., head of the National Gentile league.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio orator.

George E. Deatherage, St. Albans, W. Va., national commander of the Knights of the White Camellia.

James True, Washington, D. C., head of the Industrial Control Reports, which the Dies committee has branded as a racket.

Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, retired, anti-Semitic leader.

George W. Christians, Chattanooga, Tenn., head of the American Fascists.

The Rev. Gerald B. Winrod, Wichita, Kas., who has aided the K. K. K. and the German-American bund.

Fritz Kuhn, New York City, fuehrer of the German-American bund, now on trial for his handling of bund funds.

Harry A. Jung, executive head of the American Vigilant Intelligence Federation, Inc., Chicago, an anti-communist agency.

Chairman Dies said that the Fichte bund, altho deprived of Pfaus' services, still is seeking to propagandize citizens.

Neighbor Curtains New Sign

Dr. Annie E. Blount, 146 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, disliked the colors used in new sign on wall of business building at Nos. 140-144 so she had a canvas curtain attached to trees on her property to screen the advertising. The background of the sign is lemon yellow, the lettering and border are black, and the sign is divided into four sections with lines of white and brown.

HIT-RUN AUTOIST KILLS 2; FRIENDS FLEE FROM SCENE

State Official Dies When Car Strikes Truck.

A hit and run driver killed a man and a woman early yesterday at Madison street and Albany avenue while they were engaged in a friendly scuffle in the middle of the street. The victims were Miss Laura Rusenski, 23 years old, 212 North Hamlin avenue, a waitress, and Francis Ryan, 29, of 2246 Superior street, a laborer.

A witness, John Ross, 1621 Division street, told police that another woman and two men, with whom the victims had been riding, drove away without trying to aid them.

State Official Killed.

James P. Cox, 48, of Villa Park, fiscal supervisor in the state department of public welfare, was killed when his auto skidded on the wet pavement and collided with a truck five miles south of Pontiac. His wife was injured.

Louis Knauf, 78, of 2045 Lawrence avenue, owner of a garage and filling station at 2049 Lawrence, was fatally injured when struck by a delivery truck in front of the garage. Leonard Parchen, 1026 Fry street, was the driver.

Gus Gordon, 65 years old, colored, of 3658 Dearborn street, was killed by an automobile at 36th and State streets last night. The driver was Ray Sherrill, 41, also colored, of 349 East 49th street.

Walter P. Lucas, 23, of 7137 South Washtenaw avenue, a clerk, was killed instantly when a car which he was driving with two companions struck a culvert on 79th street east of Harlem avenue, in Stickney township. Miss Jenny Borowicz, 19, of 2048 North Halsted street, and John Norkus, 23, of 6842 South Talman avenue, were injured.

22 Hurt in Car-Bus Crash.

Twenty-two persons were injured, none seriously, when a single decked Chicago Motor coach bus and a street car collided on South Park way, south of 63d street. Fourteen of the injured were taken to the Woodlawn hospital, and eight to the Provident hospital and given first aid.

The body of Mrs. Clara Schmitt, 65, who was killed Friday night by an automobile at Lake Shore drive and Aldine avenue, was identified yesterday by her husband, John, 7532 North Damen avenue, a druggist. Arnold Yavitt, 5546 Winthrop avenue, hotel manager, was the driver.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 768 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 592 were killed in Chicago where 19,578 were injured in the same period.

Egypt Assures Britain of 'All Possible Help'

CAIRO, Nov. 18 (AP).—Premier Ali Maher Pasha today assured Great Britain of "all possible help." He spoke at a new session of the Egyptian parliament, opened by King Farouk.

[Egypt severed diplomatic relations with Germany on Sept. 4, one day after the British and French declarations of war.]

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Traffic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an urban superhighway.

Drive to Complete 50 Miles of Resurfacing This Year

A drive to complete 50 miles of resurfacing on arterial streets before the end of the year will be started tomorrow, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said the Work Projects administration has been asked for 6,000 men for the project. He said 100,000 tons of asphaltic mixture, costing approximately $600,000, have been ordered. The work is financed from the motor fuel tax fund.

ROB NEW YORK VISITOR OF $50.

Sigfred Ellbogen was robbed of $50 early yesterday by two armed men who entered his automobile in front of 415 Aldine avenue. His companion, Arthur Braude, saved a $200 watch and a $200 ring by telling the robbers they were worthless keepsakes. Both men are from New York.

TRIES TO SMOKE OUT NONPAYING TENANTS; SEIZED

A police squad arrived at 911 Gordon terrace yesterday afternoon and found four members of a family coughing and gasping in a basement flat. Fumes from sulphur candles were the cause.

Sergt. James O'Neill, head of the squad, said the candles had been burned by Mrs. Mayme DeVries, owner of the building, and her son Robert, in an effort to force out the family, whose rent was unpaid for two weeks.

Carroll Erickson, his wife Hazel and their children, Carol, 5, and Robert, 6, were the renters. Mrs. Erickson summoned police when the children, who already were suffering from bronchitis, became violently ill. Mrs. DeVries and her son were arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

A TALL MAN SPEAKS

By CALEB

SEVENTY-SIX years ago today, a sizeable throng of everyday people, mostly Pennsylvanians, who had walked, ridden or driven their way to the scene, were addressed by a tall man, standing on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

The "War Between the States" was still at its height. Its ultimate outcome was still darkly indeterminate. The fortune of many battles still to be fought would decide an issue the most momentous in our history: the saving or severance of the Union. And perhaps but one man in all that assemblage realized either the full import of the hour, or the stupendousness of the conflict which backgrounded it. That was the tall man stepping forward to speak.

Implicit in the situation, and significant for all time, are two facts besides the presence of Abraham Lincoln himself. One was the two-hour-long oration that had just been delivered by the "chief speaker" of the day, Edward Everett Hale. The author of The Man Without a Country had spared no resources of his art . . . and the tremendous ovation when he had finished left him glowingly gratified. The second fact was the brevity, phenomenal in all annals, of Lincoln's own address—for an "oration" it could not possibly be called.

Once an Illinois backwoodsman, grocery-keeper, and country lawyer; now supreme executive of a mighty Union violently disunited—the tall man spoke for less than five minutes! His words numbered but two hundred and sixty-seven, and can easily be accommodated on a single typewritten page. "The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here," indicated Lincoln's own judgment as to the worth of his words; and to the same effect were other comments after the event.

Posterity, however, has pronounced otherwise—the Gettysburg Address being rated today, and rightly, among the masterpieces of English utterance. In it the majesty of great simplicity, the clarity of consummate diction, right emphasis, lofty thought and a magnificent reticence, all climaxed the perfect expression for a transcendent occasion.

True, what Lincoln said at the time of its saying was lost in crowd clamor and inattention—momentarily disregarded and forgotten. But the world quickly recovered its significance—and never on time's calendar will there occur a more propitious moment than this present anniversary-day, in which to recall its sublimity, culminating in the peroration: "That this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Wins Divorce

[Acme Photo.]

HELEN GILBERT.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Screen Actress Helen Gilbert won an uncontested divorce today from Mischa Bakaleinikoff, film musical director. The actress alleged that her husband was rude to her friends and relatives and falsely accused her of associating with other men.

2 BANDITS STAGE HOLDUP SERIES IN RAPID ORDER

Two energetic bandits had a busy time on the south side last night, staging a series of holdups which included as one victim Billy Webb, a White Sox baseball coach.

The robbers, colored, first tried to hold up John Dinsmore, 5844 Stony Island avenue, at 57th street and University avenue, but he outwitted them. They had better luck with Pierce Kenny, 2642 Calumet avenue, at 51st street and Woodlawn avenue. They got $12 and his car. Two blocks south they held up Edward Freese, 4350 Lake Park avenue, took his car and 60 cents and abandoned Kenny's car.

Then, at 58th and Morgan streets, they abandoned Freese's machine and took that of Frank Szwast, 12344 Parnell avenue, plus $8, a ring and two wrist watches. Szwast's wife was robbed, too. The gunmen next met Coach Webb, who lives at 6752 Peoria street, in front of 937 West 55th street, and took $9, a wrist watch, and his car, abandoning Szwast's. A few minutes later they stopped Abe Cutler, 6711 Cregier avenue, in front of 319 West 61st street, and got $47 and his automobile. They left Webb's in its place.

BIG WISCONSIN ECONOMY DRIVE OPENED BY HEIL

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18 [Special].—Drastic reductions in state expenditures expected to effect a saving of $2,162,140 in the present fiscal year were ordered today under the Heil administration's economy program, drafted since the legislature adjourned six weeks ago.

Specific and revolving appropriations of all state departments, commissions and boards will be cut for the six months' period beginning next Jan. 1. A similar slash is contemplated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941.

Only the highway department, which by law is self-supporting and thus exempt from curtailment of expenditures, escaped the economy drive. Administration sources gave assurance that state aid for schools, pensions, and charitable institutions will not be affected.

PRECISION BUILT BY HAND YET COSTS NO MORE THAN MANY MASS PRODUCTION RADIO RECEIVERS

The gleaming chromium plated tuning chassis of the precision-built Scott Philharmonic . . . guaranteed for 5 years.
Scott Custom Built performance is not beyond reach of the average income. Although such fine hand craftsmanship is far more costly, selling direct from our laboratories to you (never thru stores) saves big jobber and dealer markups. And, although the SCOTT is the radio of famous musicians, scientists, diplomats, Royalty, and many others whose names you would recognize instantly, it is also the radio of thousands of average, critical listeners in the U. S. and 154 foreign countries.
HEAR A SCOTT • JUDGE FOR YOURSELF
Just see and hear a 1940 Custom Built SCOTT! Come to our studios or test it in your own home for 30 days. You be the judge. If it does not perform with tonal realism of surpassing beauty on broadcast or recorded music . . . if it does not bring in more distant foreign stations with greater clarity and less "noise," you can return it for immediate refund. We guarantee a SCOTT to outperform . . in a side by side test . . any other radio in the world!
RECOGNIZED AS 'WORLD'S FINEST RADIO'
The SCOTT is built with fine watch precision in laboratories for performance impossible with factory, mass production radios. Far advanced in design. Radically new engineering provides CLEARER, quieter reception under all conditions. Guaranteed 5 years.

SWISS GIRL HIT AS GERMANS FIRE ON FRENCH FLYER

Shell's Fragments Spray Basel Water Front.

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 18 (AP).—Bits of a German antiaircraft shell injured a 17 year old girl in a Basel street tonight.

German guns near Basel fired at a French observation plane which crossed the Rhine river near the boundary of France, Germany, and Switzerland at 10 p. m. [3 p. m. Chicago time]. Pieces of the German shell rained on the Basel waterfront, one striking the girl. The French plane escaped.

Air Raid Alarm in England.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—An air raid warning sounded tonight on the Essex coast in southeast England and in inland Essex towns. The all clear signal followed within 30 minutes. The air ministry said the appearance of unidentified planes caused the warning.

Wilhelmshaven Raid Balked.

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—Germany today claimed a triple success in the air war against the empires, saying its planes had made flights over France and Britain and that three British planes had been driven off on their way to raid the Wilhelmshaven naval base on the North sea.

The high command said in a communique on yesterday's developments that "an attempt by three British planes to attack Wilhelmshaven failed thru timely action of antiaircraft." German fighting planes took off in pursuit, but failed to contact the British.

[The British air ministry last night reported that royal air force planes photographed "an important German naval base," tho they encountered heavy antiaircraft fire.]

Germans Tell of Daring Flight.

Yesterday's flight of a German scouting plane to the west coast of England was described by DNB, official German news agency, as one of the most daring yet undertaken.

German scouting planes, DNB said, penetrated into France as far as Bordeaux and executed reconnaissance missions over the Shetland and Orkney islands.

[A French communique said German planes had flown over French territory and that one had been forced down and the crew captured.]

French Dig In Near Moselle.

French troops were reported today by DNB to be digging in ea. . of the Moselle river on the western front. Emplacements for long range artillery have been constructed by the French in this sector, DNB said.

The morning communique of the German high command follows:

"In the west, local unimportant activity. An attempt by three British planes to attack Wilhelmshaven failed thru timely action of antiaircraft. No bombs dropped. Several planes made scouting trips over France."

German and Dutch Planes Fight.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Netherlands government announced today that two German flying boats had appeared over Holland and one had fired at Netherlands planes which attacked it. Apparently neither the German nor the Netherlands planes were damaged. The German aircraft were sighted over the Island of Vlieland, off the northern coast.

The government said it had protested against the violation of Holland's neutrality and the shooting at Netherlands' planes over their own territory.

CHICAGOAN CUTS WAR'S RED TAPE; WILL WED SOON

Submarines, mines, and wartime red tape cannot halt romance, and as a result a pretty English girl is on the high seas today and on her way to the United States to marry a young Chicagoan. She is Miss Mary Frances Harding of London. He is Douglas H. Dies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Dies of 2640 Lake View avenue.

Dies, a newspaper reporter in Knoxville, Tenn., met Miss Harding in London while he was engaged in newspaper work there. A few weeks ago he proposed to her by cable. She accepted by cable. That much was simple. The difficulty was in getting permission for Miss Harding to leave England.

After wading thru wartime red tape the permission was obtained and Miss Harding departed for America on the steamship Harding. She is due to arrive next Thursday. Dies and the English girl will be married in Harvard Memorial chapel. He is a Harvard graduate. His father, an author and publicist, long has been identified with Board of Trade matters and special economics.

Netherlands Liner Sunk by Mine; Scores Missing

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The Simon Bolivar, which struck a mine in the North sea off Harwich, England, and sank yesterday. Nearly 150 persons were missing and believed to have lost their lives. This picture of the Netherlands ship was made in Curacao, Dutch West Indies.

while afterward a British destroyer came up and dropped a depth charge."

G. A. Armstrong, a British civil service official returning to his post in British Guiana, described the sinking as follows:

"It was plain hell. Shortly after the second explosion the Bolivar went down. She settled evenly and the last I saw her funnel tops were still above the water.

"I was on the top deck when the first explosion occurred. I was flung to the deck. I picked myself up in a dazed condition and saw two men lying near me. Both were dead. I had no hope of getting to the boats on the starboard side—they were quickly filled—and there was some difficulty in lowering boats on the port side.

Swims to Floating Spar.

"I went down a rope into the sea and swam to a floating spar to which two others were clinging. We hung on. One of the two others had a deep gash in his arm. The other had a broken nose. We were picked up by a trawler, one of a number of trawlers that appeared on the scene."

A young Dutchman with an injured shoulder and a temple wound said:

"Lots of people jumped into the sea but many others remained on the ship searching for their friends. They did not seem to realize their peril."

Planter Tells of Blast.

"I was playing a game on deck when the explosion rocked the ship," said D. H. Tucker, a West Indian planter who wore an oversized pair of sailor trousers.

"I pulled myself together and saw two or three men lying dead near me. Luckily, I found my wife and daughter quickly and dropped into the water. My wife followed me. My daughter got into one of the boats. My wife couldn't swim but I managed to support her until we got enough wreckage to hold us up."

One of the survivors, a young Dutchman wrapped in a white blanket, limped painfully as he walked from the train platform at the Liverpool street station.

"Everything was going well and we were about 20 miles outside Harwich when there was a terrific explosion," he said.

"The second explosion caused great damage. Scores of people were lost. How I escaped I cannot say. I was thrown down three decks."

The most poignant story of the disaster was that of a 6 foot West Indian whose wife and two children were lost and who rescued a 3 year old white child. He burst into tears when a hospital attendant took the child from him on their arrival here. He said he wanted to adopt the baby.

Britain Flays Germans.

A British admiralty communique said:

"The mining of the Dutch passenger ship Simon Bolivar off the east coast of England is a further example of the utter disregard of international law and the dictates of humanity shown by the German government.

"The mines were laid without any notification in the channel followed by merchant shipping, both British and neutral, and there is no doubt that they were laid for the specific purpose of destroying such shipping."

The British Sunday morning press with one voice attributed the sinking to "Nazi gangster methods" and described it as "another ruthless blow at peaceful shipping."

Aside from British naval losses, the sinking of the Simon Bolivar was the heaviest loss to a nonfighting ship. The British liner Athenia was sunk northwest of Ireland Sept. 3, the day Great Britain and France declared war on Germany. The Athenia's loss was placed at 112 persons.

Holland Awaits Inquiry.

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands, Nov. 18 (AP).—Netherlands officials and citizens, shocked by the sinking of the liner Simon Bolivar, tonight awaited an inquiry into the responsibility for the placing of the mine which sent the vessel to the North sea bottom. The Simon Bolivar was the fifth Netherlands vessel lost since the start of the war.

The Netherlands minister in London reported to The Hague that about 100 of the 260 survivors were injured, about 50 seriously.

MODERN EVE AND HER SERPENT GET 15 MEN IN JAIL; SELVES, TOO

Adam Langer, 53 years old, is custodian of a hall at 1414 Clybourn avenue. There are many nights when it is not rented. So Langer's son, Victor, 32, of 1959 North Halsted street, had an idea. He printed up some tickets reading, "Gala Night—Free Beer—Sponsored by 43d Ward Democrats"—and held a stag party there Friday night.

The matter came to the ear of Ald. Mathias [Paddy] Bauler. He complained, and Sergts. Joseph Baginski and John Foley visited the party. A lady with a string, Miss Charlotte Gilchrist, 30, of 417 North Clark street, was doing a dance, assisted by a five foot snake.

Miss Gilchrist and snake were still languishing in the lockup last night, the former charged with performing an indecent act. The Langers were out on bail as keepers of a disorderly house. Thirteen other men posted bail on charges of being inmates. About 60 other citizens were permitted to depart.

FIRE DESTROYS HISTORIC CHURCH OF WAUKEGAN

Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, burned Waukegan's historic First Congregational church to the ground today. Valuable stained glass windows, old mahogany pews, and a new electric organ were destroyed.

The church, an imposing wooden structure built in 1861, and thus a Waukegan landmark, stood at Grand avenue and Utica street. It housed the city's oldest religious organization, the original Congregational group there having been formed in 1843.

The fire broke out in several sections of the church shortly after 1 a. m. and gained such headway that fire companies from Waukegan, North Chicago, and Gurnee were unable to cope with it. The Rev. J. W. F. Davies, minister, estimated the loss at $30,000. He said the church was built of hand hewn timber.

Fire officials said the fire probably was the work of a firebug who has started more than a half dozen fires in Waukegan during the last six weeks and always on a week-end.

HUTCHINS TELLS OF HIS 10 YEARS AS U. OF C. HEAD

Ten years ago today Robert Maynard Hutchins, then only 30 years old, became president of the University of Chicago. Yesterday he told of some of the problems, financial and educational, which the university faced and how they were dealt with.

He said that when the 1929 crash came and income sagged it was found necessary to give up the small classes that were traditional at the Midway. Larger classes, with competent instructors, have worked out well, he added.

Dr. Hutchins said the university still has perplexing financial problems, but that alumni had formed a national foundation to seek gifts.

GERMANY FIXES PROXY WEDDINGS FOR MEN AT WAR

Provides for Those Who Missed the J. P.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Nazi authorities announced today that they will allow marriages by proxy between soldiers at the front and their sweethearts.

The legal expert, Court President Massafeller, in the magazine Deutsche Justiz [German Justice] explained that "in wartime or during a warlike conflict, a man who is called to the colors frequently does not have a chance to appear before a justice of the peace to be married."

"To accept this without seeking a remedy would be a hardship," he declared, "especially for the soldier whose marriage was planned for the near future or who already has a child from his fiancée or expects one. The man will have an understandable desire to be allowed to found a family before he dies on the field of honor.

Assures Economic Future.

"Then he knows the economic future of his fiancée is assured and should he have a child he knows that, whether he lives or dies, this child will be his legitimate child and carry on his race."

The bride and soldier bridegroom who make a formal statement of their intention to wed need to give a sworn statement about their Aryan ancestry and must supply proof that they are free to marry. The soldier must obtain permission from his military superior to wed.

Decree 10 Hour Day.

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—Robert Ley, leader of the Nazi Labor Front, announced today that a ten hour day would be established in essential industries.

The pay scale for the ninth and tenth hours will be the same as for the first eight but will be tax free. An extra pay rate will be established for night and holiday work but women will not be asked to work nights.

Says Position Improves.

Ley declared Germany's position was improving all the time and added:

"Our irrevocable aim is victory and therewith the final destruction of England and the domination of its moneybags over the rest of the people of the globe."

Ley's announcement was the latest of a series of moves by Adolf Hitler's régime to boost production and meet a labor shortage.

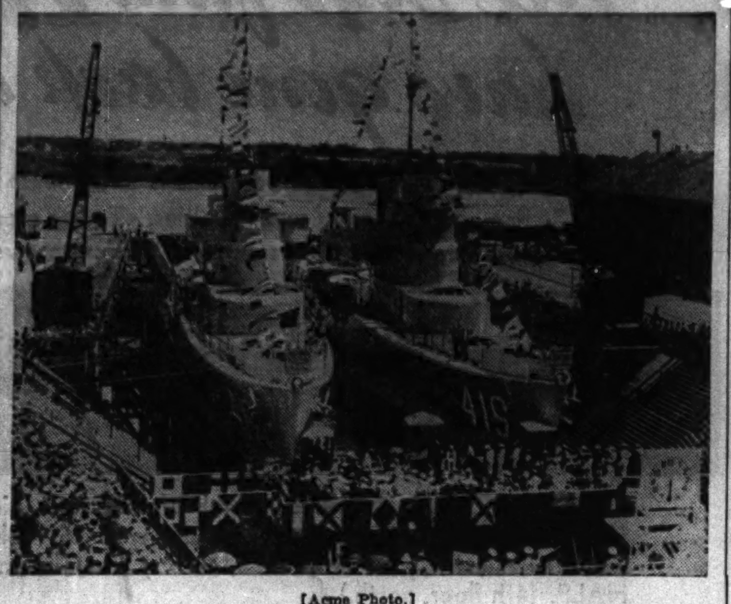
On May 27 the economic institute in Berlin reported Germany faced an acute labor shortage and that as a result more work would be required of women.

Draft Czech Man Power.

German officials announced plans on June 23 to draft Czech man power into German industry and 52,000 Czechs were reported to have been brought into Germany proper from the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

Another series of decrees during the harvest season drafted girls under 25 for farm work and university and other students for harvesting crops.

Alter Topheavy Destroyers



[Acme Photo.]
The United States destroyers Morris (left) and Wainwright have been ordered to be partly reconstructed as a result of discovery, during trial run, that they are dangerously topheavy. The picture was made when they were launched recently at the navy yard at Portsmouth, Va.

Change Other Plans

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 18 [Special]. Two new United States destroyers have been ordered returned to the navy yard here, where they recently were launched, to correct construction errors that cause them to be topheavy.

The ships are the Morris and the Wainwright. They are the first two in a series of new streamlined destroyers being built for the navy. The design of the others will be altered to eliminate the difficulties found in these two.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] has demanded a congressional investigation to place responsibility for the construction blunders. Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison has said the defects are not serious and that they can be corrected. Wheeler asserted he had been informed it is virtually impossible to remodel a topheavy ship so it will perform satisfactorily.

Smuts Government Holds Majority of 12 in Senate

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Nov. 18 [U. P.].—The government, headed by Premier Jan Christian Smuts, has a majority of 12 in the newly elected senate, according to election returns compiled here today.

PUBLICITY URGED FOR GERMANY'S WORST DRINKERS

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Habitual drunkards who drink despite laws forbidding them access to bars and other sources of liquor are threatened with publication of their names in newspapers. Heinrich Himmler, the chief, today instructed police thruout the reich to enforce regulations prohibiting such persons from frequenting saloons and suggested that local police investigate the possibility of publishing offenders names. The occasional drunkard was specifically exempted from the order.

ITALIANS DECREE ARMY BE KEPT AT 1,500,000 MEN

Extend Service Period of Reservists.

ROME, Nov. 18 (AP).—An Italian army of approximately a million and a half men was kept under arms today by government decree.

The decree published in the official journal authorized the maintenance in active service of the reservist classes of 1902, 1903, 1909, and 1913, which were called up in August for 10 weeks' training.

All other conscripts and enlisted men also are to remain under arms for an indefinite period after their present terms of service expire.

Calls War Economy Normal.

Premier Mussolini told the supreme commission for autarchy [self-sufficiency] that war economy is normal and said Italians had been advised right in adapting it for their mode of living.

The day was the fourth anniversary of the imposition of economic sanctions [penalties] by the league of nations against Italy during the Ethiopian war. This led Italy into a program of self-sufficiency. Now, said Mussolini, the whole world has had to follow a similar line.

"Every one, even those with the thickest brains, can see that the division between the economy of peace and the economy of war is simply absurd," Mussolini declared.

Other Types of War.

"There is not an economy for peacetime and an economy for wartime. There is only a war economy, because historically it has been demonstrated that a state of armed warfare is a normal state of the people. Even in years of so-called peace other types of war are waged.

"Therefore, it is the fact, or rather the imminent fatality, of armed warfare that ought to dominate and that does dominate economy."

3 MORE CZECHS SHOT; NAZIS SET UP ARMY RULE

2 Policemen Are Among Victims in Purge.

PRAGUE, Nov. 18 (AP).—Nazi Germany used the firing squad again today and then added martial law to its stern measures to stamp out anti-German moves in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

The execution of three more persons, two policemen and an unidentified Czech, brought to 12 the number shot to death in 48 hours. Nine students were executed yesterday.

Martial law, established in greater Prague, Prague-land, Kladno, Beraun, and Horchowitz, did not affect German citizens. All these districts are near Prague, Kladno to the west, Beraun to the southwest, and Horchowitz to the northeast.

President Warns Czechs.

Simultaneous with the establishment of martial law, President Emil Hacha broadcast a warning, that "any further sacrifice for the Czech nation serves no purpose."

Hacha declared that demonstrations would be suppressed by the "public might" of the German and Czech governments. He urged the people of the protectorate to "obey with all discipline the appeal which I and the government direct to you."

Prague appeared calm outwardly, but reaction to the executions of the alleged ringleaders in the anti-German acts, and the closing of Prague academies and universities for three years was reported to have spread to other sections of the protectorate.

Other Incidents Reported.

It apparently was for this reason that martial law was introduced in the five areas.

Incidents similar to those in Prague were reported to have occurred in Brunn [Brno], the protectorate's second largest city.

The first detailed picture of what occurred during the night from Thursday to Friday preceding the executions was pieced together thru informed sources.

Detachments of Black Shirted Hitler guards were stationed in the streets where the students' homes were located. Machine guns were set up in some places and during the early morning hours the schools were occupied suddenly. In the Svehla institute, according to one version, a secret printing establishment was discovered.

Find Illegal Radio Station.

Another report said that Hitler guards found an illegal radio broadcasting station in operation there.

It was said that entry into the school was forced when the students attempted to block the guards. Barricades in doorways were broken down with hatchets. A university professor and eight students seized were reported missing today.

Between 4 and 5 a. m. heavy machine gun fire was heard, especially before the student home of Masaryk college, when eight students in night attire attempted to flee.

Some managed to escape into the home of a Jugo-Slav student nearby. They were pursued there and arrested after several Jugo-Slavs clashed with the Hitler guards in helping the students to resist. Arrests also were made in Hlava college.

Many Students Seized.

Figures were lacking on those arrested, but some sources said the number was "very high." [On Friday it was reported 1,200 students had been hauled away to undisclosed destinations.] Many were taken to the exhibition halls of the Prague fairgrounds. Others were transferred elsewhere.

At Kladno 26 buses loaded with students were observed.

Before delivering his address Hacha conferred with other members of his government and leaders of the Czech unity party at Castle Lana where he had been confined because of a slight illness.

He warned that recent demonstrations against the Nazis had "seriously threatened our national status granted by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler March 16" when the protectorate was carved out of dismembered Czecho-Slovakia.

"Czechs should not forget," he continued, "that Germany is conducting a serious fight. The space of living of the Czech people is like a corner driven into the German living space."

Crew of 4 in German Plane Bail Out Over Italy; 2 Lost

UDINE, Italy, Nov. 18 (AP).—Lost over the frontier in a fog, a crew of four bailed out of a German military plane today when their craft became disabled, and hours later militiamen were still searching for two of them. The two known to have parachuted to safety were held by the police of Udine. The empty plane crashed near here.

KILLED BY STOVE'S FUMES.

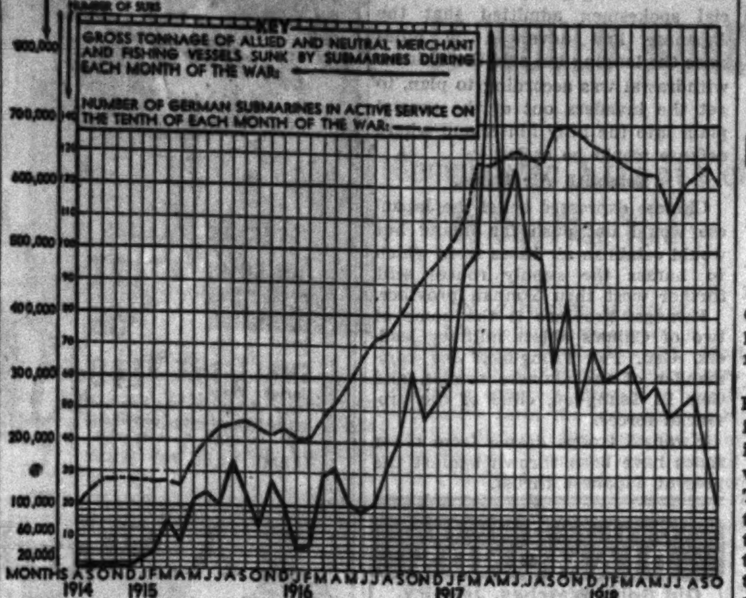
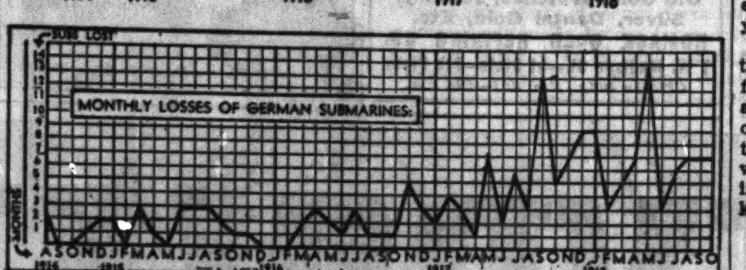
Trend of U-Boat Havoc in World War

These two graphs trace the fluctuations in the number of German submarines in service, in the destruction of allied shipping, and in the losses of German U-boats in the world war.





BRITISH DETAIN 8 MORE AMERICAN CARGO VESSELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—The state department today disclosed that Great Britain recently detained eight more American ships and seized the cargoes of four of them, which brought to 48 the total of interferences with American shipping since the outbreak of the European war.

The report showed 33 detentions by the British, 10 by the French, 4 by the Germans and one by an unidentified cruiser. Only in one case has the American government lodged a protest—the seizure of the City of Flint by the German pocket battleship raider Deutschland.

The ships involved in the eight new cases of interference by the British are:

IPSWICH, with cargo for Bremen and Hamburg, seized Sept. 20, and freed Sept. 30; IBERVILLE, with cargo for Antwerp and Rotterdam, seized Oct. 13 and freed Oct. 23; GATEWAY CITY, cargo for same destinations, seized Oct. 16, released Oct. 31; WACOSTA, bound for Rotterdam, seized Oct. 24, released Nov. 8; EXETER, detained at Gibraltar and 700 bags of American mail for Germany removed Nov. 6, released same day; EXMINSTER, detained at Gibraltar Nov. 1 and freed Nov. 6 without confiscation of cargo; EXPRESS, detained at Gibraltar and freed same day; LAFCOMO, which reached Weymouth Thursday and has not been released.

Quell Two Serb Student Demonstrations for Czechs

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 18 (AP).—News of the roundup by Germany of Czech students in Bohemia-Moravia brought two attempts today by hundreds of Serb university students to demonstrate in their favor, but police intervened. Other students hurled malodorous bombs at a concert attended by the German minister.

Peak in April, 1917

In connection with the present German submarine attacks on shipping, these graphs of merchant ship and submarine losses in the world war are of interest. In the upper graph, which begins with August, 1914, several dates are significant. The U-boat campaign reached its peak in April, 1917, when the United States entered the war, and declined after that, partly because the convoy system was put into effect in May, 1917. Previously to that the sink at sight order of the German admiralty in October, 1916, had sent the toll of British and neutral ships soaring, until in April, 1917, one of four ships approaching England was sunk. The upper graph also shows how the Germans built up their submarine fleet. Below is shown how many German U-boats were sunk in each month of the war. Mines, depth charges, gunfire, ramming, and torpedoes in that order were the principal means of sinking submarines. Graphs are from Winston Churchill's "The World Crisis," and figures are from official sources.

Black Diamond Line Rents Alien Ships to Hold Routes

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Black Diamond Line has chartered four foreign flag vessels to substitute for its regular fleet, which flies the American flag, in service to Holland and Belgium, the line's offices announced today. The ships are the Olaf Bergh [Norwegian], which may sail tonight; Stal [Danish], Christianborg [Danish], and San Leonardo [Italian]. By the end of the week, the announcement said, six more probably will be added to the chartered fleet. The line's own ships are banned from their regular runs by the neutrality law.

CANADA TO TRAIN 25,000 PILOTS ON PRAIRIES IN YEAR

Dominion Ready to Open War Air Scheme.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18 (AP).—Canada is getting ready to train 25,000 pilots a year for war service in Europe.

Coöperating with the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand in the so-called empire air scheme, it is undertaking a job the cost of which will run into astronomical figures. The expense the first year is expected to reach $700,000,000 for training, establishment of airdromes, construction of hangars and expansion of factories. Thereafter the cost is expected to average around $300,000,000 a year.

Behind the program lies the idea that German bombers are unable to fly the Atlantic with a bomb load to attack pilot training centers or aircraft factories. Most of the initial training of the flyers, nevertheless, will be conducted in the prairie provinces of the west—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Training Takes Months.

Pilots will be taught how to handle pursuit, observation, bombing and attack planes. Once a recruit advances far enough to be called "a dub flyer," it is estimated he can be shaped into the semblance of a combat flyer in no less than three months. Quick judgment, precision air work, and ability to operate a machine gun accurately are the abilities fostered in the men who are to handle super-speed craft of weights running up to 20 tons or more.

The recruits for Canada's aerial army will come from Australia, Britain, and Canada itself.

Manufacture Another Phase.

Another major phase of Canada's task is manufacture of aircraft. About a dozen Canadian factories, half of them backed with United States capital, are turning out planes of various types. The government expects United States factories to supply a large part of the training planes to be used here and the combat planes to be sent abroad.

Private flying clubs were subsidized by Canada in 1928. When the war was begun the dominion immediately employed the flying clubs on a voluntary basis as primary training centers. Behind these primary units will be intermediate training centers such as Camp Borden, Ont., and schools for advanced training such as Trenton, Ont.

More Air Uniforms Appear.

As the training program advances, the bluish-gray air service uniform is seen in increasing numbers in Vancouver, Montreal, Ottawa, and other cities.

Twenty-five thousand Canadians volunteered for air force duty when war was declared. Among them were many so-called bush flyers, men who, with little more than a compass to guide them, have been engaged in flying for the mining and fur industries far out in the wilderness.

BELGIUM SAYS IT WON'T FIGHT EVEN TO RESCUE DUTCH

Protests Violations by Warring Planes.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 18.—The Belgian ambassadors in London and Berlin were instructed today to protest against violations of Belgian neutrality by German and British aircraft.

Several airplanes were targets of Belgian antiaircraft guns and pursuit planes this week. Three British airplanes were forced to land in Belgium. One of them was downed today. The crews were interned.

The Belgian cabinet, it was learned, has decided to remain neutral even if Holland is invaded. This stand was taken because of the refusal of Holland to accept proffered aid. The decision also was contrary to the wishes of England and France, who, it is said, desire a battleground and airplane bases from which to raid—if the war really gets going—the German industrial area in the Ruhr valley. This area now is afforded protection by the low countries' neutrality.

British Claim Success.

Fear of a German invasion subsided with the end of the British and French radio and press campaign. However, the propaganda war destined to undermine the respective governments has been intensified. The British continue to urge an anti-Nazi revolution and cite alleged uprisings in former Czecho-Slovakia and Poland as symptoms of the success of the campaign.

The Germans are countering with broadcasts attacking British slums and poverty as products of British imperialism. French soldiers and workers, in pamphlets and broadcasts, are told that they are not fighting for France but for British imperialism.

War correspondents in Luxemburg and the low countries are scanning maps attempting to discover the future course of the war. There are as many arguments that Germany does not intend an invasion of Belgium and the Netherlands as there are otherwise. There is the same abundance of conflicting arguments in regard to the time factor. Partisans of the empires' cause insist that time is working in their favor for both military and political reasons.

Cite Purchases in America.

War supplies bought in America, with an increased production in Britain and France, they contend, rapidly will increase the superiority of empire arms over the Germans. This, they say, but with less conviction than before, will starve Germany into an uprising against the Nazis.

Germans, however, declare that so long as the war is static they are producing airplanes and munitions in amounts equal to those of the western powers. The economic blockade, they say, is not effective. They are maintaining that the Germans' endurance and discipline will make them better able to stand rationing than the people of Britain and France. They also say that Germany has the time necessary to consolidate its gains in the former Polish territories.

Germany's real campaign generally is expected to be against England. There are reports that Germany has a tiny new submarine which can be manufactured quickly. These U-boats, it is believed, will carry crew of four and full sized torpedoes. German plans, it is said, are to send hundreds of these against British naval bases.

German indifference to the Russian penetration into the Baltic states, with air and submarine bases there, is interpreted by some as part of Russian support for attacks against England.

Report Spanish, Italian Action.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Messages from Madrid today confirmed news published in Brussels that the Spanish and Italian governments, acting together thru their diplomatic representatives, had recalled to the Berlin government some ten days ago that they would view with disfavor any infringement on the neutrality of Holland or Belgium.

ENGLISH WOMEN CARRY BIG PART OF WAR BURDEN

Some Go Down on Farm to Learn Chores.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EXETER, England, Nov. 18.—British women are taking a big hand in this war. In town and country alike you can see them participating in war activities. The last war, it is estimated, left England with 2,000,000 more women than men.

Map shows where women study farming.

At present about 1,500,000 women are engaged in war work of one kind or another. It extends from knitting to nursing.

Down here in the west country one hears a great deal about the W. L. A., or women's land army. About 25,000 girls and married women, mostly from the cities, have enrolled in this land army. Not all of them have been trained. They get a pair of khaki overalls and a month's training in one of the various agricultural schools and farm institutes prescribed for them.

Quit Jobs to Work on Land.

Many are stenographers. Sales girls quit their jobs to work on the land. The idea was that there would be an immediate shortage of male farmhands. But it has not panned out that way. Out of the 25,000 women who enrolled, no more than a couple of thousands actually got jobs. The rest are waiting. Out of 5,000 London girls who joined only a few were placed. The majority of them still are tapping typewriters instead of being down on the farm, where they hoped to find more outdoor life.

Some of them are complaining. They quit their jobs to join the land army. They expected to earn about $5.60 a week and keep and lead a healthier existence.

Prefer to Hire Boys.

Here in Devon—a great farming county—500 women land workers were recruited, but only 72 have been trained and only 50 actually are engaged in farm work. Hardboiled farmers prefer to hire boys who are cheaper. Furthermore, there has been no shortage of farmhands.

Recruiting here, as a result, has been suspended, but ministry of agriculture authorities ask the girls not to be discouraged. They will be needed, they are told, as soon as the war really gets going. When the army in France goes into action the W. L. A. also will go into action, it was said.

The county committee here is continuing training arrangements with this in view—that the farmers will be driven to employ women as soon as the men are called for duty in France. Classes for instruction to recruits accordingly are being organized at Exeter, Torquay, and Paignton.

Month of Instruction.

Some of these girls now are in training on a farm a short distance from here. They are going thru a month of instruction. Some were shop-girls accustomed to selling stockings, but they now are listening to lectures about worms and pigs and feeding of chickens. The girls are housed and fed and get about $2 for pocket money every week at the government's expense while they are learning to do farm chores—milking, the sorting and grading of eggs, dressing poultry, cleaning pigpens, and feeding stock.

The girls are routed out of bed at 6:30 o'clock every morning and do not finish their work until the last milking is done. According to some local authorities, this is a profession for strong girls and a new link is being forged between town and country.

One kink arises, according to some town minded folk, in this war work of women. Farm girls in overalls and maids in uniform generally do not buy lipstick, hats, silk stockings or new frocks. The town people therefore are urging that women in the services should wear civilian clothes when off duty and so stimulate trade.

MINER DIES OF INJURIES.

Canton, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—Injuries received Wednesday when a runaway coal car in the big hollow mine crushed him against the side of a shaft wall resulted in the death today in the Graham hospital of Tony M. Ruggeri, 45, of Norris, Ill.

A PERFECT ARMY, READY FOR WAR, IS WOODRING AIM

Holds Day of Skeleton Force Is Past.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 [U. P.].—Secretary of War Harry Woodring said tonight he would ask congress to provide a perfect American army capable of defending the western hemisphere on instant notice. The day of the skeleton American army has passed, Woodring declared as he left for a week's rest in Kansas, his native state.

"The time has come that whatever size is agreed on, and I don't think size is of the greatest importance, we must have a force that is 100 per cent perfect," the secretary said.

This, he added, is the major objective of the national defense program to be presented to congress when it convenes in January.

Field Training Lauded.

"We cannot have a skeleton army as we have had during the last seven or eight years, with transportation, for example, at 50 per cent of requirements, modern armaments at 33 per cent, and antiaircraft equipment at only 20 per cent," Woodring continued.

"At the next session I will insist that the American people know that the army should be complete in arms and training. 'By training, I mean actual field training by divisions and corps, not by scattered units as in recent years. I believe that the new rigorous training exercises in the south and west should be continued for another two or three years."

Refers to Hemisphere Defense.

Woodring said that a well-rounded initial protective force, with adequate equipment, transport, and training, is more vital than expanding the present force of 227,00 regulars and 235,000 National Guardsmen. He asserted, however, that 280,000 regulars, the full peacetime authorization, and 320,000 National Guardsmen would not exceed the nation's needs.

"The main thing is to provide a real striking force, capable of doing what we want it to do in quick order," he declared.

"We have gone into the policy of western hemisphere defense purely for military defense purposes. The importance of the air factor is illustrated by the increased range, speed, and pay load of bombers. That one factor has made the bomber a threat to the United States of America from Europe or Africa by raising the possibility that enemy bases could be established below the Panama canal."

Secretary Woodring announced that slight changes will be made in the design of the service uniform altho officials decided recently not to replace olive drab with the slate blue uniform, which was tested.

The enlisted men's service coats to be manufactured in the future will be changed from the present design by adopting a bellows back which demonstrated its superiority during the past experimental tests, since it permitted complete freedom in arm movements. Similarly, the overcoat for the enlisted men will be changed by incorporating a modified bellows feature in the cut of the back.

The actual issue to troops of the new type service coat probably will not occur until early next fall, when it is anticipated the present stocks will be depleted.

Bandits Get $2,200 Loot from Oculist and Family

Bert H. Quint, an oculist with offices at 5 South Wabash avenue; his wife, Eva, and their daughters, Floranz, 20 years old, and Muriel, 13, were held up by two masked gunmen in front of their home at 3301 Ardmore avenue, early today and robbed of $220 in cash and $2,000 in jewelry. The bandits jumped out of a car in which they had trailed the Quints from a north side theater. They took $65 each from Mrs. Quint and the older daughter, plus three diamond rings and a wrist watch, and $90 from Quint.

JAPS ADVANCE 50 MILES IN DRIVE ON CHINA'S LIFELINES

Capture Walled City in Kwangsi Province.

HONGKONG, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Japanese army announced today that it had made a 50 mile advance in four days and entered Kwangsi province in its thrust at China's southwestern lifeline supply routes.

If this is true, Kwangsi, famed for its fighting men, becomes the 14th of China's 24 provinces to be invaded since the Japanese began their effort to conquer China in July, 1937.

The announcement came from expedition headquarters on Dragon Head Island in the Gulf of Tongking. The landing was effected Wednesday under the guns of a fleet on the western Kwangtung province coast only 35 miles from the French Indo-China border.

Capture Walled Town.

The Japanese said they had captured a Kwangsi walled town only 30 miles from Nanning, chief military center of the province from which a railway and a highway run into French Indo-China. Vital supplies have been reaching the Chinese army over these routes.

En route, the Japanese said, they captured Yamhsien, city of 20,000, about 30 miles inland from the expedition's landing place. Chinese official spokesmen admitted that the Japanese had advanced 30 miles since the landing but said the Chinese withdrawal was according to plan, to get the invaders out of the coastal plain into the hilly hinterland where defense would be easier.

Establish Air Bases.

Chinese expressed belief the Japanese would not push far inland but would establish air bases from which to harass the supply routes still further west thru Yunnan province.

Kwangsi province is the home of two of China's ablest military leaders, Gen. Pai Tsung-hsi, vice commander of the Chinese armies, and Gen. Li Tsung-jen, chief of the provincial forces.

Kwangsi troops drawn from other zones have been thrown against the present Japanese thrust.

WAR PROPAGANDA GROUPS THRIVING IN NEW YORK CITY

Sympathy Machines Put Into High Gear.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—War born propaganda organizations are shooting up in New York City like Illinois corn after a spring rain.

Large sums have already been collected by various groups to be spent on one belligerent or another, and the campaigns have only just begun. Under the proclamation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, contributions may be used only for "medical aid and assistance or for food and clothing." Such organizations must register with the state department. Only the Red Cross is exempted.

The Main Supporters.

These are national organizations, but their headquarters and roots are in New York City, where the climate is most auspicious. The empires are leading in the scramble for American dollars and sympathy. They are receiving the support of a militant group of pro-British professors and pro-French society women.

On the other hand, German and Russian sympathizers are not faring so well. Their propaganda machines have run afoul of the law. Fritz Kuhn, national leader of the German-American bund, pro-Nazi outfit, is on trial for stealing funds from his own organization. Earl Browder, head of the American branch of the communist party, is awaiting trial on passport fraud charges.

Meanwhile, the empires are doing a land office business. The French especially have caught the fancy of eastern society women.

Kits for Poilus.

A quite active organization here is "Le Paquet au Front" [package for the front], which is headed by Mrs. Seton Porter, wife of the president of National Distillers Products corporation. "Le Paquet" is preparing kits for shipment to the French poilus.

Mrs. Porter, who was active in hospital work in France during the world war, said 10,000 kits are already completed and that her 50 or 60 volunteer workers would keep on a production level of about 500 a day. The kits contain shirts, sweaters, gloves, socks, handkerchiefs, tobacco, candy, soap, and towel.

Another package group enjoying a vogue is the Colis de Versailles Trianon, the American branch of which is called the Trianon committee and is headed by Mrs. Ector Munn of New York. Two well known American born women who married into English nobility are prime movers of this organization. They are the duchess of Windsor, who is honorary president, and Lady Mendl.

Flea Powder, Too.

An added attraction of the Trianon committee's kit is a packet of flea powder.

Still another package outfit doing a land office business in New York is the French and American Association for the Relief of War Sufferers.

Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, the financier, recently incorporated her new organization, "American Friends of France," under the laws of New York state "for the purpose of organizing at various headquarters in the United States for the relief of civilian sufferers of France." The A. F. of F. is raising funds for a fleet of automobiles to transport evacués from the war zones to places of safety. Fifteen thousand dollars has been sent abroad so far.

The women are not running the whole show, however, for there is the American War Relief committee, headed by George Gordon Battle, well known New York attorney, and dispensing war relief to the empires only.

Heading the professorial contingent on the propaganda front is Dr. James R. Angell, former president of Yale university and now educational director for the National Broadcasting company. Dr. Angell is president of the English Speaking Union of the United States. The motto of the organization is "to draw together into the bond of comradeship the English speaking people of the world."

Program for Children.

From its main offices in New York City, with the walls decorated with huge portraits of British sovereigns, the union is mapping out a program for bringing English evacuated children into American homes. Dr. Angell announced German children would be excluded.

New York City supports about 35 active British organizations. Many of their members are busy arranging programs at which the "truth" about the war will be told by such observers as Lord Lothian, the British ambassador; Lord Marley, deputy speaker of the house of lords, and Alfred Duff Cooper, ex-first lord of the admiralty.

High Court Rules Radio Is Interstate Commerce

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP).—The state Supreme court today ruled that the Columbia Broadcasting company is dealing in interstate commerce and can be sued in the state of Washington. In a 4 to 1 opinion, the high court denied a writ of prohibition by which the company sought release from a suit in King county Superior court on jurisdictional grounds. The suit was brought by the Waldo Hospital association to recover damages for an allegedly defamatory broadcast originating at the St. Louis affiliated station and broadcast over Seattle station KIRO.

A DICTATORSHIP IN WAR AND HOW IT WOULD WORK

Complicated Effects of M-Day Plan Told.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Most of the war dictatorship bills introduced in congress attempt to put in legislative form the industrial mobilization plan of the war and navy departments. This plan was first published in 1931 and since revised three times.

The 1939 edition, recently ordered published by the senate at the request of Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.], states euphemistically that "the application of some form of guidance will undoubtedly be necessary to effect a rapid and orderly transition from the peacetime economy to one wherein normal conditions have been altered by the sudden imposition of an expanding war burden.

"The surrender of all individual rights in wartime is undesirable, if it can be avoided, but the assumption of additional individual responsibilities will be essentiol to the efficient coördination of a national industrial effort," the plan announces. It then outlines specific measures for the application of "guidance," which include [1] priorities, [2] control of prices, [3] control of foreign trade, and [4] the organization of government corporations to render services and take business risks "which it would be unreasonable to expect from privately owned bodies."

Explanation of "Priority."

Priority is defined as the means whereby precedence is established to direct the flow of resources into desired channels of production and assure an "equitable distribution of materials and services according to national requirements." Priority would be applied in the following forms:

1. Classification ratings. Priority classification of orders, items, facilities, or industries would be established to determine the order in which resources were to be used.

2. Allocations. These would assign the productive capacity of individual plants, or parts thereof, to specific agencies "in cases where serious procurement difficulties are anticipated or develop."

3. Licenses, embargoes, permits, and warrants. "These," states the plan, "are mechanisms of priority which may be set up to establish precedence in the utilization of resources in war."

Substitute for Commandeering.

In his authoritative book on the industrial mobilization plan, with a foreword by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, Leo M. Cherne suggests how such priorities might be used to supplement the power of commandeering as a whip over industry.

Cherne says:

"It is conceivable that a recalcitrant or obstinate manufacturer will find his obstinacy embarrassing if overnight the policy division of the war resources administration decides that the power which he has been utilizing can more effectively be utilized by another competitive company manufacturing essential commodities for the government."

Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] and other opponents of the war dictatorship scheme have remarked that the most effective kind of newspaper censorship could be established with the power of priority control. If the administration did not like the editorials in a certain newspaper, for example, it could hold up deliveries of newsprint, ink, and other supplies on the pretext that they were needed elsewhere.

Concerning Price Control.

On the subject of price control the industrial mobilization plan states only that control "may be required to prevent or minimize disruption of the national economic structure resulting from the impact of the rapid increase of demand upon existing facilities and resources."

The plan, however, proposes the creation of a price control authority, and this authority would have wholly discretionary power, according to Cherne's quasi-official book, to prescribe: "[1] Maximum, minimum, or absolute prices, [2] margins of profits to producers and dealers, [3] differentials based either on primary markets or upon zones or districts, [4] different prices for different localities or for different uses in the same locality."

The mobilization plan includes detailed proposals for the creation of a supergovernment, headed by the President, for the war distatorship. The supergovernment would be called the war resources administration and be headed by the administrator of war resources, who would be responsible only to the President.

The administrator would have an advisory council, and directly under him would be a public relations administration and a selective service administration [draft board].

Further Divisions.

The executive division of the war resources administration would consist of the plans program section, the priority section, the clearance section, the conservation section, and the commandeering section.

There would be three staff divisions, legal, administrative, and statistical.

There would be a liaison division, comprising the war labor administration, the war trade administration, the war finance administration, and the price control authority.

There would be four coördinating divisions—facilities, commodities, power and fuel, and transportation.

The public relations administration would combine the functions of the progaganda and censorship ministries of the European nations now engaged in war.

Its 'Mission' Described.

"The mission of this administration," says the mobilization plan, "should be the coördination of the dissemination of information to the public. This information should insure adequate presentation to the people of the purposes, views, and progress of the government in the prosecution of the war."

The war labor administration, according to the plan, would "provide the machinery for the equitable and voluntary distribution of labor to industry and agriculture during war by maintaining close coöperative relations between labor, industry, and the government.

"Industries," according to the plan, "should be classified as war industries and nonwar industries, according to the essentiality of the materials and services which they provide. Labor requirements should then be determined for each of these classes, with primary attention directed toward furnishing adequate supplies of labor for the more important industries, thus keeping the job and the worker together as far as circumstances permit."

Problems and Solutions.

The plans of the war department for the regimentation of labor are set forth more specifically in Cherne's book. Solution of the labor problem, particularly that of migration, he says, would be attempted by four means: [1] Standardization and regulation of all wages in relation to the cost of living; [2] a single unified employment service for prevention of competition for labor; [3] the development of public opinion; [4] compulsory arbitration of disputes after all means of conciliation and mediation have been exhausted.

Many members of congress contend that the republican form of government never would emerge from a totalitarian dictatorship set up for a war emergency under present conditions. The industrial mobilization plan "takes cognizance of the fact that, altho winning the war is of primary importance, postwar rehabilitation is a very important secondary wartime consideration."

The most disturbing aspect of the industrial mobilization scheme to its congressional opponents is the fact that it is not intended solely for a defensive war. The war department's "protective mobilization," or M-day plan, clearly is designed for an overseas war, in the opinion of Senator Clark and others who have studied the plan.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN DID NOT STEAL FILM PLOT, U. S. COURT DECIDES

Charles Chaplin.
[A. P. Wire Photo.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Charles Chaplin, sober faced but minus his baggy pants and cane, made a personal appearance in federal court today and offered a successful defense to a claim that he had purloined the plot of his latest motion picture, "Modern Times." He denied before Judge Paul J. McCormick that he got the idea for his movie from Michael I. Kustoff's book, "Against Gray Walls," and the judge then ruled there had been no infringement of copyright. Kustoff, who claimed he was an officer in the Russian imperial army, demanded an accounting of all profits from the picture and a restraining order to present its exhibition.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

THE INDIAN SUMMER OF THIS WAR.

Europe's Indian summer of war in suspense goes on, war at sea, no war on land. The peoples of the warring countries live from day to day in a world of unreality, snatching this hour and that hour while their cities remain intact and they still can hear from their absent men.

If there ever was much hot blood in the populations it must have cooled by now. The peoples may be determined to accept whatever destiny has in store for them in the next few months. Their morale may be satisfactory to the governments which will rely upon it, but it is common knowledge, reflected in all the comment on the European situation, that the people are not up to the fighting pitch. The immediate and specific causes of the war are still fairly remote from their own normal lives. It is true that some of the French and British have come to believe that it may be better to end the suspense with a showdown, but the cost of that will be so terrific that reason still calls for a different kind of settlement.

The British and the French officials do not offer much encouragement. Undoubtedly Hitler would like to come to terms. The terms, however, would leave him without a defeat, even if they exceeded what is probable in the restoration of at least a part of Poland as an independent home for a homogenous people, who certainly are entitled to one in any just map of Europe.

The British officials, in their speeches of late, have added Czecho-Slovakia to the war aims. Apparently it is one of their present objectives to restore at least as much of the former republic as remained after the Munich separation of Sudetenland and was contained within the boundaries supposed to be guaranteed by that agreement. Here, again, it would be a just map of a remade Europe which granted the liberties of free nationality to homogenous people entitled to the peaceful development of their culture and their political institutions.

The reëstablishment of these states, with the redefining of other boundaries to exclude dissatisfied minorities, appeals to the sense of right and to the belief that good will, uninvolved in war animosities in the passions of victory or defeat, could produce a better Europe than many centuries have seen and one which might be guaranteed by an exclusively European federation of interests. But the foundation of it must be justice and from that justice no people, big or little, can be excluded either honorably or safely.

That Herr Hitler is willing to make the concessions necessary to such a solution may be doubted. That he may go part way may be possible. That he would go far enough seems now improbable, and there remains the mountainous obstacle which the British and the French make of him himself. There has been as yet no real modification of the assertion that no peace can be made with the Nazi ruler. If his opponents think that his rule is weakening they have evidences which are concealed from the rest of the world.

It is improbable that a man who has led Germany in its restoration thus far will lose his grip in wartime while his propagandists can remind the people that it is the purpose of their enemies to destroy them, and can back up these statements by references to the treaty of Versailles. Peace now would be a release from impending disaster, but the approaches to it, altho illuminated by reason, are still barricaded by what appear to be irreconcilable differences.

UNDER THE PANAMA FLAG.

Mr. Roosevelt appears to be yielding to Mr. Hull's feelings in the matter of ship registry. Mr. Hull was indignant when the proposed evasion of the neutrality act came to his attention. That it was an evasion in what Mr. Roosevelt said was a legal manner did not quiet the secretary of state. His purpose in advocating the amendments was, in part, to keep American ships out of war zones, and the good faith and sincerity of this purpose were questioned by permitting the escape of the shipping to the Panama flag.

The change of flags as a result of the passing of the amended act was not considered during the debate. It was assumed that the ships on the prohibited lanes would seek others, but the shipping interests could not see profits in new opportunities. The repealers in congress were trying so hard to dress the sale of munitions up with fancy protections of American neutrality that they probably would have done something to prevent the flag change if they had seen it coming.

Maybe Panama will not go to war with Germany if ships which had been of American registry, flying the flag of Panama, with British crews and carrying contraband to British ports were sunk by Nazi submarines without warning because they had naval guns and gunners. If the Panamanians thought that would be a gallant and well precedented thing to do Mr. Hull would be in a sweat even if Mr. Roosevelt would not be. Any one who could hit the republic of Panama without hitting the Canal Zone would be a wizard.

Presumably the shipping interests do not want war but profits. Presumably the airplane and munition makers do not want war but profits. But our war birds might hope that an American ship, transferred to the Panama flag and given over to a British crew, would remain an American ship if it should be sunk.

SUN-KISSED FLAGELLANTS.

A recent editorial in the Oregon Journal of Portland opposed any delay in the abrogation of our trade treaty with Japan and went on to say "After abrogation, a trade embargo against Japan should come next." This was by no means an isolated opinion. All up and down the Pacific coast the same thought appears to be dominant. It was expressed recently, for example, by Senator Pittman, another westerner, who is chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate.

Dislike of the Japanese has been a characteristic attitude of far westerners for several generations and it is perhaps not remarkable to find the old sentiment taking this new form. It is often said that the feeling arises from fear of the competition of the Japanese in business and agriculture, but certainly the attitude expressed by the Journal, Mr. Pittman, and many others cannot be explained as the product of economic interest. It is anything but that.

An embargo against Japanese trade can result only in immediate and severe loss to all the people of the west coast, to say nothing of the rest of us. The shipping industry will suffer immediately and the effects will reach all the other important industries of the region almost as quickly. An embargo against Japan will mean loss of employment and wages to thousands of men, to say nothing of the loss of profits and markets to their employers. This measure is advocated at a time when wars and strikes have already caused a serious disruption of the normal trade of the west coast, with resultant losses which have been only partly balanced by war orders.

The people who inhabit the Pacific slope pride themselves on being go-getters and certainly they have been notably successful in raiding the federal treasury for grandiose public works of doubtful value to themselves or any one else. But in this matter of trade with Japan they are as indifferent to their own material welfare as any flagellant.

In 1935 this country's sales to China aggregated 38 million dollars as against 203 million dollars to Japan. In 1936 we sold 46 million dollars' worth of goods to China and 204 million dollars' worth to Japan. In 1937 the figures were 49 million dollars against 287 millions. By no means all the exports to Japan moved from the west coast or originated there, but very substantial amounts did. For example, in 1937 Japan bought from this country 14 million dollars' worth of wood pulp, more than a million dollars' worth of "unmanufactured wood," and nearly half a million dollars' worth of softwood boards, all west coast products. In 1936 our west coast ports loaded 62 million dollars' worth of goods for Japan and only 13 million dollars' worth for China.

Many of the westerners appear to regard their water borne commerce as a kind of nuisance if not as something to be ashamed of. Even those on the coast who dislike Harry Bridges as a trouble maker and favor his deportation seem not to resent too greatly the injury his strikes and disorders have done to overseas business. The westerners observe the idle docks at San Francisco, Portland, or Seattle without much evidence of indignation at the decline of their most valuable economic asset. They seem to have the notion that nice people don't concern themselves with ships and shipping.

This indifference to important sources of the region's wealth and well-being is astonishing to the visitor. The westerners seem to take for granted that an embargo against Japan will win the war for China and benefit America, tho there is no great probability that either of these propositions is sound.

The prevailing attitude in the west suggests that the ordinary concept of the influence of economic forces on history must be amended. Men, as a rule, pursue what they conceive to be their economic interest, but if they permit emotional bias to control judgment and thus fail to recognize where their real economic interest lies they may well pursue a will o' the wisp. They may appraise an economic monstrosity like the Grand Coulee development as of great value and at the same time strive to destroy a trade upon which many thousands of their people depend for their livelihood.

Editorial of the Day

STUDY OF FLUID MILK PROBLEMS.
[Des Moines Register.]

Shortly after the November Fortune magazine came out with its inquiry into high retail milk prices and low per capita consumption of fluid milk Dr. Leland Spencer of Cornell university spoke to a milk dealers' convention in San Francisco.

He pointed out the inroads canned milk was making into their business largely because it is cheaper. Milk evaporated and canned counts as "surplus" milk, and farmers are generally paid for it at a lower scale.

A curious fact about the use of canned milk is that rural districts use a higher proportion of it than cities, and the largest per capita use of canned milk is found in the western beef cattle states. Except for the years 1930 to 1933 the spread between the price of canned and fresh milk has been increasing every year since 1926, and during most of this period per capita consumption of fresh milk has been going down and consumption of canned milk going up.

Fortune charges that the farmers and the milk wagon drivers and the big milk companies unwittingly have been strangling the whole fluid milk business in an attempt to keep prices up. The home delivery system by a whole series of rival retailers is a great convenience, but is an extravagant method of distribution. And the pressure which in many places keeps the price of cash and carry milk at or near the price of home delivered milk results finally in the increasing substitution of canned milk.

This is certainly a consideration for the fresh milk interests to keep their eyes on for their own good.

POLAND UNDER NAZI RULE

BY JOHN McCUTCHEON RALEIGH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—I have returned from a tour of conquered Poland, conducted by German army officers and black shirted Hitler guards under the auspices of the National Socialistic [Nazi] Volunteer Welfare organization of "N. S. V." The itinerary included the cities of Bromberg, Thorn, Graudenz, Culmsee, Danzig, Dirschau, and the East Prussian city of Marienburg.

The first evidence of war was seen at Kaczory, a Polish border town near Schneidermuhl, Germany. The Polish custom house was a complete wreck. The Polish army posts apparently had fallen back rapidly here, since we saw no further destruction or shell holes excepting a burned automobile or tank shoved into a ditch here and there along the way.

At Bromberg our party was taken to a food distributing station, where rations were being issued to the poor. Clerks doled out tiny sacks of rice, coffee substitute, and other necessities, as well as large amounts of clothes and bedding.

We saw twenty women in a room on the upper floor working at sewing machines and cloth cutting boards. They were making suits. In another part of the building piles of mattresses and blankets were being sorted and cataloged.

Second on our schedule in Bromberg was a visit to the newly established N. S. V. kindergarten. Germany has hundreds of these. Their purpose is twofold—first to relieve busy mothers and second to guide the early political education of small children.

In Bromberg the kindergarten was the same as those in Germany. Competent young women instructed children from 3 to 6 years of age in games and play with toys. All the children were German. Eventually, it was said, similar places will be provided for Polish children. The kindergarten was clean and well equipped with hobby horses, blocks, 30 tiny wash basins and wooden guns that hung in a line along one wall.

Bromberg has no blackout and the street lights, tho dim, were a welcome sight after Berlin's wartime darkness. At the Danziger Hof, the newly named chief hotel, we were fed sumptuously with a plenitude of butter, bread, and meat. No food cards were needed. The army officers and officials readily admitted that living was easier nearer the front and in war areas. The red tape of food cards was eliminated and fat and meat staples seemed to be more readily obtained in the hotels where we stopped.

On the road between Bromberg and Thorn we saw the remains of a German owned farm and factory. The Polish troops had chosen to make a stand here, and German planes and light artillery had bombed and shelled them. The farm family, consisting of a man, his wife, two sons, and two daughters, hid in the cellar when the engagement began. We saw the wife, one son, and one daughter. The wife said her husband and the two other children had been killed. The nearby factory was nothing now but a great pile of rubbish, twisted steel, and powdered bricks.

In Thorn we were taken thru an old Polish nursing home. After the inspection we visited the new German nursing home, hurriedly erected by the N. S. V. We were invited to notice the superiority of the new German over the old Polish home. The Germans were busy also setting up a new hospital, equipment for which had just arrived from Germany.

Near by was a bread line depot. Here hundreds of persons lined up in queues stretching for blocks. They held yellow slips in their hands which gave them permission to receive a stipulated amount of loaves, depending upon the size of the family.

At the window where the bread was issued an official was snowed under by a sea of yellow slips waved from many hands. From time to time he managed to hold a slip high in the air, read its contents, and shout hoarsely for the number of loaves due its owner.

These slips are issued by the N. S. V., and without them no food or relief can be obtained. Each distributing center catalogs all applicants, recording their history, religion, and forebears.

In the N. S. V. headquarters in Thorn we were given a typical soup kitchen meal such as was served to the refugees. It consisted of a sort of combined soup and stew with pieces of meat and vegetables swimming in it. This, black bread and beer are the daily meal for the refugees. The nature of the stew changes daily, one meat being used one day and another the next. The stew was palatable and seemed to have the necessary vitamins to provide sufficient nourishment.

After the meal the German commissar for the district spoke. He said the N. S. V. was making progress in bringing life back to normal in Thorn. He said Thorn was preponderantly German and that most of the names in the town were of Westphalian origin.

The commissar also asserted that when the Poles blew up the bridge over the Vistula they did it so hurriedly that they neglected to warn the inhabitants, German and Polish, and many who were said to be on the bridge were killed.

In Graudenz I talked with a Polish family that was entirely dependent upon German relief. The members of this family said that altho they were able to procure some food thru the authorities, not nearly enough was available to sustain them properly. It was impossible, they said, to get employment of any kind since all the factories were shut down and could not reopen until the railroads functioned again and delivered supplies of coal.

At Dirschau we were shown the destroyed railway bridge over the Vistula which connected the Polish corridor and East Prussia. The Poles had blown up two of several great spans. Had it not been for the efforts of German organizations in Poland which discovered that the bridge was being mined previous to the outbreak of the war, our guides said, the entire structure would have been wrecked. But secret sources disclosed that all the spans and buttresses were mined and the Germans were able to cut all but two of the wires connecting up with the dynamite. Nevertheless, enormous damage was done, since the destroyed spans were the ones that went over the river and not those that slanted as ramps to each bank.

The German pioneer corps erected an entirely new steel bridge in 42 days that is capable of carrying a train. From the new spans I saw great piles of débris heaped up on a small island, where the original central buttress of the old bridge stood.

Tons of broken girders and shattered concrete made a grotesque pyramid 50 feet high. It was as if some giant had picked up the bridge, crumpled it together, and tossed it in a pile on the small island.

At Graudenz, Thorn, and Bromberg we stayed at the main hotel in each town, which invariably was named Danziger Hof, showing the strong influence the old Hanseatic Free City has exerted on the neighborhood.

In Danzig, however, we were quartered in the Kurhaus in Oliva, a suburb near by. The Danziger Hof in Danzig was filled with German army officers and officials. The surrounding country still is regarded as war territory and full staffs are retained in the vicinity.

ACCOMMODATING.

A burglar who had entered a poor minister's house at midnight was disturbed by the awakening of the occupant of the room he was in. Drawing his weapon, he said: "If you stir you are a dead man. I'm hunting for your money."

"Let me get up and strike a light," said the minister, "and I'll hunt with you."—Steel Columns.

GETTING RID OF ASTHMA.

While asthma has always presented a puzzling problem, today it is far more easily solved, altho every now and then a baffling case is encountered. Closely allied to sensitivity [allergy] a seizure may come on whenever inhaled materials, or foods, to which the patient is susceptible, are absorbed by the circulation.

Recently a letter came to this department inquiring about a 12 year old boy whose school program had been disorganized completely for two years. As a result of skin tests he was found to react violently to a number of substances. With the omission of one or two edibles, however, and the injection of vaccines, the condition cleared entirely. He has not evinced a single symptom for several months, whereas formerly scarcely a day passed without distress. He has returned to class on a regular schedule of study and play. The lad's father writes: "The sum expended for the vaccine treatment was the best investment I ever made."

Some individuals are sensitive to so many different nutriments that to forbid all would be to condemn them to starvation. While the first manifestation of allergy may begin with a single item these victims become more and more susceptible until they react to a score or more. But we must not regard the idiosyncrasy as permanent. Sometimes tolerance will be established by starting with very small doses of certain materials and increasing the quantity slowly. This requires persistence and a good deal of understanding on the part of the patient. For example, if we know that wheat is not well borne the first amount administered may be as small as a single grain. If trouble does not ensue within a day or two the dose may be doubled until—within a few weeks—the normal ration is being taken.

Fortunate are those who find that feathers alone constitute the "starter." We have learned from experience that relief will follow replacing the pillows and bedding with other components. But all too frequently wool, wheat, and even milk may be offenders. If pollens are at fault, even during the colder seasons, association with farm animals where hay or straw are employed may inaugurate a paroxysm.

The most spectacular cures are often accomplished when the patient is removed from his or her immediate environment and allowed to bask in the sunshine of some warm, dry climate. The group also includes many who develop a mild wheezing with the advent of winter. There may be no typical attack requiring heroic measures for relief, but with each succeeding year symptoms may increase in severity. Here again vaccines prepared from organisms found growing in the irritated areas may prove helpful.

It goes without saying that all nests of infection should be cleared up as a primary essential and every procedure that will strengthen the constitution should be adopted. We may look upon the condition as entirely curable other than in rare instances. If complete amelioration is not attained the sufferer at least can be rendered so comfortable that minor symptoms may be disregarded. Spontaneous abatement is not uncommon.

The suggestion is offered that breathing exercises requiring the more vigorous use of the diaphragm will be of value. The lungs need to be expanded vertically as well as horizontally and a full inspiration has the effect of placing the air sacs and the smaller bronchial tubes on a mild tension. This is equivalent to gentle stimulation. Many patients will note that improvement will follow 10 or 15 minutes of deep inhalations. Each lungful is held for two or three seconds. This may be done with the person in any position or during a walk out of doors. The air should, of course, be as free from dust as possible.

Asthma has been compared with diabetes, as each malady demands cautious and intelligent management. There is no occasion to allow these patients to live unhappily at half capacity if some thought is given to each individual case. THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Nov. 19, 1914.
[114th day of world war; 80th of present war.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson said emphatically there would be no war with Turkey over the shots fired at the U. S. S. Tennessee from Turkish forts. Commander Benton C. Decker of the cruiser was told to stay out of the Gulf of Smyrna until ordered by the navy department to proceed. This government took the view that the shots fired at the Tennessee were intended as a friendly warning that the straits were heavily mined.

PETROGRAD.—A German squadron of two cruisers, 10 torpedo boats, and other craft moved in from the Baltic and shelled the Russian town of Libau. The death toll was heavy and most of the city's principal buildings were set afire by the incendiary shells.

PETROGRAD.—Absolute prohibition closed down upon the Russians as a wartime measure. One writer said that in provinces where prohibition has been in effect several weeks, "the natives look like a different race; their faces are brighter and the air of destitution has largely disappeared."

LONDON.—Fighting along the western front was reported to be the heaviest in days, but without appreciable changes in positions. The heaviest German bombardment of the war was centered on Ypres.

THIS IS A REPUBLIC.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Peculiar use of political terms by professors, teachers, clergymen and the press, is confusing. We, who were educated in the Chicago public schools, were taught that the United States was a republic, not an autocracy or a democracy. Our form of government was superior to that of other nations in that we delegated our responsibilities by the ballot to duly elected authority or representatives. These representatives were responsible for the well being of the electorate, irrespective of rank, creed or economic security.

The republic differed from autocratic forms of government because autocratic rulers had unlimited power over individuals. It differs from democracy as the latter falls prey to self-seeking demagogs and degenerates into "mobocracy." This mob, led by fanatical or fantastic leaders, in turn becomes autocratic and individual rights are submerged; e. g., the French revolution. The safety valves against abuses in our republic are a bicameral [two house] form of government and a bipartisan political structure.

This status for the United States of America was determined in the constitutional convention of 1787 and by the instrument it created, the constitution. The Supreme court judges interpret this constitution and their interpretations become the supreme law of the land. We are definitely a republic and our pledge of allegiance is to the flag of the United States and "to the republic for which it stands."

The constitution guarantees to the states a republican [representative] form of government and municipalities have their guarantee of republicanism from the states. Our city officials are elected and are not put in office sotto voce by a mob. If they err, a political reversal results, but while incumbents they govern by constituted rights. Mobs and extra legal groups may vilify officials but such actions are actions against our basic republican structure.

In the flag salute pupils still pledge allegiance to a republic, not a democracy. The only word heard in most college classes and meetings is democracy—"the United States is a democracy." If protest to the term is offered you are out of order. Can you tell me when this monumental change from a republic to a democracy occurred or if our republicanism like Lincoln park was streamlined out of existence?

R. O. T. C. BANDS ON PARADE.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—On Wednesday, Nov. 15, the Voice of the People carried a letter signed by Citizen, complaining that the Chicago Federation of Musicians prohibited R. O. T. C. bands from playing in seven American Legion Armistice day parades. It also charged that in another instance the union stopped a high school band from participating in a community flag dedication until the citizens paid for the price of a union band. These are the charges:

These are the facts: While we have an agreement with the board of education that school bands will not be used when they would interfere with the employment of professional musicians, this rule has not been enforced on patriotic occasions. Sometimes misunderstandings have arisen. Organizations which had a private purpose in parading sometimes have represented the occasion as a patriotic one. A flag leading a parade does not necessarily make the occasion a patriotic one.

This is what happened in connection with the requests for R. O. T. C. bands on Armistice day. There were six requests for bands. Permission for them to play was granted in every instance. Five of them actually participated. The Roman Legion post requested the Harrison High school band; it performed; the North Shore post requested the Waller High school band; they received word too late to play; the Senn High school band played and marched in its place; the Columbus Park post requested the Austin High school military band and the girls' band; both bands participated; the Tilden High school band played for the Liberty post.

The South Chicago post requested the Bowen High school band. While permission was granted 24 hours in advance circumstances arose so that the band found it impossible to comply.

To show you that our patriotism is second to none, let me remind you that we donate $100,000 a year in music to the Edward Hines Memorial hospital, where many American Legion boys are lying.

CAPT. HEALD WAS IN COMMAND.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—I note an error in today's Tribune story on proposals to mark the site of old Fort Dearborn. The error is in stating that "the little garrison, under command of Capt. John Whistler, was massacred by Indians."

While Capt. John Whistler was the builder of the first Fort Dearborn, he was not in command here when the massacre occurred, having been transferred to Fort Wayne two years previously. The commander in 1812, the time of the massacre, was Capt. Heald, who has been criticized for evacuating Fort Dearborn on that fatal Aug. 15. Many have held that he should have disregarded orders to evacuate while hostile Indians were around; that he should have prepared to defend himself within the fort, which it is believed he could have done successfully. Be this as it may, Capt. Heald, not Capt. Whistler, was then in command.

May I add that the proposal to mark "small unnamed spots" in the vicinity of the fort site for the heroes of the battle on the shores of Lake Michigan two miles south of the fort—is a highly meritorious one. The names of Ensign Ronan and Sergt. Hayes, whose heroism is acclaimed by all historians of the period, certainly merit recognition. Their gallantry in defense of the women and children—vain tho it was—will never be forgotten.

BERNARD MACGREGOR.

SHE'LL WEAR WHAT SHE WILL.

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 14.—I've read your editorial, "Laces and Stays." The writer may know about writing editorials but he sure doesn't know about women. If an article is in style and a woman wants to wear it, wear it she will, come hell or high water, and regardless of whether it is comfortable or not.

I have been married for quite a few years, and as long as my wife wants to wear what I want, anything she wears is O. K. with me, and so there's no argument. [Incidentally, she is getting them, and she wears high heels.] Just the same, wouldn't you rather see the nice curves the new corsets give instead of a sloppy figure, and wouldn't you, if you were single, and picking a date, pick one with high heels instead of so-called common sense shoes? Come on, now, be honest.

A CONTENTED HUSBAND.

ANY ONE RECALL THE ITEM?

Kingston, R. I., Nov. 14.—Many years ago THE TRIBUNE published an item by C. W. T., which purported to be an editorial written by the proprietor of a country newspaper, who complained that some miscreant had broken into the composing room and stolen all the "f's" and all the "s's," and he apologized to his readers for the queer appearance of the paper. He also commented on what he would do to the "mithcreant" if he ever caught him.

This item was copied all over the country, and several years later, it is said, C. W. T. himself discovered that he had included either an "f" or "s," I forget which, and no one had discovered it in all that time.

Can any of your readers help me obtain a copy of that paragraph?

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. MORTGAGE.

Techny, Ill., Nov. 8 [Legal Friend of the People].—Is a first mortgage on a house and lot good if it is not signed by [1] the owner of the house nor [2] the attorney, nor [3] notary who made it out?

4. I hold such a mortgage, that is, a duplicate copy of one, and while I trust the relative who is the owner of the property, I do not feel quite satisfied that [5] my document is unsigned.

6. The original, the copy of which mine is the duplicate, is signed properly and placed with the court [of a distant city, where my relative lives, and where the property in question is located]. I trust you understand what it is that I mean.

The man [my relative] was in great haste about sending me the duplicate of the mortgage when it was made out, and thus sent it without any one's signature. When writing him and acknowledging receipt of the mortgage, I mentioned this to him saying that I did not like that, but he has not referred to it since, tho he writes me monthly. I have a note from him for money I loaned him to buy the house and he is regular in making payments on the note; I am sure that he is trustworthy.

J. H. L.

1. No.
2. and 3. Not necessary.
4. You mean that it bears no signature at all? We could advise to better advantage if you had given us the facts.
5. We agree with you that if the mortgage is totally unsigned it is a nullity, but if your only point is that your copy is unsigned, then it seems probable that the original is signed.
6. On these facts we see nothing for you to worry about, except that in general the mortgage holder should ultimately get back the original mortgage after recording. If yours is a split mortgage, the notes being held by several parties, then obviously they can't all of them have the original.

In general we advise a mortgage lender to be represented by an attorney. In addition to seeing that the papers are properly executed he should see that the title is good.

EXECUTOR'S FEE.

Chicago, Nov. 9 [Legal Friend of the People].—I was appointed executor of my mother's estate Sept. 22, 1938.

1. Will I get a fee as executor and [2] extra money for doing carpenter work, etc.?

W. J. C.

1. Yes. The Illinois statute says not over 6% of the personal property.
2. The executor does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. If you repair the real estate it should be on express or implied authorization from the heirs. Your rights would depend on the surrounding circumstances.

NEW DEAL PLANS POWER SETUP ON GIGANTIC SCALE

Cost of Project Estimated at 600 Million.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—The New Dealers are about ready to spring their latest plan for the extension of government ownership and operation of the electric power system of the country.

It is a 600 million dollar project to create a government owned and operated superpower grid, energized by four mammoth steam plants, which would hook all the private and public power producers and distributors east of the Mississippi into a vast industrial power system.

The ostensible objective is the development of sufficient electric power to operate at expanded capacity 24 hours a day the industries required to produce munitions for the army and navy in time of war.

Eliminates Some Plants.

The plan envisages the elimination of "obsolescent" private utility plants and fits into the New Deal program of forcing electric rates by government subsidized competition down to 1 cent a kilowatt hour for household consumers. The average rate is now 4½ cents.

[A story of renewed conflict between New Deal governmental power promoters and private utility interests in the TVA area will be found in the financial section, part 2, page 9.]

Whether legislation would be necessary to authorize the undertaking is a matter for dispute. According to some of the government ownership agitators, the President already possesses the authority under his powers in the war emergency he proclaimed last September. It would be necessary to go to congress, however, for the funds.

Inasmuch as the initial appropriation would be comparatively small, possibly not more than 25 million, and as the project would be represented as a national defense measure, the New Dealers are confident that congress would not refuse the grant.

From Midwest to Atlantic.

The grid plan is the brain child of Thomas R. Tate, an engineer for the federal power commission. It proposes the construction of a high-tension electric power transmission system, carrying 220,000 kilo volt amperes, stretching from Port Washington, Wis., the Illinois coal fields and the Tennessee valley to the St. Lawrence valley and New England.

One of the four government steam plants to energize the system would be built in the Illinois coal region, probably in Representative Kent E. Keller's district at the south end of the state. The others would be located in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. An important unit of the system, would be the St. Lawrence Seaway hydro-electric development.

All important private and public generating plants would be required to tie into the grid. The efficient ones would supply power and those deemed inefficient in fuel consumption would be scrapped. Presumably government authority would determine what private utility equipment is obsolete.

Linked to Seaway Project.

The grid plan is closely linked with the St. Lawrence seaway, which is the President's pet power project. In the St. Lawrence region there is no market for the vast amount of power that would be developed by the proposed dams in the International Rapids sections of the St. Lawrence. But a market would be provided for this power once the St. Lawrence dynamos were connected with the grid.

The plan is being promoted by the New Dealers as an imperative measure of national defense necessitated by the shortage of electric power. To establish the existence of this shortage they have capitalized the effect of government ownership competition on the privately owned utilities.

By establishing government subsidized competing plants the New Deal has driven some privately owned plants out of business and frightened investors out of buying private utility securities. Hence the private utilities were unable to continue expansion.

Complain of Shortage.

Now the New Dealers are complaining that there is a power shortage which with industry operating at full capacity, as in war time, would amount to 33 per cent in some localities. In order to avoid an industrial breakdown in time of war it is imperative, the New Dealers argue, to begin at once the construction of additional generating capacity of approximately 6 million kilowatt hours.

The private utility experts say this estimate of power shortage is greatly exaggerated and manifestly propaganda for the extension of government ownership. The national defense power committee estimated the shortage in the industrial east at 1 million kilowatt hours. It brought the private utilities into coöperation on a project to expand capacity to the extent of 3 million kilowatt hours. It rejected the grid plan as too expensive for the results obtainable.

Conservatives Eliminated.

That was entirely too conservative to suit the New Deal. So the President abolished the committee and transferred its functions to the new national power policy committee, headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. The conservatives were excluded from the new setup in which Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, the New Deal lawyers, are the predominant influence. The new committee strongly favors government ownership and is friendly to the grid project.

The New Deal objective was recently stated by Leland Olds, vice chairman of the federal power commission, at a meeting of the Washington Society of Engineers. He said that it is to bring down costs of production until electricity for all but large industrial uses can be supplied to consumers at 1 cent a kilowatt hour.

Power Scheme Area

BOY SEES RAIL BREAK; AVERTS POSSIBLE WRECK

One of the interested spectators yesterday when the northbound Hiawatha of the Milwaukee railroad zoomed through Deerfield was William Cruickshank, 16 years old.

Bill, who is a junior in the Deerfield High school, was astonished when he saw a piece of rail break off, hurtle over the edge of a viaduct and smash the radiator of a parked automobile. But not too astonished to act. He ran up to the track, saw that the rail break might cause a wreck and went looking for help.

He got it from a section foreman, George Hawkins, who was working nearby. Hawkins and his men flagged down a freight train and held it while they repaired the break. Young Cruickshank lives at 1051 Forest avenue, Deerfield.

G. O. P. LEADERS' BACKING CLAIMED BY LYONS CAMP

25 in Country Towns Are Reported Lined Up.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The first announcement of a lineup of Cook county organization strength behind any of the candidates for the Republican nomination for governor came yesterday from the camp of Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville.

It was a statement that 25 of the 30 township committeemen—the members of the county central committee representing the suburbs of Chicago within Cook county, the area politically described as the country towns of the county—have lined up behind that candidate.

The Lyons headquarters forces were inclined to read into the announcement an evidence that the organization leaders who have been supporting C. Wayland Brooks have grown tired of waiting for him to announce his candidacy and have begun to swing to Lyons.

Some See a Combination.

Going a step further, some of the same theorists saw in the announcement an indication that a long sought Lyons-Brooks combination with Lyons for governor and Brooks for United State senator had begun to take shape. But both Lyons and Brooks refused any comment on this conjecture.

Close inquiry disclosed that 19 of the 25 township committeemen signed up for Lyons some time ago. The names of the other six who now have lined up with him were not made public. It was said most of them formerly were with Brooks for governor.

The statement from Lyons headquarters emphasized the normal Republican strength in the country towns.

"The 25 committeemen of these strongly Republican divisions," it read, "are headed in the southern part of the county by William H. Weber of Blue Island, former chairman and present dean of Cook county central committee, and in the northwest section by William Busse of Mount Prospect, a present member and a former president of the Cook county board; and they include Bruce Benson of Proviso township, William F. Propper of Thornton, and L. A. Westcott of Oak Park.

Point to G. O. P. Votes.

"Last November the townships of Cook county cast more votes for the Republican ticket than the combined vote of 22 of Chicago's 50 wards and more than were cast in 43 of Illinois' downstate counties. Lyons, as the Republican nominee for United States senator, carried this territory last year by a plurality of 51,492."

The statement from headquarters said that the resolution signed by the township leaders read:

"One of our first duties as the officially elected representatives of our party in our respective political districts is to help bring about the nomination of candidates who will contribute the most toward putting Illinois back in the Republican column—thereby insuring the election of a Republican President.

"We, therefore, hereby indorse the candidacy of Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville for the Republican nomination for governor of Illinois."

There followed a numbered list of five reasons for the indorsement. They were [1] Lyons' record in the legislature, [2] his ability as a campaigner, [3] his party leadership, as nominee for senator, during a Republican depression, [4] his downstate plurality of 108,193 and his 51,492 lead in the country towns of Cook county, and [5] his nonfactional record.

Headquarters of Dwight H. Green, who also is campaigning for the nomination for governor, made public an indorsement of his candidacy by Dennis Malloy, former Chicago police captain, and a number of other retired policemen.

Otis F. Glenn, candidate for United States senator, will make his first campaign speech at a special dinner of the Southwest League of Women Voters at Bethany Union church, 103d and Wood streets, tomorrow.

OLD TIMERS MEET AGAIN AT MARSH SCHOOL REUNION

Thirty old timers who attended the John L. Marsh public school before 1900 gathered last night in the Calumet park fieldhouse for their 10th annual reunion.

They sang the songs of the gay '90s, gave their reminiscences, and elected officers. Carl Broholm of 8035 Manistee avenue was made president; George Golding, secretary, and George Terp, treasurer.

The Marsh school was formerly at 101st street and Escanaba avenue, and, according to the veterans, looked like a glorified cigar box. It was torn down in 1911. The new school is at 98th street and Escanaba avenue.

HUNT FOR MORE CACHES PLANNED IN O'HARE PROBE

New Safety Box Is Found in St. Louis.

State's attorney's investigators began a search yesterday for half a dozen more safety deposit boxes belonging to Edward J. O'Hare, slain front man for the Capone syndicate. The search was made in the belief that important clews to his murder, his business associates, or other affairs that would shed light on the killing might be found.

Every bank and safety deposit vault in Chicago will be visited. Police have asked authorities in Boston, New York, Miami, and St. Louis to coöperate in the search. A new box, as yet unopened, has been found in St. Louis. Court authority to open this box is to be sought this week in St. Louis.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright, who has been in charge of the murder investigation, said he will obtain a list of all objects found in the box. Documents in it will be photostated and copies will be sent to him.

New Information Spurs Search.

It was explained that renewed interest in the search has sprung from information supplied the state's attorney's office by officials of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company, which filed a claim Friday to the $25,000 found in a safety deposit box at the First National bank here. This box, opened Thursday, was rented by "John Walter, care of E. J. O'Hare."

Altho John Walter Quinn, former Boston political power, has claimed the money, the insurance company investigators say it really belongs to Edmund L. Dolan, a former city treasurer of Boston. Both Quinn and Dolan are in jail in Boston serving two and a half year sentences for contempt of court in connection with efforts to bribe a jury in May, 1938. Quinn has said he placed the money in the box.

Investigators Watching Box.

Insurance investigators were in Chicago watching the box when O'Hare was slain by gang assassins Nov. 8 while he drove his car from Sportsman's park race track, of which he was president, toward his loop office.

Miss Sue Granata, sister of State Representative Peter C. Granata of Chicago, failed yesterday for the third time to keep an appointment at the state's attorney's office. She was to be questioned about her association with O'Hare and reports that she was his fiancée.

Word that she was too ill to appear yesterday was sent by another brother, Attorney John Granata. Lieut. Thomas Kelly from the state's attorney's staff was sent to her mother's home at 1119 North LeClaire avenue, and verified reports that she was under the care of a physician. She promised to appear this week.

TRUCK IS BURNED, OTHERS UPSET IN TEAMSTER STRIKE

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18 [Special].—A coal truck was burned and several others were upset today in new outbreaks of violence on the third day of a strike called by local 470 of the teamsters' union. About 1,500 drivers of coal and fuel oil trucks are involved in the strike.

Eleven men stopped a truck, pulled Harry Smith, the driver, from the cab, ripped ignition wires from the engine, and set fire to gasoline escaping from the broken supply line.

Charles Kutz, a state labor relations mediator, arrived from Harrisburg at noon. He will seek a settlement of the strike, called when negotiations for a new contract broke down.

Kidnaped

BETTY BOWER.

Police were searching last night for three bandits who early yesterday forced a young woman and a young man to assist them, as lookouts, in two holdups.

John Kuswara.

The victims are Miss Betty Bower, 18 years old, 642 North Lorel avenue, and John Kuswara, 26, of 4916 West 30th street, Cicero. They were kidnaped in their car by the bandits at Harlem and Ogden avenues, near Stickney. The robbers took $1 from Kuswara.

They drove the couple to a tavern at 3600 Wolfram street where they ordered the girl to stay in the car and her companion to keep the tavern door open for them while they held up the owner. They repeated the procedure in another tavern robbery at Huron and Leavitt streets. The gunmen evicted Miss Bower and Kuswara from the car at 18th street and Washtenaw avenue, after giving him his $1, plus $1.50 as "commission" for his enforced part in the holdups.

FUGITIVE SEIZED FOR QUESTIONING IN STREET KILLING

Leo Cudia, 41 years old, 2523 Lexington street, a shoemaker, was arrested yesterday for questioning about the fatal shooting of Roy Warner, 25, of 208 South Whipple street. Cudia, who was sought for 10 days, was found at Harrison street and Kedzie avenue by Detective Frank McGrail of the Marquette station.

Warner was killed in front of 2519 Lexington street on Nov. 8. A witness named Cudia as the slayer. Earlier that day, police said, Cudia had accused Warner of abducting his daughter, Madeline Cudia, 14. Police said Cudia admitted shooting Warner but refused to give any details.

BANDIT WHO SHOT TWO POLICEMEN ASKS FOR PAROLE

Earl Hardgrave, who was sentenced to prison in 1937 after he shot two policemen, is among 350 convicts seeking paroles from Illinois penal institutions next month.

Earl Hardgrave.

Public hearings on their applications are to be held tomorrow at the various institutions. Eight of the freedom seekers are women; 188, including two women, are from Cook county.

Hardgrave participated in a gun fight at North and Damen avenues Dec. 16, 1937, wounding Detectives Patrick Griffin and Fred Crowley. He subsequently was found guilty of two charges of assault with intent to kill, and was sentenced to two consecutive terms of 1 to 14 years.

Other parole seekers include one woman and three men who were sentenced to one to five years for conspiracy to make false election returns in the 20th ward during the April, 1936, primary.

They are Mrs. Dorothy Berger, who was a Democratic election judge; Clement Amore, a Republican precinct captain; Sanders Caravello, a a political worker. They were found guilty by a Criminal court jury in May, 1937.

University Graduate's Leap to Death Called Suicide

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide in an inquest over John A. Schmidt, a graduate of the University of Minnesota, who leaped to his death early yesterday from his third floor room in the Larrabee Y. M. C. A., 1500 Larrabee street. Schmidt, who was 22 years old, had been seeking work in Chicago since Oct. 24.

FORMER CITY HALL EMPLOYE ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

Three years ago, Howard Jacobsen, 1237 Mautene court, worked for a short time as a clerk in the city hall. Last year he was out of a job. Then, as the story was told last night, he began buying various articles on time — an automobile, electrical equipment for his home, a stove, a vacuum cleaner—and even made a $300 loan, each time using the name of a former worker instead of his own so that when a business concern looked up the records it found that the purchaser had a job. A few days ago a store became suspicious of Jacobsen, notified the police, and Jacobsen was arrested. Last night he was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

De Kalb Grand Jury Called to Act on Charges of Girls

Sycamore, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—The De Kalb county grand jury was ordered today by Circuit Judge William J. Fulton to reconvene on Friday, Nov. 24, at the request of State's Attorney Latham Castle. The jury will investigate rape charges against Homer Cady, 30 years old, and George Laketa, 23, who are accused by an Aurora girl, and similar charges against Tyler Johnson, 25, and John Japuntch, 24, accused by two De Kalb girls. All of the defendants are held in county jail here under bonds of $5,000 each.

DR. SMITH GOES TO PENAL FARM IN AMBULANCE

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 18 (AP).—Dr. James Monroe Smith, former president of Louisiana State university who attempted suicide Thursday in his jail cell here, was removed by ambulance today to the state penal farm at Angola to start serving a prison term for forgery.

Warden L. A. Jones of the penitentiary said Dr. Smith probably would be put to work cutting sugar cane.

Smith has been in a sanitarium for two days recuperating from a deep gash in his foot which, officers said, was self-inflicted with a razor blade.

His physicians said he had recovered sufficiently to make the 60 mile trip to Angola. Dr. Smith was sentenced to a term of from 8 to 24 years.

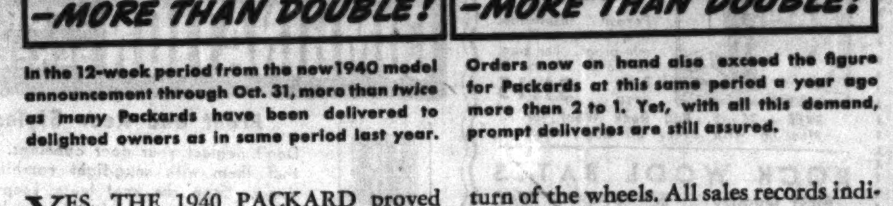
SALES SOARING!

America takes 1940 PACKARD to its heart!



In the 12-week period from the new 1940 model announcement through Oct. 31, more than twice as many Packards have been delivered to delighted owners as in same period last year.

Orders now on hand also exceed the figure for Packards at this same period a year ago more than 2 to 1. Yet, with all this demand, prompt deliveries are still assured.

YES, THE 1940 PACKARD proved an overnight hit—and the cheers (and sales) keep rising!

And small wonder, for a car as good as this new speed-streamed Packard spreads its own good news with every turn of the wheels. All sales records indicate that it's just what people wanted at a price that's better than right—the best of all possible reasons for dropping run-of-the-road cars.

Car buyers all over America have discovered—and quickly, too—that these new 1940 Packards are not only great cars, incredibly good, a joy to look at and a thrill to drive . . .

BUT—they have also discovered that a big Packard can be bought for little more than the smallest and cheapest cars!

To get a rough idea of what has happened, look at the charts at the left.

If this doesn't indicate a great, nationwide swing to Packard, then figures mean nothing! Packard sales are up 105 per cent—more than 2 to 1 ahead of sales a year ago!

So . . . take time out, today, to delight your soul with this new Packard's stirring new lines, fiery performance, striking economy and arm-chair comfort on the road! Discover that the difference between this stunning Packard and much smaller cars is only a very few dollars a month. And despite the demand, you can get prompt delivery!

DR. HRUBY DIES; LEADER IN FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

Pneumonia Fatal to City Sanitarium Trustee.

Dr. Allan J. Hruby, secretary and trustee of the Chicago Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, died of pneumonia in the Washington Boulevard hospital yesterday. He was 49 years old and lived at 1130 North Lorel avenue.

Dr. A. J. Hruby.

Dr. Hruby had been a nationally known leader in the fight against tuberculosis for a decade. He was appointed medical superintendent of the tuberculosis sanitarium in 1918 and served in that capacity until 1923. Since 1931 he has been secretary and one of three trustees.

Working with Dr. Frederick Tice, president of the sanitarium, who attended him during his illness, Dr. Hruby was credited with most of the advance work done in Chicago to curb tuberculosis. He helped organize a complete tuberculosis test of all children in public, parochial, and private schools in the city.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Sylvia Hruby, a son, Allan, a daughter, Jean, his mother, Mrs. Caroline Hruby, and a brother, Lee Hruby. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. in the Masonic temple at 23d street and Millard avenue. Burial will be in Mount Emblem cemetery.

Isaac Fuld, Ouija Board Inventor, Is Dead at 74

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Isaac Fuld, 74 years old, the ouija board man, died unexpectedly tonight after a brief illness. With his brother, William, Fuld held the original patent on the little "talking board" which swept this country and foreign nations as one of the strangest fads on record. The idea, members of the family said, was Isaac's. He conceived the lettered and numbered board on which a three legged table was propelled by the hands of persons playing the game. The brothers used it as far back as 1892, 30 years before it became popular. The name was made from a combination of the French "oui" and the German "ja," or simply, "yes-yes" in English.

Buck Raised from Fawn Kills Its Benefactor, 78

Hollister, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Michael Arretche, 78 years old, was gored to death today by a three pointed buck he had raised from a fawn. Jean Larrando saw the buck advancing as Arretche stepped inside a game refuge to gather wood. He called a warning, but it was too late.

OBITUARIES

Herschel V. Bowman.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—Herschel V. Bowman, 78 years old, a member of the Illinois State Coal commission and retired general industrial agent for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, died today from pneumonia. Bowman was associated with the C. & E. I. for 50 years, serving as agent at Stringtown, Ind., and at Beecher, Tuscola, and Danville, Ill., before becoming general industrial agent. He served on the Vermilion county board and was active in lodge and civic affairs. Surviving are the widow, Cora A. Bowman; a son, Grover C. Bowman, president of Massachusetts State Teachers college at North Adams, and a daughter, Mrs. Maude B. Warner, Oberlin, Ill. Funeral services will be held in Danville tomorrow.

ORDER TAX BILL SALE ON 500,000 REALTY PARCELS

More than 500,000 parcels of real estate on which 1938 taxes were unpaid were ordered forfeited and the tax bills against them were offered for sale yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. The deadline for the 1938 taxes was Sept. 1.

The county treasurer and the county clerk will begin Monday to sell the tax bills against the parcels. One parcel a day will be sold until the complete list of salable parcels is compiled.

The actual parcels are not sold. The purchaser of the tax bills, who usually is an expert in this field, in effect pays the taxes for the owner of the property. The purchaser is allowed to add 12 per cent interest each six months to the tax bills he holds. Thus the real owner of the parcel, to clear his title to it, must pay the delinquent taxes and the interest on them.

Friends to Strew Pioneer Yachtsman's Ashes on Lake

His old friends at the Columbia Yacht club will carry out Frank Dagget's last wish today. At 11 a. m. they will take a coast guard cutter out on the lake and scatter his ashes over the water. A brief, informal service will be read. Mr. Dagget, who was a retired fireman, was the last charter member of the yacht club. He died last month at the age of 74 in the United States Marine hospital.

CHICAGO'S OPERA GOERS REVEL IN A DOUBLE FEATURE

Twin Bill Substituted for 'Falstaff' at Matinee.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Chicago City Opera company gave three separate works at the Civic Opera house yesterday—Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" in the afternoon and Flotow's "Martha" in the evening.

If members of the matinée audience were disposed to grumble over the fact that their scheduled "Falstaff" had been indefinitely postponed, they found that the substitute show which the opera company had thrown together was of a quality which forbade grumbling. The two little Italian melodramas—both soaked in southern sunlight, both rich in opportunities for brilliant staging, both telling the familiar and easily followed story of unrequited love, jealousy, and murder—were done yesterday with an élan which drew burst after burst of enthusiasm from the audience.

Thomas Wins Applause.

The Santuzza in "Cavalleria" was Dusolina Giannini, Italian-American dramatic soprano. Here is a voice which is glorious in itself—somberly beautiful, like dark, weathered gold—and which becomes phenomenally expressive by means of the passion which its owner manages to put into it and by means of the grandeur with which she phrases. Mme. Giannini had a worthy vis-à-vis in the person of Armand Tokatyan [Turridu] and a strong supporting cast in Margery Mayer [Lola], Desire Defrere [Alfio], and May Barron [Lucia].

In "Pagliacci" a great part of the applause went to John Charles Thomas as Tonio. There were the sheer smoothness and competence of his singing and the well-known Thomas gift for rough humor. Arthur Carron, the tenor who came here for "The Man Without a Country" two years ago, sang Canio in a resonant, characterful voice and with lots of drama. So much drama, in fact, that the more squeamish might be justified in rising and complaining if it were not for chastening memories of the sobs and snorts with which Caruso used to dress up the "Vesti la giubba." Certainly you knew yesterday that Canio was really feeling bad.

A New Baritone as Silvio.

Robert Weede, a new baritone with a finely textured voice and an agreeable stage manner, was the Silvio. Giuseppe Cavadore sang Beppe, and Vivian Della Chiesa, Nedda.

But it takes more than a cast to make a performance. In this case the conductor, young Angelo Canarutto, took his promising material and made a superb show out of it. It was exciting to hear how the orchestra, as well as the principals and the chorus, responded to Canarutto's enthusiasm and sincerity. Phrases were tremendously alive, tone was sharp and clean and incisive.

"Martha's" gay little tunes sparkled amiably away thru the short evening, with Helen Jepson singing brilliantly in the title rôle and Joseph Bentonelli using his soft, hornlike voice to good advantage in Lionel's more endearing passages. The Nancy was versatile Ada Paggi, the Plunkett, indispensable Virgilio Lazzari. Pompilio Malatesta made a comical likable Tristan. Leo Kopp, conductor of the evening, maintained a strong, but sufficiently flexible line.

TRIANGLE DEATH LEAP IS CALLED SUICIDE BY JURY

Miss Helen Hacker, a divorcée, of St. Louis, Mo. calmly told a coroner's jury yesterday of events leading to the death leap Friday night of her love rival, Mrs. Elizabeth Sacksteder, 45 years old, from the eighth floor apartment of the latter's divorced husband at 550 Arlington place. Mrs. Sacksteder jumped from the window after a dramatic conference over the love of Abner F. Sacksteder for Miss Hacker, who is 31.

After considerable quarreling, Miss Hacker testified, Mrs. Sacksteder asked Sacksteder, "Is it she or is it me?" When Sacksteder said he loved Miss Hacker, Mrs. Sacksteder tried to jump from the window. She was stopped the first time, but the second time she was successful, according to Miss Hacker's statement.

Sacksteder, midwest manager for a lithographing company, corroborated details narrated by Miss Hacker. He testified he had attempted to persuade his wife for six years to divorce him, but she refused. He eventually obtained his divorce three years ago on the ground of cruelty. "I'll admit the situation is my fault," he said. The jury returned a verdict of suicide.

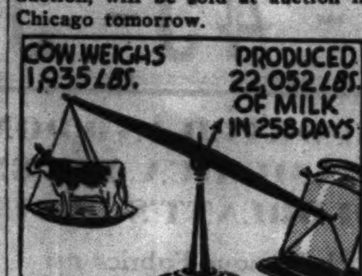
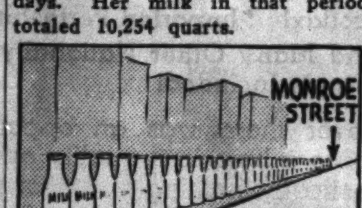
Cornell Ormsby Esteem, 4 year old Holstein owned by Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., which recently set a record for butter fat production, will be sold at auction in Chicago tomorrow.



Weight of the cow compared with weight of milk she produced in 258 days. Her milk in that period totaled 10,254 quarts.



If her milk were bottled in quarts, the bottles (3½ inches in diameter) would reach 57-100 of a mile, roughly the distance from the south end of the Michigan avenue bridge to Monroe street.

Cornell Ormsby Esteem, a 4 year old Holstein cow, arrived at Union stock yards in a special car yesterday from the campus of Cornell university at Ithaca, N. Y. where she recently set a record for butter fat production that makes her a new world's champion for Holstein cows of her age.

She will be sold tomorrow afternoon when 45 pure bred Holsteins, consigned from leading herds thruout the country, are offered at auction. The sale will start at 1 p. m. in the International amphitheater at 43d and Halsted streets.

Esteem still has nearly a month to go on her 305 day test. She passed the former record on Oct. 31. At that time she had been on test 258 days and had produced 22,052 pounds [10,254 quarts] of milk containing 885 pounds of butter fat. Esteem was declared all-American junior yearling in 1936. She weighs 1,935 pounds.

Benefit Dinner-Dance Today for Fox River Sanitarium

The Service club of the Fox River sanitarium will give a benefit dinner-dance in the Belden-Stratford hotel at 6 p. m. today. Proceeds will go toward the milk fund of the sanitarium, which is located at Batavia. Mrs. Harry Blum is general chairman, and Mrs. William Romanoff is program chairman.

SPECIAL TRAINED MANAGERS NAMED TO DIRECT CENSUS

Chicago Area Offices to Be Opened Next Month.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The appointment of 150 area managers and assistant managers who will direct the taking of the 1940 census was announced today by the census bureau.

The appointees have just completed a special training course planned by the bureau to familiarize them with the complex schedules of questions for the census, and to increase both the efficiency of the enumeration and the accuracy of replies.

They will open area offices early next month in 105 cities. Each area will contain from five to eight census districts, which in turn will be divided into enumeration districts, of which there will be 143,000. District supervisors and enumerators remain to be selected.

Must Instruct Others.

The training of district supervisors, enumerators and clerks will be part of the job of the area manager, who also will correlate the census returns before they are forwarded to Washington.

Thirty-five of the managers and assistant managers named today were permanent employés of the bureau. The others were brought to Washington for training, generally from the areas to which they have been assigned. About 50 assistant managers remain to be named. Their salaries range from $175 to $350 a month.

Chicagoland Appointees.

The appointments announced in the Chicago area are:

ILLINOIS: Chicago—G. W. Screech, Washington, D. C.; assistants, J. E. Carmody, H. Marison, and W. R. Jeffrey, Chicago. Springfield—J. A. Schapers, Quincy. Rock Island—T. A. Brennan, Rock Island. East St. Louis—R. E. Gillespie, Pinckneyville.

INDIANA: Indianapolis—W. A. Knight, Washington, D. C.; assistant, John Duffey, Washington, D. C. Indianapolis—Mark R. Gray, Indianapolis. South Bend, R. H. Ditty, Gary.

IOWA: Cedar Rapids—M. J. Sedlacek, Cedar Rapids; assistant, F. J. Wallace, Glenwood. Des Moines—Ross Ewing, Des Moines; assistant, Nic Le Grand, Burlington.

MICHIGAN: Detroit—W. F. Lehmann, Washington, D. C.; assistants, Carter Swift, Detroit, and J. C. Cabalan Jr., Wyandotte. Lansing—A. J. Belanger, Detroit. Grand Rapids—F. M. Cordero, Detroit.

WISCONSIN: Milwaukee—W. N. Stiefel, Washington, D. C.; assistant, R. J. Smrz, Milwaukee. Green Bay—T. Connor, Washington, D. C.; assistant, E. W. Mackey, Manitowoc. Racine—D. M. Ferris, Boscobel.

Open $200,000 Underpass on Route 16 Near Mundelein

The new $200,000 highway subway in State route 16 under the Milwaukee railroad tracks and U. S. highway 45, three miles north of Mundelein, was opened to traffic yesterday a week ahead of schedule. Opening of the subway followed by ten days the completion and opening of paving of Route 16 from Mundelein northward to Route 45. Connections are made from No. 16 to U. S. 45 with ramps on the northwest and northeast sides. The four lane subway eliminates two crossing hazards.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

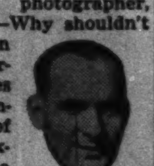
Do you believe one air line should have a monopoly of the trans-Atlantic route or should two companies be granted competitive franchises?

Where Answered.

Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

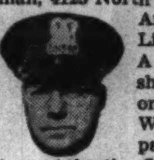
Miss Alice Miller, nurse, 4229 Monroe street.—I think there should be two. Let them all have a chance. It will give more employment and be better for business. Let Pan American Airways and the American Export Air Lines compete with each other for air traffic over the Atlantic.



Albert J. Vicker, photographer, 5230 Cullom avenue.—Why shouldn't both Pan American Airways and the American Export Air Lines have franchises? Competition is the life of business. American Export Air Lines wants to carry freight, which I doubt Pan American could handle alone.

Harry E. Rosenberg, mail carrier, 1322 North Hamlin avenue.—One air line should not have a monopoly of the route—two companies should be granted competitive franchises. It would be better for everybody involved, and stimulate greater efficiency and improvement of service.

Miss Adele Siegel, secretary, 5134 Ingleside avenue. — Competition in business is always good for economical conditions. I think two companies should get franchises. I don't think any business should be monopolized, including that of trans-Atlantic flying.



J. W. Johnson, city traffic patrolman, 4125 North Mango avenue.—The American Export Air Lines, as well as Pan American Airways, should have a franchise on a competitive basis. Why should one company monopolize the trans-Atlantic flying business? We have enough of that in Chicago.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS STORE GUTTED BY FIRE; LOSS $150,000

A loss reported in excess of $150,000 was caused yesterday by a fire that destroyed the Rau & Co. department store, owned by Marshall Field & Co., at 16th street and Otto boulevard in the downtown business district of Chicago Heights. Scores of customers were routed by the blaze.

A crowd of 5,000 persons clogged surrounding streets and highways and impeded fire equipment of other south suburbs which came to the assistance of the Chicago Heights force. The fire swept up from the basement rapidly and thru the roof of the two story brick building. Within two hours, the roof had fallen and walls buckled. The entire stock of merchandise was lost.

John Gansen, commissioner of police and fire, said the fire started in rubbish in the boiler room and gained such headway that it was impossible to control.

PUT ADMISSION FEE ON MEMORIAL TO ROOSEVELT

Public to Be Assessed 25c Per Visit to Library.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 18.—The public will be required to pay for admission to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial library, it was revealed at temporary White House headquarters here today.

The President tomorrow will preside at the laying of the cornerstone of the $350,000 structure designed to contain his papers and perpetuate his memory. Three radio networks—Mutual, Columbia, and National—will relay the address at 2 p. m. Chicago time.

Mr. Roosevelt last year conceived the idea of erecting the memorial and funds to build it were obtained by a committee headed by Frank Walker, former treasurer of the Democratic National committee.

Ready by Next July.

The library will be completed by July 1, 1940, Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett announced. It will be turned over to the government, which will assume the expense of its maintenance thereafter.

"The receipts are expected to repay the government for the cost of maintaining the library," Hassett declared. "The admission fee will be small, probably 25 cents."

Students and persons interested in research work will be permitted to examine the President's papers without charge, Hassett added. Available for study will be Mr. Roosevelt's correspondence as New York state senator, assistant secretary of the navy, candidate for vice president in 1920, governor of New York, and President.

10 Years of Cataloging.

The collection of letters received and written by the President will be enormous. Approximately 6,000,000 documents are involved, it was stated, and the work of cataloging them will take from 10 to 20 years.

President Roosevelt was stuck in the mud for half an hour today. Driving his own car, the President attempted to explore a distant portion of his holdings over a narrow, muddy road. The automobile sank hub-deep into the mire.

Secret service men following the President pushed and shoved until the car was extricated.

7,123 SEE FAMED ITALIAN ART AS EXHIBIT OPENS

A total of 7,123 persons visited the Art institute yesterday on the opening day of the current exhibition of Italian masterpieces. The majority of them came to view the Italian art, 21 paintings and seven pieces of sculpture which have been lent by the Italian government until Jan. 9. Hundreds at a time clustered around Botticelli's majestic canvas, "Birth of Venus," and around Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair." Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday are free days at the Art institute, but there is a special charge every day to enter the galleries housing theh Italian show. This is 25 cents for adults, 10 cents for children.

EASE NERVOUS HEADACHES FAST

Genuine BAYER Aspirin Swiftly relieves the pain that upsets you.

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a glass of water

Let nobody except your doctor try to find and correct the cause of any persistent pain

2. Bayer Aspirin's quick work may change your whole day

BAYER Aspirin Costs Only About 1c a Tablet

If you have work to do, a morning headache calls especially for fast relief. And the sooner it's relieved the better for you. Your own doctor will tell you this.

That's why we emphasize, repeatedly, the speed with which genuine Bayer Aspirin starts to work—starts to relieve headache pain. To get it, all you do the instant pain starts, is take 2 Bayer Tablets with a full glass of water. Relief usually begins in a remarkably short time.

And since genuine Bayer Aspirin now costs only 1c a tablet, two or three cents worth relieves most headaches. So anyone really interested in fast relief can now afford it at this low price.

But be sure when you buy, to get fast-acting Bayer Aspirin. Get it by asking for it by its full name Bayer Aspirin . . . Never ask for "aspirin" alone when you want the real Bayer article.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN "TAKES HOLD" SO QUICKLY

Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet in water and almost instantly it touches moisture, it starts to disintegrate, and is ready to go to work. See for yourself by this test why Bayer Aspirin acts so fast.

NORTHWESTERN'S BILL DE CORREVONT KEEPS NOTRE DAME DEFENDERS BUSY

Bill De Correvont, Northwestern half back (arrow), makes short gain in second quarter of contest with Notre Dame in South Bend yesterday. Northwestern fought off the Irish until the final quarter when with only eight minutes to play Bob Hargrave carried De Correvont's punt to the Purple 41 yard line. From this point on Notre Dame drove to the goal line with Milt Piepul plunging across to score. Lou Zontini ran the ball over for the extra point. It was a muddy battle, contested in the rain before 53,000. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

PIEPUL SCORES TO CLIMAX 4TH QUARTER DRIVE

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 18.—For fifty-two minutes this afternoon Northwestern's Wildcats turned back Notre Dame's relentless attack. Then as the throng of 53,000, which nearly filled the stadium, was almost convinced neither could win, the Irish struck with speed and power. In less than a minute Notre Dame sent Milt Piepul lunging over the Wildcat goal for the touchdown that won this nineteenth game of the fifty year old series, 7 to 0.

Once more, as in so many other games in this rivalry, the Irish had rallied opportunely. Six times Notre Dame had fought deep into Northwestern's territory. All had carried inside the Wildcats' 30 yard line. They had failed against an alert, fighting defense that strengthened to meet each crisis.

Bob Hargrave, sophomore quarter back, sparked the seventh scoring opportunity and with that final chance Notre Dame snatched victory that assuaged memory of the initial defeat last Saturday by inspired Iowa. The victory also kept intact Notre Dame's record of never having lost two games in succession to Western conference elevens.

Hargrave Sparks Drive.

After seven minutes of play in the final period Northwestern seemed finally on the way to put the pressure on the Irish. The Wildcats had the ball in midfield and as the fog and drizzle of this dismal afternoon deepened, none would predict anything but a scoreless tie. Bill DeCorrevont dropped back to kick. He sent a high spiral punt toward the east sideline, the ball almost disappearing against the gray background of the stands.

Hargrave took the ball as three mud splattered Wildcats bore down on him. He was penned against the sideline, yet even as the thousands of Northwestern fans were cheering DeCorrevont's accuracy, Hargrave burst thru this vanguard, sprinted down the side line, and finally was brought down from behind by Floyd Chambers on Northwestern's 41 yard line.

Hargrave was replaced by Steve

Kinnick's Touchdown Passes Beat Gophers in 4th Quarter

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 18.—Iowa's mighty little band of iron men this afternoon transcended all their earlier amazingly dramatic acts by scoring two fourth quarter touchdowns to beat Minnesota, 13 to 9.

The Gophers, thought to have gained their famous momentum after early season skids when they defeated Michigan, 20 to 7, last Saturday, went into the final period today leading by a touchdown and a placement kick.

Great had been Gopher power for three quarters, in which they had done all the scoring. Three periods in which the brutal Gophers made thirteen first downs to three for the iron men.

There couldn't have been a Gopher partisan anywhere in the crowd of 50,000 who didn't think Minnesota was nearing its ninth straight conquest of Iowa.

Kinnick Starts Pitching.

But Minnesota, alas, reckoned without full appreciation of Nile Kinnick's ability to pitch touchdown passes, and Capt. Erwin Prasse's and Bill Green's ability to catch what Kinnick threw.

Kinnick, playing his sixth successive 60 minute game, tossed the first Iowa touchdown pass to Capt. Prasse, another of Iowa's seven 60 minute men, in the second minute of the final quarter. The ball was put in play on Minnesota's 45 yard line. Prasse caught it on the 8 yard line and lunged over for the touchdown. Kinnick added the point with a drop kick. With 3 minutes and 25 seconds to go, Iowa had the ball on the Minnesota 28 yard line. Kinnick faded back and threw to Green, who had evaded coverage in the end zone.

Kinnick Stops Gopher Rally.

This time Kinnick's drop kick try was blocked, but it made little difference. With a four point deficit, Minnesota had to score the equivalent of a touchdown or a safety and field goal to win. Not a chance, said the iron men, and everybody knew they meant it when, in the last seconds of play, Kinnick intercepted a Gopher pass and returned it to midfield.

The trouble with writing about Iowa is that you have to skim over heroes when you tell about the guys who score the points. Today, as usual, the seven habitual 60 minute men, and 10 others who would have been glad to go 60 minutes, all distinguished themselves. The little troupe found the 60 minute business a terrific assignment against ramming, banging Minnesota. But they took it and they loved it and they had enough left to thwart, outthink and outspeed the fine Gopher legion in the last 15 minutes of the torturous going.

Franck Scores for Gophers.

We, along with the 50,000 other witnesses to Iowa's greatest homecoming, are still atwitter, but we are going to pull the record together for you. And, if you don't mind, we're going to start with the detail of that eventful fourth quarter and move backward. After all, somebody may want to know that the first points of the game were made on a field goal from placement by Joe Mernik, Gopher sophomore quarter back, in the eighth minute of the second quarter, and George Franck drove into the coffin corner for a

WISCONSIN TIED BY PURDUE, 7-7, IN 4TH QUARTER

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—This almost turned out to be the day for which Wisconsin's Badgers have been waiting. The power they couldn't put to profitable use in four previous Big Ten struggles finally flashed itself into effectiveness and the cardinal clad warriors saw visions of triumph. But they reckoned without the aerial artistry of their foes, Purdue's Boilermakers, who came up in the final period with a withering pitching barrage which culminated in a final score of 7 to 7 before 32,000 homecomers.

The power that sent the Badgers off to a flying start came mainly from the smashing George Paskvan after the Boilermakers had erred by fumbling on their 31 yard line in the first period. Eight plays, the first of which netted nothing, was all the Badgers needed to melt down those thirty-one yards. In four of these eight assaults was Paskvan, knifing the Purdue wall until he found himself over the enemy goal line. But thereafter the Badgers were too busy trying to run down the Boilermakers' baffling pass attack.

Four Passes Click.

The Boilermakers began warming up their passing game in the third period and just as the session was about to close took possession of a Badger kick on their own 44 yard line. Then they really took to the air. Six of the first eight plays in the fourth quarter were pitches from either Mike Byelene or Lou Brock. Four of the six passes found their mark, the fourth success of the overhead thrust dropping into the arms of Brock on the one foot line. All he had to do was to fall over the goal after which Fred Montague's toe furnished the tying point.

The pitching of Byelene and Brock was so extensive that it totaled 28 attempts. The Badgers, awed by the number of receivers, saw their enemy complete 15 of the 28. On passing alone the victors accumulated a staggering 182 yards to a mere forty-seven picked up by running the ball. The Badgers stayed on the ground with one exception almost to the finish. Then the usual desperation overtook them and they raised their total to five, one of which was completed

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 18—Hurling Hal Hursh and Tuffy Brooks, two Indiana university football workmen with nicknames, and Joe Tofil, who didn't have a personal soubriquet until today, collaborated this bright afternoon to help the Hoosiers to a 7 to 7 tie against Michigan State college before a homecoming crowd of 17,100.

After Full Back Jack Amon had given the Spartans a lead on a touchdown in the first period, Tofil entered the game in the third quarter to dive over from the one yard line and Eddie Herbert added the extra point which matched the Spartans' placement by Les Bruckner. Tofil henceforth will be dubbed Stowaway Tofil. The Campbell, O., junior full back of the Hoosiers supposedly was left at home with an injured leg, but with the ebullience of youth managed to find his way over here on the Indiana train and insisted on playing.

Too Much Hursh and Brooks.

Hursh and Brooks lived up to their nicknames to the fullest. The former pitched in the form that has made him one of the ablest passers in the Big Ten. The latter played thruout except for the eight minutes in which Tofil relieved him at full back. Even the homecomers were cheering Tuffy before the afternoon was over. He ran the ends, smashed the line and was on the receiving end of a number of Hursh's tosses.

The Michigan State touchdown was the product of a thirty-nine yard march in which Amon, Wyman Davis, Ed Pearce, and Center Bill Batchelor were the dominant factors. The Hoosiers' road was a little longer. They traveled fifty-nine yards before Tofil was summoned to take the ball over.

Three field goals were attempted, one by Eddie Herbert of the Hoosiers from the Spartan 17 yard line in the second period and two by Les Bruckner of the Spartans in the fourth quarter, from the 30 and 33 yard lines.

The Hoosiers, after receiving the opening kickoff, soon were made aware that the Spartan line was not fooling, losing fifteen yards on two tackles by Batchelor and another by Amon, before they were forced to kick. The Indiana line then proceeded to duplicate this performance, and this went on until the Spartans, whose kicking, handled by Sherman and Pearce, finally forced the Hoosiers back to a point where Bringle kicked out to his 39 yard line.

Michigan State Scores First.

That was where Michigan State began its march to a touchdown. Wyman Davis started it with a pass to Pearce, good for nine yards, and on the following play decided to tote it himself, picking up eleven yards after finding a hole at right tackle. Pearce then contributed five with a smash at center, then fired a pass to Wy Davis, who was tackled by Herbert on the Indiana 10 yard mark. Sherman then tried a pass to the end zone, and from there on it was the ubiquitous Amon, who took it over in three plays. Bruckner relieved Karas to make the extra point.

About a minute later Wy Davis attempted to field an Indiana punt but fumbled, and Rucinski, who was standing on top of the Spartan back waiting for him to catch, recovered on the Michigan State 49. Brooks then started one of his tours of the afternoon, and with the aid of a pass from Bringle to Rucinski, brought the ball down to the Spartan 21 yard line, but the Hoosiers surrendered there after a fourth down pass went for naught.

Hursh then made his first appearance of the game, shortly after the outset of the second quarter, and his pitching and running gave the Hoosiers another opportunity, culminated by Herbert's wide field goal attempt from the 17 yard line.

The Spartan customers were sent into ecstasies which were canceled

Harmon and Michigan Beat Penn, 19 to 17

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—Michigan nipped Pennsylvania 19 to 17 today, but the football game, a thriller right down to the finish, was just a backdrop to the brilliant duel staged by two fine backs—Tom Harmon and Frank Reagan.

This pair, Harmon the Michigan flyer and Reagan the Quaker quarter back, played out their string to just about a tie as 57,000 cheered them on in Indian summer weather.

Harmon Gets Best Support.

In the end, however, it was Harmon who received just a mite more support from his teammates to turn the tide to the Wolverines in this 18th renewal of an historic gridiron series dating back to '99.

The break in Harmon's favor came when he converted what appeared to be a seventeen yard loss into a sprinting, swerving sixty-three yard run for a touchdown. This occurred before the folks had settled down at the start of the second half. Michigan had taken the kickoff on its own 35 and after one play which gained two yards Harmon started a sweep to the left.

Here Reagan's support failed. Three times his teammates had sure tackling shots at terrific Tommy—and three times they missed.

Tommy Looks 'em Over, Then Runs.

Harmon's path was blocked to the left, so he calmly turned around, and as Penn defenders chased him, dashed all the way back to his own 20 yard line before heading in the right direction again. Hastily formed interference threw him thru his pursuers, and suddenly he was in the clear, off and running for what spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

Even with that beautiful piece of running, Harmon didn't have much on Reagan, who was as fine a back today as the Quakers have seen in years. Where Harmon scored two

BUCKEYES ROUT ILLINI TO GAIN SHARE IN TITLE

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 18. — The strongest football team that has come out of Ohio State in several years today clinched a share of the Western conference championship by whipping Illinois, 21 to 0. A crowd of 46,643, huddled under oilskins and umbrellas, sat through a drizzling rain to watch the Buckeyes roll up their fifth straight conference victory.

Ohio State tonight is the only undefeated team in Big Ten competition. A triumph over Michigan at Ann Arbor next Saturday would give the Scarlet and Gray its first undisputed title since 1920, when Hoge Workman pitched a forward pass to Truck Meyers in the end zone for the winning touchdown in the last second of play. Illinois was the opponent that historic afternoon.

Ohio State shared the championship with Minnesota in 1935. In addition to its undivided honors in 1920, the Scarlet and Gray finished on top of the conference standings in 1916 and 1917, when Chick Harley was burning up Big Ten gridirons.

Score in First Five Minutes.

No last minute heroics were required today. Ohio scored its first touchdown after four and a half minutes of the first quarter and Illinois never had a chance thereafter. The Buckeyes scored twice in the opening period, once in the third, and had a fourth touchdown canceled by a penalty for tripping in the second quarter.

Ohio State in its flash to the conference heights has defeated Northwestern, Minnesota, Chicago, Indiana, and Illinois.

Today's score might have been greater had the Buckeyes employed their best combination as long as they usually do. Forty-eight players broke into the Ohio lineup. The traffic from the bench to the field in the last quarter looked like State and Madison at Chicago's noon hour.

Illini Miss Early Chance.

Illinois had its only real scoring opportunity immediately after the opening kickoff. George Rettinger, Illini full back, intentionally kicked out of bounds and the ball auto-

HAWKS HOPE TO BREAK JINX OF BRUINS AT HOME

Boston Wins Ten Straight Over Chicago.

Home Again

BLACKHAWKS.		BRUINS.
Karakas	Goal	Brimsek
Cooper	R. D.	Clapper
Smith	L. D.	Portland
Thoms	C	Cowley
March	R. W.	Hill
Bentley	L. W.	Conacher

Alternates: Hawks—Johnny Gottselig, Cully Dahlstrom, Jeff Desilets, George Allen, Les Cunningham, Bill Carse, and Art Wiebe.

Bruins—Jack Shewchuck, Flash Hollett, Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer, Gordon Pettinger, Herb Cain, and Art Jackson.

The Blackhawks, who have revealed themselves as rather warm gents on their own ice, whatever may be said of their misfortunes abroad, tonight will play the champion Boston Bruins on the said home ice.

Mel Hill.

Thus far this season in Chicago Stadium the Hawks have whipped the Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 2, and the New York Americans, 2 to 1. They have not lost nor suffered a tie in the Stadium, a fact which leads them and their ardent followers to suspect that tonight would be a good time to end the spell the Bruins have held over them. Last season, you know, the Bruins beat the Hawks in all eight games between the two teams. This chain, linked with a Chicago loss near the close of the 1937-'38 season and the lucky outcome Tuesday night, when the Bruins won in overtime after the Hawks had led up to the last seven minutes of regulation time, makes it 10 straight.

Don't Expect Bruins to Be Easy.

The Hawks do not expect the Bruins to be any easier because of the fact the Bruins will play their road games without the services of the great Eddie Shore. The management had ample warning of the plan thru which Shore plays home games but spends the time the Bruins are traveling managing his Springfield, Mass., minor league team. So they are well equipped in the defense department with Dit Clapper, Jack Portland, Flash Hollett, and a newcomer, Jack Shewchuck.

The Bruins were knocked off in their first two games this season, but don't expect to lose two in a row the remainder of the season. Two of the reasons for this optimism are the youngsters Left Wing Roy Conacher and Goalie Frankie Brimsek.

Two Win Trophies.

Conacher last season won the Calder rookie trophy and Brimsek the Vezina trophy, the award for the best goalie. The team, in addition to winning the Stanley cup, set a new scoring record under the rules which have prevailed since Dec. 29, 1929. That's when restrictions were placed on the forward pass. In the regular phase of last season the Bruins won 36 games, lost 10, and tied 2 for 74 points. They had a team total of 156 goals. Twenty-six of these goals were scored by Rookie Conacher and 15 by Bill Cowley, veteran center. Conacher also had 11 assists and Cowley 31.

The Bruins' so-called sauerkraut line, composed of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer, and Woody Dumart, was second in the National league, surpassed only by the New York Rangers' line, composed of the Colville brothers and Shibicky.

MARYVILLE IS FORCED TO PASS UP BOWL GAME

Maryville, Mo., Nov. 18 (AP).—Looks like the Brain Bowl game between Maryville Teachers and Slippery Rock Teachers of Pennsylvania is off.

Uel Lamkin, Maryville president, said tonight seven of the outstanding men will leave for National Guard training Nov. 24, to be gone a week.

The St. Joseph [Mo.] Chamber of Commerce had invited Maryville to play there Nov. 25 against Slippery Rock, which wound up its season today with a 54 to 0 victory over the California, Pa., Teachers. Maryville defeated Warrensburg Teachers 12 to 0 in its closing game.

"If they want to make a proposal for after Dec. 2," Lamkin said, "we will consider it, but they will have to take all the risks as to attendance."

MIDNIGHT STAR SOLD FOR $13,000 AT HORSE SALE

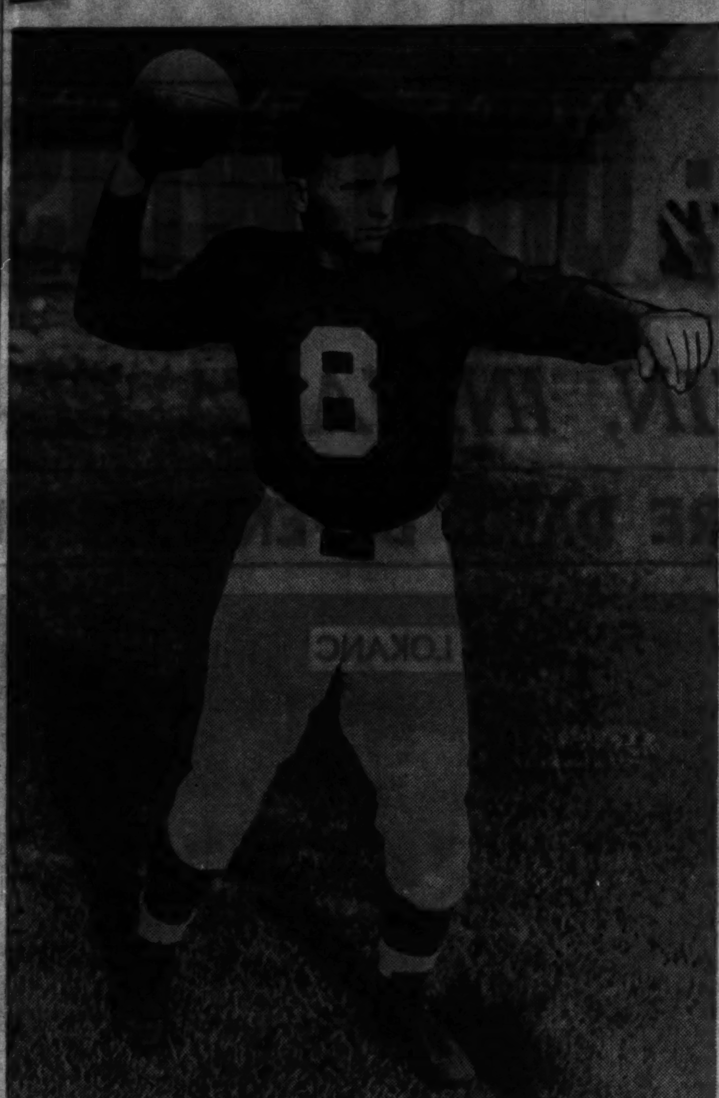
A two day public auction of 153 show and bridle path horses ended last night at the International Amphitheater with sales aggregating $80,325 for an average price of $525 per horse. The top prices went to Midnight Star which brought $13,000; Hellzapoppin, $3,000; Ann Sheridan, $1,325; Belle De Luxe, $1,300, and Ran Wild, $1,250.

The horses were consigned by owners from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Texas, New Jersey, and New York.

English Race Season Ends; Tutor Wins at Manchester

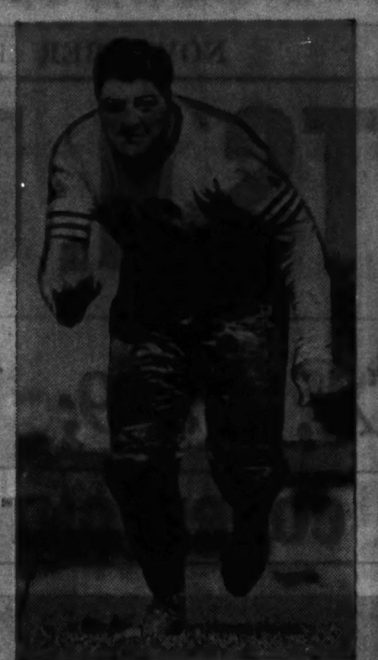
MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Earl of Rosebery's 3 year old Tutor today won the Manchester November handicap which ended the English flat racing season. Lady Nuttall's Wayward Miss was second and the Marquess of Zetland's Beinn Dearg third.

O'BRIEN AND MATES MEAN TO MAKE IT TOUGH FOR BEARS



Little Davey O'Brien, star passer from Texas Christian, who has just found himself in professional football, intends to make his tosses count when the Philadelphia Eagles meet the Bears in a National league game in Wrigley field this afternoon. O'Brien was a member of The Tribune's 1939 All-Star team.

Columbia's Sid Luckman, who is quite a passer himself, will start for the Bears today at quarter back.



Big George Musso, Bear guard, is as good as ever and on the way to another all-league berth, an honor that will be nothing new to him.

DETROIT WHIPS MANHATTAN ON EARLY RUSH, 36-13

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 18 [U. P.].—The University of Detroit reached its highest offensive pitch of the year today in a running and passing exhibition that defeated Manhattan College 36 to 13 here before 10,253 spectators.

The Titans piled up a lead of twenty-three points in the first period and added two last period touchdowns to complete the rout.

Detroit scored nine points in the first six plays of the game. John Supulski of Manhattan was forced to down his kick, blocked by Bill Schauer of Detroit, in the Manhattan end zone, giving the Titans a two point safety, and two plays later a 55 yard touchdown pass to Schauer from Al Chesquiere marked the beginning of the end.

Before the period was over Chesquiere had floated another touchdown pass to Frank Hayes, and still another to Quarter Back John Biringer.

Woman Gridiron Fan Braves Fire; Saves 2 Tickets

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 18 (AP).—Scantily clad occupants of the Lexington College of Music building were routed by an early morning fire today. Among them was Mrs. Mary Barnett, 24, who, upon reaching safety, dashed back into the burning structure. She emerged a few minutes later. Triumphantly, she waved two tickets to the Kentucky-Tennessee football game Nov. 30 which she had left in her room.

Richmond Near Unbeaten Season; Wins Again, 26-7

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 [Special]. —The University of Richmond moved to within one game of an undefeated season today when it won from Hampden-Sydney, 26 to 7. Richmond scored three touchdowns in the first period and one in the second.

Bears to Start Dream Backs Against O'Brien and Eagles

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

One year ago there were in the United States approximately 1,000 college coaches who were wont to wake up abruptly in the dead of night, gibbering of a back field that danced maddeningly thru their dreams. Lucky George Halas, the keeper of the Bears, sleeps well these nights. He has this quartet in the flesh and it is ready to kickoff today in Wrigley field against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Beginning at 2 o'clock, when the Bears apply themselves to the business of remaining in the National Football league championship race, Sid Luckman, the Brooklyn trucking magnate, will be at quarter back, doing mental gymnastics with 369 plays. Billy Patterson, a Baylor boy with a Texas drawl and a slighshot arm, will be at left half back. Full back will be filled to overflowing with talent in the person of Bill Osmanski, a bald, limber limbed dental student from Holy Cross. And at right half back, Bob MacLeod, the toast of Dartmouth, will bend a strong back to supply the interference.

Back Field to Dream About.

This is the backfield of many a coach's dreams, four young men whose deeds qualified them for THE TRIBUNE's All-Star team last August, but who never before got into a game as a unit. Ahead of them will be the massive Bear line, made all the more massive by the addition of Jack Torrance, the 295 pound weight thrower from Louisiana State. Torrance replaces Russ Thompson at right tackle in the starting lineup. Other changes place Chet Chesney at center and Dick Plasman and Don Siegel at the ends.

On the other side of the line, the Eagles, just beginning to find their wings, will send forth Bill Hewitt, Davey O'Brien, and Bree Cuppoletti, among others. Hewitt, O'Brien and Cuppoletti are well known in Chicago, Hewitt and Cuppoletti for what they did as pros and O'Brien for what he did not do in the All-Star game. Davey, fortified by a league record breaking performance against Green Bay last week, comes back today to regain lost prestige and the Bears are hoping he does not complete 19 passes again as he did in the Packer game.

Detroit Invades Cleveland.

While the Eagles are striving to accomplish a miracle in Wrigley field, Detroit, tied with Green Bay for the western division lead, will limp over to Cleveland. Green Bay plays the Dodgers in Brooklyn and the Cardinals, who still are in the league, pay a visit to Washington. Pittsburgh at New York completes the day's schedule.

There undoubtedly is something to be said for both sides in the controversy over Detroit's refusal to release its player rights to Coach Dutch Clark of the Rams, but it cannot be said in Detroit and Cleveland. The Lions regard the request as some subtle stratagem to help Clark enrage the Rams. Unbiased observers acquainted with Clark disagree. Clark has felt all along that his team will be able to beat the Lions and after seeing the Bear game last week he was more optimistic than usual. Cleveland, like Philadelphia, has been improving steadily. Detroit, on the other hand, has had its hands full the last few weeks attempting to maintain a championship pace against the Bears, Packers and Giants and goes into Cleveland well shaken up by injuries.

Loss Might Be Fatal to Lions.

Detroit has reached that stage of the race where it will be almost fatal for it to lose. Green Bay does not figure to have much trouble with a crippled Dodger eleven today and after the Brooklyn engagement the Packers will have two weeks to get ready for the Lion game. Meanwhile Detroit still has Washington, no soft touch in any man's league.

The Cardinals hope to get Marshall Goldberg away for another touchdown today, but their chief hope against Washington is the passing of Jack Robbins, veteran back, who is said to be ready to resume his place in the back field after several weeks of curtailed activity because of injuries. Even with Robbins, however, the Cardinals do not figure to overthrow a machine that has been able to pile up 40 points on three different occasions and has bowed only to the Packers.

Pittsburgh's invasion of the Polo Grounds will give the Giants an opportunity to get back in stride after scares from the Dodgers and Cardinals.

DECISION IRKS PENN FANS; THEY PUNCH OFFICIALS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—Overzealous spectators at the Penn-Michigan football game today didn't like the decision on which the clash ended, so they took it out on two of the officials with a punch or two.

Pennsylvania had tried an onside kickoff in order to get possession of the ball in the fading moments, and, altho the officials ruled in Penn's favor on the play, the Michigan protest which followed took up the game's remaining few seconds.

Penn Coach George Munger ran across the field to protest to Referee H. O. Dayhoff [Bucknell] and Umpire W. G. Crowell [Swarthmore] on a charge that time had not been taken out while the conference with the Michigan players had been going on.

His protest was overruled and he stalked off, but by this time several hundred spectators had surrounded officials. One or two were seen to toss punches at the officials before the group pushed its way thru the gates.

Reed Blushingly Fidgets in Glare of Great Season

Goldendale, Wash., Nov. 18 (AP).—Intellectual Reed college's just for fun football team concluded an undefeated and untied season today and headed home for the doghouse.

It was certain the 36 to 0 slaughter of the Goldendale CCC camp eleven would not touch off a warm hearted rally at the Portland campus where Rhodes scholars are a dime a dozen and big shot athletes a pain in the neck.

Reed college selects its students on the basis of brains rather than athletic brawn. Students, faculty and alumni, thoroly embarrassed by the obscure but nevertheless undeniable position of the team in the list of unsullied college elevens, have already brought pressure for a losing team next year and a special fund to pay football players not to enroll.

Dr. Dexter M. Keezer, former Baltimore newsman and ex-NRA official, has outlined a code of punishment. For bringing attention to Reed college athletics, the president has forbidden the scholarly gridmen access to laboratories and libraries for five days, one day for each victory.

Reed's record for the season:

Reed 14, Multnomah college 13; Reed 7, Pacific College of Newberk 6; Reed 27, Goldendale CCC 0; Reed 7, Pacific College of Newberg 0; Reed 36, Goldendale CCC 0.

There's one consolation for the scholars. Reed seldom achieves notoriety from the record of its football team.

Cornell Rolls on; Dartmouth Beaten, 35-6

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 18 [Special].—Reverting to its superb form of the Ohio State game, Cornell went on the rampage today to register its most decisive victory over Dartmouth since 1921 and add to its stature among the nation's unbeaten elevens.

A crowd of 16,000, the largest ever to gather in Memorial stadium for a football game, saw the Big Red strike like an avalanche to bury the Green under a 35 to 6 score.

Behind scythelike blocking Cornell's fast, hard running backs broke loose almost at will. Hal McCullough riddled the Green's secondary with his passes, which accounted for 110 yards of the 437 gained by the Big Red.

FORDHAM, 13; ST. MARY'S, 0.

New York, Nov. 18 [Special].—Fordham today continued its winning ways against St. Mary's by giving the Galloping Gaels a decisive whipping in the Polo Grounds. Troubled in the opening moments by the tricky passing attack of the Gaels, the Rams steadied and went on to a 13 to 0 triumph in the presence of 34,800 spectators.

At the end of the first half the two old rivals, fighting their ninth annual battle, were deadlocked, 0 to 0, and it was not until only two minutes remained in the third period that the Rams were able to break thru.

Alex Yudikaitis, 6 foot 2 inch end, crossed the goal line after taking a forward pass from Steve Kazlo on a play covering forty yards. The Rams added a second touchdown in the final period when Dom Principe went thru the left side of the Gaels' line for fifteen yards.

Wash. State's March Whips Stanford, 7-0

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Washington State put over a touchdown in the first period of its Pacific Coast conference game with Stanford today and then protected it for a 7 to 0 decision.

Washington State's score climaxed a seventy-one yard drive, the only sustained advance of the game. Starting from their own 29 the Cougars pushed over in 15 plays, Full Back Dick Renfro hitting left guard for the touchdown from the 1 yard line. Fred Brown, veteran end, kicked the point.

U. C. L. A., 0; SANTA CLARA, 0.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Santa Clara university and the Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles battled to a scoreless standstill today in a football game that was slow for 59 minutes and jammed with excitement in the final 60 seconds.

The Uclans finally mustered together a sustained drive in the fading moments of the nonconference engagement, and with Half Back Kenny Washington and Full Back Leo Cantor leading the drive, swept from within the shadows of their own goal posts to the Santa Clara 4 yard line in a march that brought the 50,000 spectators to their feet.

CANINE KINGS, QUEENS TO HAVE THEIR BIG DAY

Western Specialty Show to Open Saturday.

BY BOB BECKER.

Blueblooded kings and queens of dogdom, expertly groomed and ready for competition, will assemble in Chicago this week when the 29th annual dog show of the Western Specialty Clubs association is held in the Coliseum. This big show, which last season had an entry of more than 1,200 dogs, opens Saturday morning in the Coliseum and continues through Sunday evening. According to A. F. Kramer, president of the organization, there will be 24 breeds of dogs in this year's show. Entries come from all over the United States.

The 24 breeds which will be represented in the show are: English setter, Irish setter, cocker spaniel, English springer spaniel, dachshund, boxer, collie, Dobermann-Pinscher, German shepherd, great Dane, airedale terrier, wire and smooth fox terrier, Irish terrier, Scottish terrier, Sealyham terrier, Chihuahua, Pekingese, Pomeranians, Boston terrier, bulldog, chow chow, schipperke, bull terrier, and schnauzer.

Have Large Trophy List.

An unusually large trophy list and handsome sums in the form of cash prizes has been arranged by the various clubs for this year's showing. Practically every club will offer special trophies for the breeds in addition to the numerous prizes offered by members. The show is the greatest of its kind held annually in the central states, with the finest dogs in the country being sent to Chicago to participate in the competition for trophies and cash prizes.

Children's handling classes again sponsored by THE TRIBUNE will be one of the popular entertainment features of the show this year. There will be four classes for boys and girls depending on the age of the contestant. No boy or girl is required to pay an entry fee for any of these classes and contestants do not need to own the dog they take into the judging ring with them. The only show requirement on dogs used in the handling classes is that they are entered in some regular class of the dog show.

Tribune to Award Trophies.

Mrs. Janet Henneberry of Golf, Ill., and Livingston Osborne of Ravinia will judge the children's handling classes. THE TRIBUNE is awarding gold plated trophies for first and second in each of the four handling classes, gold plated buttons for those who place third to tenth, and two handsome trophies to the first and second best boy or girl winners in the final competition.

In addition to the children's handling classes, in which the boys and girls demonstrate their knowledge of showing a dog in the ring, this year's show also will have on its program two interesting obedience tests. Both the German Shepherd Dog Club of the Great Lakes and the Doberman Pinscher club will conduct such events.

One new breed, the schipperke, will be on exhibition and competing in this show for the first time in the history of the Western Specialty club.

Swedes to Meet Germans Today in Soccer Match

BY OFFSIDE.

More than 20 games including four outstanding contests are listed in today's International league soccer schedule. The Swedish-Americans who eliminated the Vikings after playing two games in national cup competition meet the strong German-Americans at Kedzie avenue and Roscoe street. The Swedish-Americans, present Amateur league champions, have one of their best teams in years.

The Vikings, eliminated for the National Cup, have a hard match in Winnemac Park stadium when they oppose the American Nickelsids. The American Eagles who were upset by the Oak Park two weeks ago, but who still lead the First Division of the International league face the Fichte in Jefferson Park.

Sparta which won over the Manhattan Brewers last week in the first match for the Joe Triner cup will keep in trim with a game against the Kickers of the Major Division.

Sparta again will face the Manhattans two weeks from today for the National Challenge cup in Sparta stadium, and the Swedish-Americans who complete Chicago's contenders play the Milwaukee Hungarians in Winnemac Park on the same day. Today's schedule:

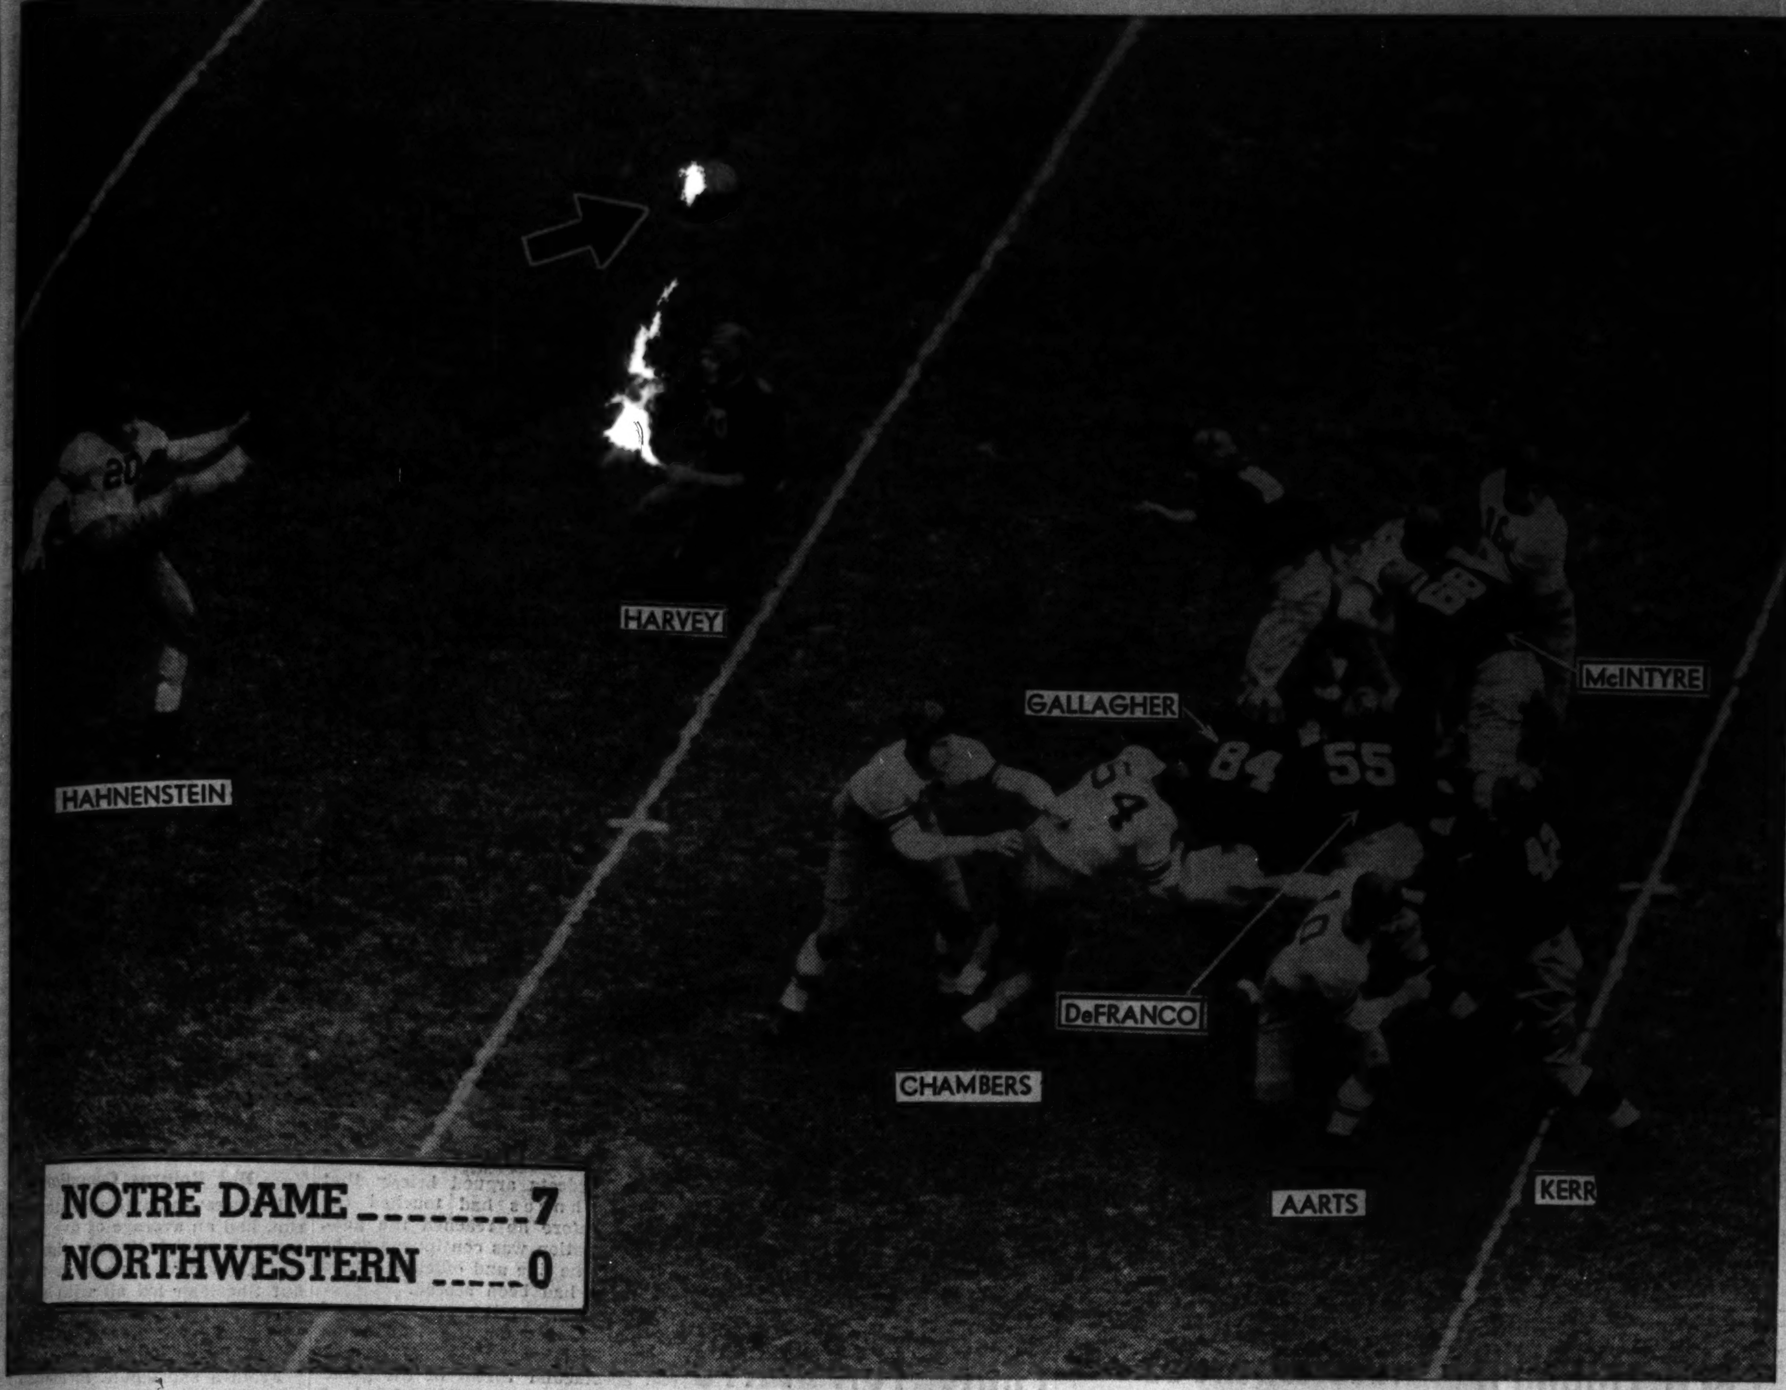
Notre Dame Defeats Northwestern—Wisconsin and Purdue Tie—Iowa Beats Minnesota



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ollie Hahenstein (No. 20), Northwestern left half, punts in the first quarter of yesterday's losing battle with Notre Dame in South Bend. The Wildcats fought off the Irish for three quarters, but succumbed to a determined drive in last eight minutes. Milt Piepul scored for Notre Dame.

touchdown after 12 minutes of the third quarter.

Iowa's breathtaking behavior started seconds after the final quarter began. Hal Van Every had kicked over the goal. Both sides were offside. Van Every had another chance to punt out of bounds but again he kicked over the goal and this time it stuck as a touchback. Iowa required four plays to take the ball from its own 20 yard line to its first touchdown.

The first of these four plays was a pass from Kinnick to Buzz Dean. Dean ran eight yards after taking the pass on the 30 yard line. Moreover the play lulled the Gophers on the variant formation that was to beat them later on. Another pass, Kinnick to Dean, gave Iowa its fifth first down of the game and put the ball to the Minnesota 47 yard line. Kinnick made two yards on the Gopher 45 yard line, then cut loose the aforesaid touchdown pass to Capt. Prasse.

It appeared the Hawks might get started on their victory touchdown earlier than they did, for on the second play after the kickoff Bob Sweiger fumbled and Mike Enich, one of those habitual hour or nothing gents, recovered on Minnesota's 36 yard line. This threat, however, subsided when Sweiger made amends by intercepting one of Kinnick's passes.

Then On to Victory.

Shortly afterward things started happening Kinnick caught Hal Van Every's punt on his 12 yard line and returned nine yards. A pass, Kinnick to Dean, put the ball on Iowa's 38 yard line. A pass was intercepted by Van Every but interference was called on Minnesota and the pass was adjudged complete on Minnesota's 45 yard line. Green skirted his left end to the Minnesota 38 yard line and Kinnick bumped the Gophers' left end for a first down on Minnesota's 28 yard line. At this juncture, Kinnick passed to Green for a touchdown and victory.

Mernik's placekick, which put the Gophers ahead in the eighth minute of the second quarter, followed progress which got going after Kinnick had punted out of bounds on the Minnesota 47 yard line. Franck, Van Every, and Franck again, plunged for Minnesota's sixth first down of the game, on Iowa's 40 yard line. A pass, Van Every to Franck, made it first down on Iowa's 30 yard line.

Mernik Boots One Over.

The pair started ramming again, Van Every for four, Franck for four, and Van Every for first down on Iowa's 16 yard line. Van Every, Marty Christiansen and Franck made it fourth down and four yards to go, whereupon Van Every held the ball on the 16 yard line for Mernik's successful placement kick.

Later in the second quarter Iowa got a break when Christiansen fumbled and Prasse recovered on Minnesota's 42 yard line. A pass, Kinnick to Evans, was good for 21 yards and placed the ball on Minnesota's 21 for Iowa's second first down of the half.

The threat vanished when Van Every, who had seen Franck intercept a Kinnick pass on the 10 yard line in the first quarter duplicated the act by also intercepting on the 10 yard line. The half ended shortly afterward with the Gophers struggling to negotiate their ninth first down

Gophers Score on Power.

The Minnesota touchdown began to materialize midway in the third quarter, after Kinnick had punted out of bounds on the Minnesota 29 yard line. Then began a bruising march which carried the Gophers to the Iowa 5 yard line. On fourth down and four to go, Franck sped around his left end, going out of bounds inches beyond the goal line. Mernik's attempted conversion was blocked.

The list of iron men on the squad in this week's renewal of Iowa's spectacular thrill-packed victories was led, of course, by Kinnick, who turned in that sixth straight 60 minute performance. Capt. Prasse and Dick Evans, the ends, went the route; Enich and Wally Bergstrom survived the bruising line play all the way. Ken Pettit at left guard and Bruno Andruska at center completed the list.

ILLINI FIND LAST THREE YARDS ARE EXTRA LONG

An Ohio State fumble on its 8 yard line in the first minute of yesterday's game in Columbus with Illinois almost proved costly. The Buckeyes refused to budge, however, after this Illini plunge carried to the 3 yard line. Ohio State then tossed the invaders for a five yard loss and took the ball on downs on their 8 yard line to start a march of their own for a touchdown in the first five minutes. Ohio State's victory assured it of a tie for the Western conference title. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

matically was given to Ohio State on its 35 yard line.

Buckeyes March 92 Yards.

It was at this point Ohio State showed it has what it takes under its own goal posts. John Hallabrin replaced Jim Langhurst, who incurred a knee injury, at full back for Ohio. A running play in which Smith again carried the ball for the Illini collapsed at the line of scrimmage. On fourth down Smith swung wide to his right, but was grounded for a five yard loss by Don Scott who tackled him so hard Smith was unable to rise for nearly two minutes. The ball went to Ohio State on its 8 yard line.

From this point the Buckeyes combined speed, power and deception to score a touchdown without yielding possession of the ball on a ninety-two yard march. On a fake kick Strausbaugh bolted thru his right tackle, sidestepped a defensive half back and sped forty-seven yards to Illinois' 45 before Smith chased him out of bounds. Hallabrin on a delayed buck punched center for nine yards. Zadworney went thru left tackle for a first down on Illinois' 32.

Mel Brewer, Illinois captain, stopped Hallabrin for no gain at center and Jim Reeder brought down Hallabrin after a three yard advance. Then came a play that completely fooled the Illini.

Strausbaugh Surprises.

Strausbaugh, who never had thrown a forward pass for Ohio State, faded deep and tossed one to Scott, who was uncovered in the end zone, for a touchdown. Scott added the point from placement, with Hallabrin holding the ball.

Ohio State scored a few minutes later on a drive that started with Strausbaugh's eighteen yard return of Ralph Ehni's quick kick to the Buckeyes' 45. Sarkkinen grabbed Scott's pass for a thirty-one yard gain and a first down on Illinois' 24 yard line. Two plunges netted only four yards, but on third down Strausbaugh broke thru his right tackle, eluded two tacklers and raced all the way to the goal line. Scott's place kick was good and Ohio State led, 14 to 0.

Illinois had a chance to open up in the second quarter when it got the ball on the Buckeyes' 36 yard line after a clipping penalty. Purvis passed to Rettinger for eleven yards and the same combination added four yards over center. Rettinger got only a yard at center and two passes fell incomplete, the second one in the end zone. Ohio was given the ball on its 20.

Another Illini Threat Fails.

Purvis revived Illinois hopes by intercepting Scott's pass on Ohio's 36 yard line. Ehni's pass to Etling was good for nine yards. Rettinger gained a first down thru center on Ohio's 25. Sarkkinen checked Illinois' goalward drive by intercepting a forward from Purvis on his own 27.

Ohio State failed in an attempt to score a field goal in the third quarter. Scott set up the scoring opportunity by intercepting a pass from Purvis on Illinois' 38. Scott flipped an aerial to Hallabrin for a first down on the 28. Two more forwards were knocked down, and after a plunge gained only two yards, Charles Maag, whose field goal defeated Minnesota earlier in the season, tried a place kick from Illinois' 35, but the ball was partially blocked by Reeder and went into the end zone for a touchback.

Illinois couldn't gain, so Ehni punted to Strausbaugh who was nailed in his tracks on Ohio's 33 yard line by Robert O'Neill. Tom Kinkade, a substitute Ohio back, picked his way off right tackle for seventeen yards. Kinkade, Strausbaugh, and Hallabrin alternated in carrying the ball for a first down on Illinois' 40. Then Hallabrin raced to the 24 on a quick opening play.

Illini Caught Napping.

Strausbaugh lay on the ground far to the right in hopes of springing a sleeper play, but he was discovered shortly before the ball was snapped. He remained there, however, pulling two Illinois backs over to cover him. Meanwhile the play, a forward pass from Scott to Sarkinnen went to the other side, and, the brilliant Buckeye end pulled it down in the end zone for a touchdown. Scott's place kick ended the scoring for the day.

Illinois moved from its 39 yard line to Ohio's 18 in the waning moments of play against a lineup liberally sprinkled with third and fourth string reserves. The Buckeyes held for downs and had time for only two plays before the final gun.

RANGERS WIN, 3-1

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The New York Rangers won their first game of the National Hockey league season tonight, defeating the New York Americans, 3 to 1, on a third period scoring burst by the Colville brothers. It was the Americans' fourth straight loss.

Mac Colville opened in the scoring in the third period while Hooley Smith, Americans' defenseman, was serving a penalty. The lead lasted less than four minutes, Tommy Anderson putting the Americans even. With both teams again short and less than five minutes left to play, Neil Colville put the Rangers in front to stay with a 15 foot shot after taking his brother's pass. Mac Colville then wiped out the last Americans' hopes by driving in Murray Patrick's pass with 40 seconds left.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Tulane Green Wave swept over Baker field for three touchdowns in two periods today, then settled back conservatively as the unbeaten southerners defeated Columbia, 25 to 0, before 25,000 spectators.

Tulane's line, averaging better than 200 pounds, charged and blocked to open up inviting holes in the outweighed Lions' defenses. Hard-running backs like Bobby Kellogg, Harry Hays, Fred Gloden, Fred Cassidy, Buddy Banker, and Monette Butler, went pouring along for almost as much yardage as they wanted.

They piled up a net gain of 246 yards. Against that impressive total of rushing gains alone, the Lions could offer only stubborn but definitely outclassed resistance.

Tulane went forty yards in 10 plays for its first score and fifteen yards in three for its second in the opening quarter. Tulane reserves took over at the start of the second quarter and made thirty yards and a touchdown in three plays. With a makeshift lineup operating, the southerners started from their 34 and, seven plays later, sent Butler slicing thru from the 7 yard line in the last 12 seconds.

touchdowns, passed for a third and kicked an extra point, Reagan tallied one six-pointer and spear-headed marches of ninety-two and seventy-three yards, before bowing out in the closing minutes, injured but still wanting to fight.

It's Their Day.

Where Harmon gained 202 net yards in 29 rushes with the ball for an average of 6.1 per crack, Reagan picked up a net of 85 yards in 13 tries for a 6.5 yard average.

Reagan completed 14 passes in 26 tries for 188 yards, and gave a performance at quarter back, particularly in the Quakers' ninety-two yard touchdown drive in the third period, in which there wasn't a flaw. The Quakers used 13 plays in that drive, and Reagan was in on 10 of them, picking up thirty-five yards on the ground and passing for forty-one more before he sliced inside right end for the touchdown.

124th F. A. Wins Opener in Indoor Polo Play, 13 to 11

Defeating the Evanston Polo club, 13 to 11, the 124th Field Artillery, Metropolitan Polo league champions the past two years, made a successful start for its third title last night in the artillery armory.

Lieut. Bill Fergus of the 124th and Bobby Nichoalds of Evanston scored seven goals apiece.

The 124th trio quickly overcame a one point handicap award, and drove in four goals before Nichoalds crashed thru with the first marker for Evanston.

The Hinsdale polo team made an impressive debut in Metropolitan league competition by beating the Meadowbrook club of Milwaukee, 15 to 4, in the first game.

Hinsdale's lineup included polo's only southpaw player, Curtis Mitchell, who accounted for three goals. Top scoring honors went to Claude Mackey, his teammate, with six. George Meier drove in three of Milwaukee's four goals.

PRINCETON BEATS PLUCKY YALE IN 4TH PERIOD, 13-7

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18 [Special].—Princeton provided the victory and Yale the drama today in the 63d renewal of their ancient series of football games. Set back on their heels in the first nine minutes of play by a Yale touchdown and extra point, and then stopped until the last period, the Tigers had the courage and skill to come back in those closing minutes and win, 13 to 7.

Yale earned its opening touchdown by marching from midfield. It was fourth down and Howard Kaye, the place kick specialist, rushed in from the sidelines. Fred Burr knelt to take the pass, but when the pass came Kaye faked the kick, Burr wheeled and ran around his right end, and Yale had a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Princeton smashed from its own 24 yard line to the Yale 1 foot mark, but the Elis took it away there. Hovey Seymour punted out on Yale's 25 and from there the Tigers roared back for the tying touchdown, Peters dashing between Yale's left guard and tackle to the score. Hinchman converted.

Yale took the kickoff and come back to its own 39. Burr dropped back to pass, but some one batted the ball into the hands of Les Rice, Princeton's tackle. Two plays later Wells dodged his way to a touchdown.

NORTHWESTERN IS BEATEN, 7 TO 0, BY NOTRE DAME

Irish Score Touchdown in Fourth Quarter.

Sitko, senior quarter back, and the roaring tribute to Hargrave as he ran to the side lines stirred the Irish varsity. The Wildcats dug in but in the very eagerness of their defense assisted in their defeat. Twice in succession a Northwestern lineman was penalized for charging offside. With these gains Notre Dame advanced to the Wildcats's 31 yard stripe.

Piepul Takes Charge.

Ben Sheridan, whose speed had made him a constant threat despite the slippery gridiron, sliced at Northwestern's left tackle for two yards. Then Sheridan took the ball again, handed it to Steve Juzwik, sophomore right half. On the reverse, Juzwik raced outside the Wildcat right end and finally was pushed out of bounds on Northwestern's 7 yard line.

Juzwik was thrown for a loss of a yard at defensive right tackle. But now Milt Piepul, the smashing Irish full back, took command. He blasted over the Wildcats' left tackle and guard for six yards. Again he carried, this time streaking across to the right side with power that drove to the Northwestern goal.

On the try for point, Sitko fumbled the pass from center, but Lou Zontini, ready to kick, picked up the ball and ran to the left corner of the end zone, diving over the line for the conversion.

Wildcats Protest Point.

The Wildcats argued briefly that Zontini's knees had touched the ground before he reached the goal, but the motion was continuous as he fell over the line and officials agreed the point had been scored.

At the moment it scarcely seemed to matter, yet on the subsequent kickoff, Northwestern made its second spectacular threat of the game. Don Clawson, burly Wildcat full back whose powerful plunges matched those of Piepul, grabbed Zontini's kick and without swerving or dodging, he raced forty-four yards thru the center of Notre Dame's enfilading line, finally being forced to the ground by Sitko and Piepul on the Irish 36.

Northwestern chose to pass, but under the handicaps of the slippery ball and an impregnable Irish defense there was no chance.

Notre Dame's early thrusts into Northwestern territory were equally divided between the first three periods. The first time the Irish got the ball after the kickoff they drove from their own 48 to Northwestern's 11 yard line. Here Zontini's place kick on fourth down was blocked by Bob Daly, the ball being deflected into the Wildcat end zone for a touchback.

In the same quarter Notre Dame drove from midfield to Northwestern's 18 yard line, losing the ball on downs. In the second quarter, after DeCorrevont's run, the Irish lost the ball on downs on the Wildcats' 21 yard line, and later advanced to Northwestern's 27 yard line on Sheridan's run.

Thesing Runs 20 Yards.

Joe Thesing, with a twenty yard sprint, helped the Irish reach Northwestern's 25 yard line early in the third period, but Thesing lost four yards when he slipped and fell on a run at right end, and the rally ended with a short punt which Clawson brought back to his own 25.

Notre Dame's most impressive march before the touchdown assault also came in the third quarter. Stevenson, Zontini and Thesing moved to the Wildcats' 15 yard line, but a third down pass by Stevenson was intercepted by Ollie Hahnenstein.

DeCorrevont made Northwestern's bid for victory on the opening play of the second quarter. On second down, from his own 21 yard line, he hit at the Irish right tackle, was smothered, and then slid outside and into the open. With aid of a block on the defensive right half he came to the west side line and he might have scored except for Ben Sheridan's alertness. Sheridan forced DeCorrevont out of bounds on Notre Dame's 45 yard line.

With the possible exception of Clawson's run with the last kickoff, this was the high point in Northwestern's attack. On the second play, however, whatever chance the Wildcats might have had was handicapped by a fifteen yard penalty for holding and eventually the series of downs ended with DeCorrevont's punt.

Bill Returns Compliment.

DeCorrevont, with advantage of this run, had an average of five yards for carrying the ball nine times. This tied Clawson's average in ten tries, but Sheridan led all with sixty-nine yards in ten efforts. It was against Sheridan that DeCorrevont proved his defensive ability.

From a short punt formation near the close of the second quarter, with the ball on his own 20 yard line, Sheridan swept Northwestern's left end without success. He tried right end and broke loose down the east side lines with two blockers in front of him. Only DeCorrevont barred his path, but the sophomore safety, retreating and keeping Sheridan along the side line, slowed the run until Al Butherus caught up and tackled him. Sheridan's fifty-three yard dash was the longest of the afternoon.

In the few remaining seconds until the half, the Wildcats checked four consecutive pass attempts.

Haman Stars on Defense.

Northwestern's center, John Haman, who was not given relief until the closing minutes, was the backbone in Northwestern's defense. He was in nearly every play. Without doubt he was the outstanding lineman of both teams. Ably assisting in defense was Corne Aarts, Northwestern's right tackle, and Joe Lokanc, left guard.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Those familiar catchwords of college football commentators, "Let's give the game back to the students," have hitherto been taken just about as seriously as that other suggestion about giving the country back to the Indians. But the University of Chicago put the proposal into practice yesterday as the Maroons played Oberlin college on Stagg field. The boys and girls seemed to enjoy it. Oblivious to rain and mist that shrouded the university's venerable Gothic towers, the youngsters watched the Maroons break a 255 to 0 losing streak by beating the Ohioans, 25 to 0.

About 3,000 undergraduates and high school visitors, reinforced by a few alumni of unquenchable spirit, were on hand for the occasion. They applauded the band, they cheered the athletes, and they sang "Wave the Flag for Old Chicago." To them John Davenport, who scored three of the touchdowns and set up the fourth, was just as much of a hero as Five Yard McCarty or the Thomas boys were to the Maroon fans of greater days.

The Maroons got started fairly early in yesterday's game. Midway in the second quarter Russell Parsons, Chicago end, recovered an Oberlin fumble on the visitors' 19 yard line. Davenport then ran left end for seventeen yards. On the following play he went off tackle for a touchdown.

Davenport Scores Again.

A few minutes later the Maroons started a drive from their own 26 yard line. Davenport got loose for thirty-three yards. Louis Letts and Bob Jampolis combined their efforts for nine more. Davenport picked up five yards thru the line. Again he carried the ball on a swing around left end, getting away for twenty-seven yards and a touchdown.

The Maroons made their other two touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Taking the ball on their 38 yard line they advanced to a first down on their opponents' 9 yard line, Davenport doing most of the ground gaining. After Letts had picked up three more, Davenport went around his left end for his third touchdown.

Maroons Drive 85 Yards.

The Maroons marched from their own 15 yard line for their final touchdown. After they had advanced to the Oberlin 46 yard line, Davenport broke away and was dragged down on the 3 yard line. Two plays later Bob Wasem went over. Then Bill Leach came into the back field and drop kicked the extra point.

PASKVAN'S PLUNGE SETS UP TOUCHDOWN FOR WISCONSIN

George Paskvan, Wisconsin star full back (arrow), pounds center for four yards against the Boilermakers to put the ball in position for a touchdown in first quarter of game in Madison. On the next play Paskvan went over for Wisconsin's score. The result still left the Badgers without a conference victory and with only a 14 to 13 triumph over Marquette for the season. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Purdue Comes from Behind in 4th Period to Tie Badgers, 7-7

for seventeen yards. On foot the Badgers harvested 133 yards.

Purdue Threatens Again.

Even tho in eclipse as passers the Badgers were not shaded much in first downs. They clicked for eight of these to Purdue's eleven. Eight of Purdue's were the result of their inclination to pass, two were from scrimmage and one on a penalty. The Boilermakers even had an edge in the art of fumbling.

They let the ball get loose five times but recovered three of their own blunders. The Badgers fumbled only once, just after the score had been tied and it came close to being disastrous. The Boilermakers recovered, rolled up to the 4 yard mark, were driven back by a 15 yard penalty, and then failed in an effort to get the decisive points with a kick.

Here's How Badgers Did It.

Seven minutes of the first period had elapsed when the Boilermakers made the mistake that convinced the Badgers the time had arrived to declare a dividend. After a Badger punt had carried out of bounds on Purdue's 25 yard line, Jack Brown squirmed thru left tackle for three yards but on the next play Leon DeWitte fumbled as he plowed into the wall and Acting Captain Jack Doyle fell on the loose ball on the Boilermakers' 31 yard line.

The first play of the touchdown drive netted nothing, Bob Peterson being checked by Frank Bykowski. On the next, Claude York swung wide to his left for seven yards, then the manhandling Paskvan popped thru right guard for a first down on the 21. B. Peterson hit tackle for six yards. Paskvan smashed his way to the 9 yard line. York found two yards at left tackle, and Paskvan did the rest. On a fake forward pass maneuver he stepped thru to the 3 yard line. Then he waded over Purdue's left tackle for the touchdown, Ted Damos coming in to kick the extra point that gave the Badgers a comfortable 7 to 0 feeling.

A Threat Is Squelched.

Before the first quarter ended the Badgers got themselves into a spot which called for all they had in the way of defense. The Boilermakers intercepted Wisconsin's first passing attempt. Byelene was brought in and just as the second quarter got under way pitched to Brown who was caught from behind by Tom Farris on Wisconsin's 11. On an end around Dave Rankin tore for the corner of the field but was shoved out of bounds by Farris on the 3 yard line. Then two line plays were broken up and a third failed when Farris flattened John Petty on the 7, Wisconsin taking the ball and kicking into safe territory.

Early in the third quarter the Boilermakers got down to Wisconsin's 42 and again to the 33, but each time were forced to kick. Just as the quarter was about to close Schmitz sent a quick-kick to Brock who came back to his 44 yard line. This is where the fifty-six yard touchdown thrust got under way. Embick made a yard as the period ended, but the first play of the last quarter was a pass, Brock to Rankin, which sent the Badgers rolling back to their 39 yard line. After two more plays Byelene passed six yards to Montague. Then Brock passed to Montague who was hauled down on the 15.

By way of varying the assault, DeWitte cut in at left tackle for four yards. Byelene tried to reach a pass from Brock but missed. Then Byelene sailed a short pass straight over center to Brock, who made the catch and fell over the goal for a touchdown. Montague tied the score at 7 to 7 with a place kick.

More Trouble Ahead.

Right after Purdue's tie scoring achievement the Badgers invited more trouble. Bob Peterson fumbled a punt and Dick Potter recovered for Purdue on Wisconsin's 23 yard line. With a pass and a running play the Boilermakers dashed up to the 10 yard line but happily for the Badgers, a fifteen yard penalty was inflicted on the aggressors. Byelene tried to pass but it failed so Montague tried to break the deadlock with a placement from the 35 yard line. The kick barely cleared the goal line.

Bob Peterson picked up Montague's futile placement and lugged it out to the 30 yard line. The Badgers smashed their way past midfield. York, covered by two men, leaped up to grab a pass from Peterson on the Boilermakers' 28 yard line. Then a couple of line plays for short gains were mixed in with a pair of passes into the end zone but the passes went astray and the threat on the Purdue goal simmered out.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 18 [U.P.].—Two lightning touchdown drives enabled Florida to defeat Miami, 13 to 0, tonight and win the state football championship. A crowd of 24,000 saw the Southeastern conference team win on a twenty-five yard touchdown pass, Tommy Harrison to Frank Smoak, and Charlie Tate's two yard plunge in the third quarter.

by an out of bounds at the State 41 yard line. McRae came in as a substitute for Smiley at end, and stepped into the back field to punt from his own 20 yard line. He was rushed and scrambled back almost to his goal line before he passed to Amon, who ran all the way over the Indiana goal line. He was recalled, however, for stepping over the sideline at his 41 yard mark.

Hoosiers Tie It Up.

The third period saw a mutual exchange of fumble recoveries, and then came the sliced punt by Sherman which gave the Hoosiers the chance they made the most of. The timid kick went out of bounds on the Indiana 41 yard line. On a reverse, Hursh to Brooks, the latter sailed around right end for 26 yards before Wy Davis caught him. After Brooks was stopped for a one yard loss, Hursh fired a pass to Harris. The big negro end tossed a lateral to Brooks, who brought the ball to the Spartan 16 yard line.

Brooks got five on a reverse, and then Hursh was halted for no gain as the homecoming throng howled. Hursh was still on the mound, however, and his pass to Harris was good on the 1 yard mark. Brooks was stopped, and then entered Stowaway Tofil, who went over on his first attempt. Herbert added the extra point to tie the score.

Cornhusker Eleven Beats Pitt, 14 to 13

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Nebraska Cornhuskers checked a furious fourth quarter attack to defeat the Pitt Panthers today, 14 to 13, for their second victory over Pitt since 1921. Two sophomores, Full Back Mike Francis and his understudy, Henry Rohn, starred as the Cornhuskers throttled Edgar [Special Delivery] Jones and his mates. The two Nebraskans scored their first collegiate touchdowns, Rohn in the second period and Francis midway in the third.

Herman Rhorig and George Knight provided the winning margin, each kicking a perfect placement.

Francis broke away for a twenty-two yard dash after Nebraska recovered a Pitt fumble and outran Jones into the end zone. Rohn plunged over from the Pitt 1 yard line for his score. George Kracum, Bob Thurbon of Erie, Pa., and Jones were outstanding for Pitt. Kracum tossed a thirty yard pass to Thurbon for the first touchdown in the second quarter, and in the final quarter tossed to End John Stahl for a forty-five yard gain. A few plays later Kracum crossed the goal standing up.

MISSOURI DEALS OKLAHOMA FIRST SETBACK, 7 TO 6

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 18 (AP).—The fighting Missouri Tigers removed Oklahoma from the list of the nation's undefeated teams with a surprising 7 to 6 victory today over the defending Big Six conference champions before 26,000.

The victory, virtually assuring the Tigers the Big Six title, was scored on the recovery of a blocked punt in the third period of a bruising contest. Bob Orf, Tiger end, stepped over the Oklahoma goal line after catching the ball that had bounced 30 feet in the air. Ronald King, a reserve back and outstanding player on the field for the day, place kicked the deciding point.

The Sooners stopped Paul Christman, Missouri's All-American back back field candidate, but were so busy with this job that his mates were effective.

MARQUETTE ENDS SEASON, BEATING TEXANS, 22 TO 19

Last Half Rally Wipes Out 19-8 Lead.

Lubbock, Tex., Nov. 18 [Special].—Marquette university of Milwaukee, after yielding an early lead, fought back here today to defeat Texas Tech, 22 to 19, in a wide open game before 10,000 spectators.

The game was only five minutes old when Don Vosberg, Marquette end, blocked a Tech punt for an automatic safety. Marquette took the ensuing kickoff, and on the first play a pass from Johnny Maltsch to Vosberg was completed to the enemy 2 yard line. Doug Renzel, full back, smashed to the 1 foot line and then went over for a touchdown. Bob Kemnitz failed to convert and Marquette led, 8 to 0.

Late in the first quarter, Texas Tech recovered a Marquette fumble on the Hilltoppers' 39 yard line. A pass was good to the 28 yard line, and on fourth down Bill Dodd passed to C. L. Storrs who took the ball on the 4 yard line and went over. Flusche failed to convert.

Texas Tech went ahead late in the second quarter when, after receiving a punt in midfield, Storrs passed to Francis Bingham, left end, who leaped high for the catch on the 5 yard line and ran to a touchdown. Flusche added the extra point to give Tech a 13 to 8 half time lead.

The Red Raiders increased their lead to 19-8 early in the third quarter on a long touchdown pass, Storrs to Wheelis. Marquette then marched down the field from its own 17, with long passes from Richardson to Coldagelli and Vosberg putting the ball in position before Coldagelli smashed around right end to score. Kemnitz converted to narrow the score to 19 to 15.

Coldagelli shortly thereafter intercepted a Tech pass and went to the home team's 45 yard line. Passes again put Marquette in position before the quarter ended and on the third play of the last period, Richardson tossed to Bob Sleske, reserve end, for the winning touchdown. Kemnitz again added the extra point. Lineups:

Monmouth and Knox Tie, 7-7, in 55th Game

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—Knox and Monmouth colleges played a 7 to 7 tie in their fifty-fifth annual football game here today. It was the sixth deadlock in the long series, in which Knox has won 28 and Monmouth 21.

Because of the tie, Knox is forced to share the Midwest conference championship with Ripon, each team having lost one and tied one this season.

Monmouth gained ten first downs against seven for Knox.

WESLEYAN, 8; NORMAL, 0.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—Illinois State Normal was unable to stop the plunges of Bob Morrow of Chicago Heights, and the running of Bob Lenahan of Vincennes, Ind., on a muddy field here today, and Illinois Wesleyan won the 46th game of the series between the two neighboring rivals, 8 to 0. Only once since 1907 has Normal defeated Wesleyan, altho there have been several ties.

WHEATON, 13; ELMHURST, 7.

Wheaton college defeated Elmhurst college, 13 to 7, yesterday in Elmhurst, and won permanent possession of the Elmhurst civic business trophy awarded for three consecutive victories. It was the 13th meeting of the old rivals.

Elmhurst scored in the fourth minute of play on Bohle's run after a blocked Wheaton punt. Rosback's kick for the point was good. Patterson went over for Wheaton in the second quarter to climax a sixty-five yard drive, but failed on a plunge for the extra point. Wheaton scored its winning points in the third quarter on a 97 yard march, with Patterson going over and adding the point.

FENGER NEARS TITLE GOAL—CATHOLIC ELEVENS TO SETTLE CROWN

MOUNT CARMEL, ST. IGNATIUS TO MEET FOR TITLE

Catholic League Rivals Clash in Soldiers' Field.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Seven lights blink before the shrine of Our Mother of Perpetual Help in a corner of Holy Family church on Chicago's west side. Parishioners and students at St. Ignatius High school have seen them there since the pioneer Jesuit, the Rev. Arnold Damen, founder of the church and school, provided shelter for homeless Chicagoans during the great fire of 1871.

Imbued with the spirit that carried Father Damen thru against tremendous odds on many occasions in those early days in the school's history, St. Ignatius' football team upset the strong St. George eleven last Sunday and this afternoon in Soldiers' field will meet Mount Carmel, the defending titleholder, for the championship of the Catholic league. To the winners goes the right to appear in the All-City contest under the auspices of Mayor Kelly's Christmas Benefit fund on Dec. 2.

St. Ignatius Outweighed.

St. Ignatius was heavily outweighed by St. George last week. Its leading ball carrier, Ray McCaffrey, was on the sidelines with a broken collar bone. But eleven inspired players raced onto the field and triumphed. Those leaders in the victory, Ray Pechous, Bill White and Chick Jacoby, and their teammates are ready to bring St. Ignatius its first title in 19 years.

Two of the outstanding players in St. Ignatius' 1920 title drive were Bill Cerney, now an assistant football coach at the University of Notre Dame, and Chuck Collins, who later became one of the Seven Mules on the famous Irish Four Horsemen team, and now is a Chicago attorney.

Jacoby a Versatile Player.

Jacoby, who is 16 years old, weighs 157 pounds and is 5 feet 10 inches tall, last Sunday proved to be one of the most versatile players in the league. The team's leading passer, Jacoby performed at four positions against St. George. He played left half back, his regular post; right half after Pechous was injured, full back in place of White while the squad was within the 20 yard line, and at right end when Gene Spartz did the kicking.

Altho Jacoby's tosses to Pechous brought St. Ignatius several victories this season, not a pass was atttempted against St. George last Sunday. Coach Ralph Mailliard, who has been at St. Ignatius for nine years, ordered the squad to continue to use running plays as soon as they began to click against the bulky St. George line.

Mount Carmel Has Two Stars.

John Andretich, 160 pound left half back, and Francis Meakim, 155 pound right half back, hailed as Mount Carmel's touchdown twins, have led the champions to five victories in the south section of the league. Meakim and Andretich, both seniors, were members of the Mount Carmel eleven which lost to Fenger, 13 to 0, in the city championship game last season.

Two other players, Tom Creevy, 17 year old quarter back, and Robert Quinn, 160 pound full back, have figured prominently in Mount Carmel's march toward its second successive sectional championship. The south siders' regular linemen include Eugene Dwyer and Vincent Urba, ends; Sigmund Czarobski and John McNamee, tackles; Richard Kennedy and Edmund Murphy, guards, and Edward Blair, center.

Score 86 Points in Six Games.

Coached by Wally Fromhart, former University of Notre Dame quarter back, and a member of THE TRIBUNE's College All-Star team in 1936 against the Detroit Lions, Mount Carmel has scored eighty-six points in six games. Its goal was crossed three times and it played one tie, a scoreless deadlock with Leo early in the season.

The starting lineups:

MOUNT CARMEL.		ST. IGNATIUS.
E. Dwyer	L. E.	W. Dwyer
Czarobski	L. T.	Meccia
Kennedy	L. G.	Williams
Blair	C.	Cobey
Murphy	R. G.	Fenlon
McNamee	R. T.	Broccolo
Urba	R. E.	Spartz
T. Creevy	Q. B.	De Palma
Andretich	L. H.	Jacoby
Meakim	R. H.	Pechous
Quinn	F. B.	White

Francis Meakim, Mount Carmel right half back, is expected to break loose for long gains when the south side eleven meets St. Ignatius for the Catholic league football championship in Soldiers' field this afternoon.

Ray Pechous, hero of St. Ignatius' 19 to 12 victory over St. George last Sunday, gets off a good punt in preparation for the title game this afternoon. Pechous, right half back, weighs 174 pounds.

Bill White, St. Ignatius' 163 pound full back, is always ready when a few yards are needed against an opponent's line.

Don Griffin, Fenger quarter back, is tackled as he tries end run in third quarter against Tilden Tech in Soldiers' field yesterday. Fenger triumphed, 13 to 0, to enter Chicago Public High School league finals against Schurz Saturday.

Texas Aggies Humble Rice Eleven, 19-0

Houston, Tex., Nov. 18 (AP).—Texas A. & M. rolled over the punchless Rice Owls today, 19 to 0, before 25,000. Big John Kimbrough, full back, and Bill Conatser and Derace Moser, sped behind superb interference to bury a crippled Rice eleven that could rack up only eight yards, net. The Aggies gained three hundred thirty-nine yards.

The Farmers passed 20 times and completed 10 for one hundred eighty-one yards. Kimbrough gathered ninety-one yards in 17 tries for a 5.4 average.

Kimbrough plunged over the first score in the opening quarter. Audish missed the point try. In the second, A. & M. drove sixty-five yards to its tally. Walemon Price shot aerials to Moser and a couple of ends, Bill Buchanan and Harold Cowley, which produced. The clinching pass was a nineteen yard to Cowley. Price converted. A dazzling run of thirty-four yards by Conatser scored early in the fourth. Price failed to convert. Lineups:

Schurz Wins, Fenger Beats Tilden in Prep Semi-Finals

Fenger of the far south side or Schurz of the north side will be the Public High School league's representative in the All-City charity football game in Soldiers' field on Dec. 2.

The two elevens qualified to meet in the finals for the league championship next Saturday by winning in yesterday's semi-final round, Fenger defeating Tilden Tech, central section champion, 13 to 0, in Soldiers' field before 18,000, and Schurz triumphing over Austin, west zone titleholders, 27 to 13, in Mills stadium with 5,000 looking on.

Fenger, defending champion, which defeated Mount Carmel in last year's all-city contest, scored two touchdowns in the last quarter to hand Tilden Tech its first setback of the season. Leading the champions to their seventh consecutive victory were Donald [Flash] Griffin, 17 year old star quarter back; Bob Wallis, 160 pound right end, and Al Yuktonis, 178 pound left tackle.

Griffin Starts It.

It was Griffin who started Fenger on the way to victory. Early in the fourth quarter, he shot a fifteen yard pass to Wallis. Then another successful fifteen yard toss, Griffin to Wallis, gave the south siders their first touchdown. Shortly afterward, Yuktonis intercepted a forward pass and raced thirty yards to score.

Tied, 13 to 13, at the end of the first half, Schurz rallied to score in the third and fourth quarters to win from Austin. Austin had won its fourth straight sectional title with seven straight victories and its goal line had been crossed only once during the season. The hero in the Schurz last half drive was Cliff Leibert, junior full back.

Leibert Carries the Mail.

Taking the kickoff in the third quarter, Schurz marched fifty-eight yards to the Austin 1 yard line on fourteen plays with Leibert carrying the ball six times. His last effort scored a touchdown and put Schurz into the lead. Late in the fourth period, Casey Peifer, Austin's left half back, fumbled and Monno Mijanovitch, Schurz center, recovered on the Austin 37 yard line. Four plays brought the ball to the 8 yard line as the period ended.

Leibert drove over tackle for two yards and an Austin offside penalty put the ball on the 1 yard line. Then Ed Martin, 180 pound quarter back, plunged over for the touchdown. Bob Moeller, right end, kicked the extra point.

Schurz scored its first touchdown in the opening period after recovering Tony Rotunno's fumble on the Austin 33 yard line. Two forward passes were incomplete, but the next one, Jack Vanderpoel to Martin, netted seventeen yards. Leibert smashed thru center for six yards, then Vanderpoel raced ten yards for the score.

Cook Races 65 Yards.

The second Schurz touchdown came midway in the second quarter when Jack Thompson, 17 year old right half back, dashed around left end for thirty-six yards to score. Moeller added the extra point.

Austin scored its touchdowns in the second quarter, Rotunno plunging over from the 2 yard line after the west zone champions had marched seventy-five yards on thirteen plays for the first score. A few minutes later, Ralph Cook, who had replaced Peifer at left half back, raced sixty-five yards down the sidelines for the second score.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 18 (AP).—The goal kicking ability of Robert Nelson Bryan, center, coupled with a thirty-nine yard touchdown run by Dwight Parks, gave the Baylor Bears a 13 to 6 victory over Centenary this afternoon before 3,000 homecoming fans. Nelson placed his team in front, 3 to 0, in the second quarter with a placement kick from the 11 yard line and added another in the fourth quarter, this time from the 6 yard line. Nelson kicked the extra point after Parks' touchdown.

CARNEGIE TECH BEATEN, 21 TO 0, BY HOLY CROSS

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 18 (AP).—Smashing Carnegie Tech's defense, Holy Cross scored three touchdowns on long runs today to thrash the Skibos, 21 to 0, before 28,000 at Fitton field and establish a definite claim to ranking among the nation's football leaders. The game was less than two minutes old when a forty-six yard end sweep by Joe Osmanski brought the first score. Turner booted the first of his three conversions, which gave him a total of 16 for the season.

Tom Sullivan, who played 59 minutes, scored a few minutes later on a fifty-five yard dash, and the third tally came in the final period when Saba intercepted a Skibo pass on his 42 and raced back to the 24. On the first play Osmanski swept left end, cut back sharply and eluded three Carnegie backs to score.

Willie Joyce Knocks Out Gilmore in Second Round

New York, Nov. 18 [Special.]—Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., heavyweight, outpointed Curtis Sheppard of New York in an eight round bout at Rockland Palace tonight. In the semi-final Willie Joyce, Chicago lightweight, knocked out Herbie Gilmore of Cincinnati, O., in the second round.

THREE BOUTS AT EIGHT ROUNDS ON MARIGOLD CARD

Marigold Gardens, north side club, which shared the boxing spotlight with White City of the south side last week, will have the scene to itself this week. Three bouts of eight rounds and one at four will comprise the Marigold card tomorrow. White City's next program will be held Dec. 1.

Altus Allen, this year's international Golden Gloves heavyweight champion; Joe Sutka, Wyandotte, Mich., middleweight, and Tony Motisi, 1937 Catholic Youth organization welterweight title holder, will head the show tomorrow. Allen will meet Lee Oma of Detroit, Sutka will encounter Ralph Chong of New Orleans, and Motisi will oppose Tommy Pallatin of South Bend.

Motisi will be meeting Pallatin for the fourth time. They battled five rounds to a draw in their first fight last Jan. 23, but Pallatin scored a six round decision over his rival in a rematch the following March 20. In their last encounter they boxed a four round exhibition in the Racquet club May 16. Since then Motisi upset Verle Davis, previously undefeated in 17 matches, and Pallatin conquered Johnny Barbara.

In their last fights Motisi whipped Johnny Durso in Chicago Stadium on Oct. 6 and Pallatin beat Indian Billy Lee in Marigold Nov. 6.

Tito Taylor, local 145 pound fighter, will give Larry Ray of Detroit his first Chicago test in a four round opener.

Promoter Irving Schoenwald has announced he will conduct a show in the Coliseum Dec. 8 or 15. Which of the dates chosen will depend on whether Bill Rand goes thru with plans to offer a 12 round return contest between Davey Day and Sammy Angott in Chicago Stadium Dec. 8. After accepting a match with Buddy Knox on the Coliseum card, Bob Nestell cannot be found, the promoter said. . . . Joey Russano, Humboldt park junior lightweight, who is undefeated in six professional fights, will appear against a suitable foe in a supporting match to a 10 rounder involving Pete Lello and Emil Joseph in Marigold arena Nov. 27. Lello also boxes in Milwaukee Dec. 13 and Jan. 1. Eddie Zivic will be his opponent Dec. 13 and Henry Armstrong may be his antagonist on New Year's day. . . .

Brown Triumphs, 41 to 0, Over Connecticut Eleven

Providence, R. I., Nov. 18 (AP).—Brown routed Connecticut, 41 to 0, today. Held scoreless in the last quarter after putting over two touchdowns in each of the first three periods, the Bruins gained a total net yardage of 280 by rushing and 93 by passing, as against 125 and 10, respectively, for Connecticut.

Bambas Bowlers Roll Record 3,213 Series in Beverly Major

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The J. E. Bambas bowlers rolled a record 3,213 series in the Beverly Major league last week to raise the league record for the third time in three weeks. The Hynes Hut five set a new top of 3,157 three weeks ago only to have the Eden Insurance team better it by 13 pins the following week. Then the Bambas team, paced by Ed Scesny's 666, added 43 pins to the previous record. Also figuring in the Bambas' assault were Hal Swanson, 651; Frank Brown, 645; Rudy Konar, 641, and Ed Kucic, 610. The Edens hit 3,125, and the Hynes rolled 3,109 the same night.

The Phil Smidts, beaten three straight by the Bambas, provided the evenings high individual, Jay Batchelor, who rolled 234-268-215—717. Others who hit 700 were Hal Grogan and Jim Keating of the Edens, with 704 and 700, respectively.

Samuelson's Major League.

Pat's Tap Room won the odd game and rolled a 3,001 series against Samuelson & Rein to maintain its two game lead in Samuelson's Major league. Meanwhile the second place Wallace Coals won two from Mee & Ramme Funeral Home, and the Budweisers took a pair from the Michelobs. Richey Platt with a 263 game and Leo Matson with a 660 series were high individuals. Scores:

Pat's Tap Room	947	1,018	1,036—3,001
Samuelson & Rein	1,013	898	973—2,884

Wallace Coal	973	898	955—2,826

Classic League.

The Schlitz-Monarch match will be the main attraction when the Classic league bowls on the Legion alleys, 7550 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. While the Monarchs are in fourth place with 14 victories and 16 losses, and the Schlitz lead the league, this match will be interesting, inasmuch as the Monarchs have their last year's championship to defend and must win in order to get back into the running. The second place Pabsts bowl Power House, the Ambrosias meet the Koenig Braus, and the Michelobs bowl the Pragers. Standings:

Schlitz	22	8	985	Pow. House	14	16	966
Pabst	21	9	998	K'nig Brau	12	18	944
Michelob	17	13	977	Prager	11	19	946
Monarch	14	16	977	Ambrosia	9	21	946

Spotting the Pins.

The Park View Flower Shop exhibition team, which broke even in its first four matches, meets the Merit Cigars at the Fullerton-Crawford alleys at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Ray Kerr, Ollie Johnson, Al Cowan, Joe Detloff, John Juberg, and Norman Nelson are on the squad, with Detloff the sponsor. . . . Bill Gansloser starred with a 278 game and 662 series as America Fore won two games from Underwriters Adjusting in the Insurance league. Londson and Lancashire slammed a series with American Glass, H. H. Herbst took two from Youngberg-Carlson, Miller's National won the odd from Commercial Union, Loyalty group won two from Pacific National, and Aetna took two from Western Adjustment. . . . Joe Fliger, Mineralite star, will meet Charles Johnson, Bayonee, N. J., eastern junior champion, in a five game match at Bensinger's, 29 West Randolph street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Total pins will determine the winner.

Windy City League.

The Joseph L. Gills missed a league record by 16 pins when they hit 1,163 in the final game as they swept a series with the Blazek Tailors in the Windy City Major league. Ad Carlson got 263 and Bill Hargadon 258 in the big game. George Notz, also of the Gills, had a 686 series, four pins below the evening's high of 691, hit by Paul Krumske of the Betinis Boosters. C. Y. O. BOXING SEMI-FINALS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Semifinal matches in the ninth annual C. Y. O. Christmas fund boxing tournament will be held tomorrow and Tuesday nights in the C. Y. O. Center, 31 East Congress street.

Appearing in these contests will be youngsters who have come thru as champions in four sectional elimination bouts—south, west, north, and suburban. Sixty-four boys, 16 from each section, 8 in the open division and the same number in the novice class, have qualified for the semifinals.

Sixteen Bouts Each Night.

Sixteen bouts are scheduled tomorrow and Tuesday nights. There will be eight contests in the novice class and eight in the open division each night. Tomorrow night, open class boys in the 112, 126, 147, and 175 pound divisions and novice scrappers in the 118, 135, 160, and heavyweight class battlers will be seen in action.

On Tuesday night 112, 126, 147, and 175 pound novice division boxers and 118, 135, 160, and heavyweight open class boys will answer the bell. Winners in the two nights of semifinal battling will be the contestants in the championship matches which will be presented on Wednesday night, Nov. 29, in the Stadium.

Qualifiers for the semifinals include a number of outstanding amateurs as well as promising newcomers. Among the leading open division boxers are: Al Noto, Tony Bausone, Wayne Fidler, John Cahill, Teddy Sparrow, Harry Sparrow, Hiner Thomas, John Relles, Charles Allicoate, Bob La Civita, Eddie O'Connell, Isaiah Wells, and William Goldsmith.

Star Novice Boxers.

Those in the novice division who have shown most impressively in the sectional bouts are: Fred Reporto, Eugene Cahill, Otis Thomas, James Hunt, Herbie Hay, Al Linster, Martin Bazso, John Breland, Al Reasoner, James Cosley, and Tom Bolton.

Tickets for the title bouts in the Stadium on Nov. 29 are on sale at the C. Y. O. Center, 31 East Congress street. Prices of tickets are 55 cents, $1.10, and $2.20. Reservations can be made by phoning Wabash 1114.

Duke Hands N. Carolina 1st Defeat, 13 to 3

Durham, N. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Duke university's football team found the range in the third quarter today to blast North Carolina into the ranks of the defeated and to take a long stride toward at least a tie for the Southern conference crown.

The score was 13 to 3, and 50,800 fans, who packed every cranny of Duke stadium and bulged into temporary stands, went away convinced the better team had won.

At the half Duke was a worried, frustrated team, trailing by three points and uncertain as to what could be done about it.

The third quarter hardly had started before Tony Ruffa, Duke tackle, blocked a North Carolina pass deep in its own territory. The ball bounded into the end zone, where Bill Bailey, Duke end, fell on it for a touchdown.

Early in the fourth quarter Bob Barnett intercepted a North Carolina pass tossed by Harry Dunkle. He was downed on the Carolina 30, and hitherto unsung heroes began to pound away at the fading Tar Heel line. Winston Siegfried and Steve Lach burrowed their way down the field until Siegfried nudged over from the 3. Tommy Prothro's placekick was blocked.

North Carolina had taken its three-point lead at the start of the second quarter as Dunkle dropped back to the 36 yard line to kick a field goal.

The victory left Duke with a one-point defeat by Pitt the only blot on its record. Lineups:

N. CAROLINA [3].		DUKE [13].

CHICAGOLAND IS READY AS WINTER SPORTS CENTER

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicagoland is prepared to entertain its residents and its visitors with winter sports. The city with its beaches and its lake breezes is known as a summer tourist attraction. It can also bid for recognition of facilities for snow and ice recreation.

Cold weather sports have become increasingly popular during the last few years. The fun once reserved for children is now shared by parents. A frost kissed cheek has become as fashionable for January wear as a Florida sun tan.

34,600 Acres in Forest Preserve.

In addition to the hundreds of ice ponds within the city, in its parks and vacant lots, on its tennis courts and at its outlying hotels, there are 34,600 acres of Cook county forest preserve on the outskirts of the city for hikes thru snow drifts on snow shoes, or on skis or in boots. At locations conveniently accessible by automobile, with parking lots and shelters, are ski jumps, toboggan slides, and skating on ice.

Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the Cook county forests, announced that for the first time this year there will be night tobogganing in his bailiwick. Six chutes with 1,500 feet of runway will be illuminated in the Palos Hills preserve at 119th street and La Grange road.

Two States Offer Attractions.

In the Michigan and Wisconsin summer resort areas, civic and commerce organizations this year will compete with Sun Valley and Lake Placid in winter sport attractions. Their highway departments have promised to keep the roads open for week-end visitors from Chicago. The outlook in these states, as surveyed by correspondents for THE TRIBUNE, follows:

WISCONSIN IS READY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—Four ski trails for beginners and skilled skiers have been built in one section of the Rib Mountain state park on an open slope 2,500 feet long and 300 feet wide. The park is near Wausau, less than 200 miles from Chicago.

La Crosse, 150 miles from Chicago, has opened a recreation center three miles from the city at State Road Coulee. A runway 100 feet wide has been cleared and a ski shelter and warming house have been placed at the entrance to the area.

Facilities at Hayward.

Hayward, some 300 miles from Chicago, has ski and toboggan slides and first class hocky and skating rinks.

Near Eagle River the highland woods country is excellent for skiing, snowshoeing and tobogganing, and the lakes are cleared for skating.

Ski jumping tournaments and ice skating races will be held thruout the winter at Oconomowoc, only 100 miles from Chicago. Fifty miles farther north on Lake Winnebago ice boating will be in vogue.

MICHIGAN READY, TOO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

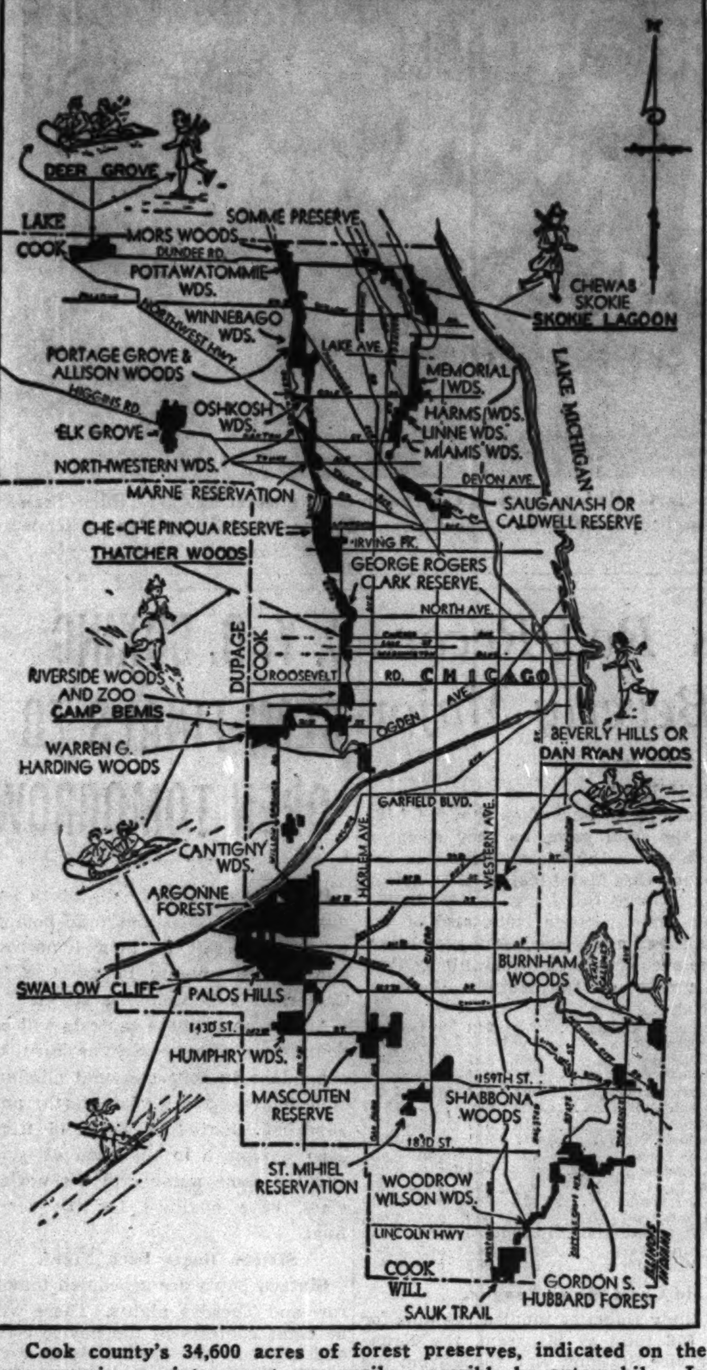
Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 18.—This season there will be new facilities for winter sports, notably in the Caberfae winter sports area in the Manistee national forest, west of Cadillac and just off M-55. Here the United States forest service has built a new system of one way roads; there are ski and snowshoe trails, slalom and downhill courses, a ski jump, and some temporary shelters. Near by in Cadillac are ample facilities for week-end parties, and there are cabin camps even closer to the area.

Petoskey is continuing the development of the ski hill on the Wabmeme and will have its 15th annual winter sports carnival Feb. 2 to 11.

Other towns are developing rinks and skiing runs for their own folk as well as for visitors, who are welcomed. The toboggan slide in Ludington state park is one of the fastest and finest.

Petoskey is 374 miles from Chicago. Ludington is 246 miles. But, as a matter of fact, winter sports can be found almost anywhere in western Michigan, and information on specific localities can be had quickly from the West Michigan Tourist and Resort association, which maintains all year offices in Chicago at 323 South Dearborn street.

Clip This for Winter Sports



Cook county's 34,600 acres of forest preserves, indicated on the map, comprise a winter sport area easily accessible by automobile. In addition to 150 miles of trails for hiking on skiis, snowshoes, or in boots, there are skating ponds, toboggan slides, and ski jumps at the locations indicated by graphs.

NEWS AND VIEWS

L. G. Peed, vice president in charge of sales of the De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation, says that he was never so impressed with the economic significance of the automobile industry as he was during a recent transcontinental trip. It is one thing to sit at a desk in Detroit and note that the industry spends about $1,000,000 an hour for raw materials and fabricated parts, he comments. But going into the field and seeing the investments in real estate, buildings, equipment and pay rolls by dealers really impresses the manufacturer with the economic rôle of the retailers in the thousands of communities they serve. He estimates that since 1900 wages generated by the use of the automobile total 85 billions.

L. G. Peed.

Deliveries of Pontiacs in October showed an increase of 100.5 per cent over October, 1938, and 95 per cent over September of 1939, says D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of the Pontiac division of General Motors. He adds that a particularly favorable indication for the future is that used car sales have been at high levels for this time of the year. Bathrick says that unfilled orders are at the highest point they have ever been for this time of the year.

C. W. Smith of Harvey, Ford line dealer, has been elected chairman of the South Suburban Dealers association. George F. Fiedler of Blue Island, Dodge-Plymouth dealer, is vice chairman, and J. U. Bronson of Blue Island, Chrysler-Plymouth dealer, is secretary.

Six veteran Chicago area dealers have a total of 163 years in selling the Ford line of automobiles. They are Lynn S. Snow, Oak Park, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, a Ford dealer since 1914; A. A. Lawder Sr., 1912; Charles Habich, 1912; Earl Snow, 1914; Ben T. Wright, 1916, and Glenn E. Holmes, 1903.

DEBUNKS HITLER AS PLANNER OF SUPERHIGHWAYS

Fuehrer's Roads Not Placed Where Needed.

BY HAL FOUST.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, last week debunked Hitler's reputation as a superhighway builder. In an address before a meeting of the American Petroleum institute in the Stevens hotel the American engineer said that the German roads were poorly planned from both a wartime military and a peacetime economic standpoint.

"Like the triumphal arches built by the Caesars," said Mr. MacDonald, "the Fuehrer's roads were built as a tribute to a dictator's ego. They are not located where needed by traffic during a war or in peace. For example, the superhighway doesn't approach Berlin closer than 15 or 20 miles.

Should Start in Center of Cities.

"Superhighway construction should start at the center of large cities and extend outward in the direction of heavy intramural traffic to connect with highways important to interregional travel."

Chicago's plan for a Congress street superhighway has been criticized as having some of the undesirable characteristics of the Hitler roads picturesquely described by Mr. MacDonald. Secretary of the Interior Ickes, in approving an $18,000,000 PWA subway grant to Chicago, insisted upon a provision that Congress street must be developed for motor travel as well as for subways.

Dumps Traffic Onto Local Streets.

The plan, as submitted to the council by Charles E. De Leuw, consulting engineer for the city, would dump the superhighway traffic onto congested local streets a mile southwest of the center of the downtown area. On the western terminal the superhighway would terminate on local suburban streets with no adequate connections with any rural highway. Like Hitler's "tribute to a dictator's ego," Congress street would not take automobile travel where it wants to go.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

AGAINST NEW NORTH AVENUE.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—This letter is a protest from hundreds of people. The voices of many more will shortly be added.

North avenue from 6500 west to Harlem avenue has been made a dangerous street to pedestrians by the recent "improvement." Motorists are inconvenienced by the lack of openings at each cross street. There have been two accidents in the short time since the highway department had the work started. Business places not located at the cross openings are at a disadvantage. In other words, there is a question of just who is being benefited and why?

A wide high speed highway serves no purpose in this fine residential section of the city.

The residents of this community request that this menace to their welfare and business be changed or that openings be provided at each cross street.

FRANK OTTERSEN,
Vice President, Galewood Club.

ANOTHER AGAINST MELROSE PARK.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 10.—On Nov. 3, in driving from Rockford to Chicago on route 20, I was arrested by an officer of Melrose Park. When approaching the village of Melrose Park the pavements suddenly became wet as a result of snow, and I noticed snow on the embankment of the railroad just before going thru the underpass. Being cautious I immediately slowed down to about 30 to 35 miles per hour and fell in behind traffic. In fact, I did not pass any one, despite the fact that the officer stated that he had seen me pass five cars; and at the same moment he stated I had my brakes on for the previous 200 yards—to me a purely contradictory statement.

Melrose Park is a speed trap, and a driver alone has no chance to protect himself from an accusation of the kind the officer charges against me, which is speeding at 56 miles an hour, which nobody of sense would do on pavements wet with snow. There is no justification whatever in the charge of this officer, and I consider that it is purely a racket. No doubt you have had other complaints.

FRANK R. WARTON.

FROM ONE-LEGGED DRIVER.

Cicero, Ill., Nov. 14.—If C. Thorp would check up on the statistics he would find that the number of accidents caused by disabled drivers is very small. I happen to be one of the many one legged men who drive. I have driven 25,000 miles in the last 20 months, after the loss of my leg. If anything, I believe, the handicapped person is just a little more careful and cautious than he otherwise would be. I know it has made me a more cautious driver than I was before, because the cards are stacked against me to begin with. In the first place the chances of having my restricted driver's license revoked are a lot greater, and secondly, the fact that a handicapped driver cannot get insurance on his car.

C. H. KUTSCHKE.

GROWTH OF SOFT DRINK BUSINESS 'FOOLS' EXPERTS

Advertising, Many New Outlets Aid.

BY FRANK TOOLEY.

With the most successful year in its history drawing to a close, the soft drink industry looks to 1940 for even larger sales and increased earnings. This branch of American business, which has confounded investment analysts and outstripped the hopes of its most optimistic backers in recent years, has emerged successfully in a long struggle with two opposing forces—depression and repeal of prohibition.

Beverage manufacturers are enjoying an apparently depression-proof business. Thru the introduction of effective sales methods and thru public acceptance, the industry in all of its branches has ridden out the depression storm. Since 1933, when critics said repeal would spell doom, soft drink manufacturers have been carried forward on the impetus of repeal.

Expect Further Gain.

Improvement in general business now under way, beverage manufacturers declare, is certain to be reflected in sales of 5 cent drinks. That is their basis for believing 1940 will write another amazing chapter in their sales and earnings log.

The record of the Coca-Cola company, largest of the soft drink manufacturers, since 1933 is typical of the industry. Companies smaller than Coca-Cola have nonetheless remarkable records. Nehi corporation, incorporated in 1928, is one. Charles E. Hires company, formed in 1920 as an outgrowth of a business started in 1876, and Dr. Pepper company, established in 1933, are among the hundreds of others. Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., which makes and distributes soft drinks and "mixers," shows a similar trend.

Record for Six Years.

Following is the Coca-Cola company's showing in the last six years:

	Net sales.	Net income.
*1939	†	$22,397,597
1938	$75,863,755	25,570,877
1937	68,402,315	24,681,616
1936	55,845,053	20,398,079
1935	43,777,366	15,804,256
1934	38,486,626	14,328,668
1933	‡33,000,000	10,838,994

*Nine months ended Sept. 30. †Not reported. ‡Estimated.

Nehi corporation's record in recent years, altho on a smaller scale, is along the same lines. Here is it:

	Sales.	Net inc.
1938	$4,197,475	$934,307
1937	3,615,800	953,542
1936	2,205,171	570,507
1935	1,207,691	258,570
1934	1,026,372	275,377
1933	648,382	91,270

"The industry's growth is not the result of any single factor but a combination of several," Sherman L. Brown, vice president of the Dr. Pepper company, explained. "One of the most important reasons for the increased volume was the additional outlets that were opened up primarily to handle beer and liquors but which also handled and sold quite a large volume of carbonated beverages.

Methods Are Improved.

"Other reasons for the increase in volume not attributable to these new outlets can be traced to better merchandising methods for handling the distribution and sale of carbonated beverages to the consuming public. These include concentration on the sale of beverage coolers and the development within the last five years of coin vending machines."

New outlets, coin vending machines, coolers, and six bottle cartons—all designed to make soft drinks more accessible—did not, however, comprise the entire basis of the industry's efforts to fight off the challenge of beer and liquor. Placing soft drinks in more places than the corner drug store was not enough in itself.

Mr. and Mrs. America had to be told again and again—thru advertising—about the additional places where soft drinks could be obtained and also about their other features. Manufacturers and dealers, therefore, stepped up their advertising with newspapers receiving an increasing share of the industry's expenditures. This was one of the better merchandising methods employed in the industry's drive for sales and more sales.

Distrubution Is Widespread.

Today nearly every drug store in the country dispenses soft drinks of one sort or another, in glass or bottle. Cigar counters, depots, roadside stands, hotel lobbies, and groceries—in short, wherever people gather—have soft drinks available.

A sizeable army, of course, is engaged in the preparation, distribution, and dispensing of soft drinks. One company alone estimates its retail outlets total about a million in the United States. The same company's employment, taking 1923 as 100 per cent, soared to 227 per cent at he end of 1937.

In addition to the progress shown in the United States, the industry has further fought the depression by vigorously reaching into foreign markets. An unofficial estimate gives the number of foreign markets into which one company has placed its product as 70.

FEDERAL ISSUES LEAD NEW RISE IN BOND MARKET

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—United States issues continued to forge ahead today in a bond market, which boasted a fair preponderance of gains in the principal corporate groups.

The upturn in the federals, giving a full half point for several treasuries, was accomplished on comparatively small turnover. Offerings were slow to come out, dealers reported.

Several low yield corporate liens moved up with the governments. Speculative ratings were somewhat uneven, reflecting week-end profit taking in a few of the lower priced rails and miscellaneous issues.

In the foreign division, moderate gains went to loans of Japan, Colombia, and Belgium. Italians yielded some ground.

CO-OP TRADE DECREASES.

The farm credit administration recently reported that the 10,700 farmers' marketing and purchasing coöperatives in the nation did a $2,000,000,000 business during the 1938-'39 marketing season. The dollar volume was somewhat under the previous season, however, because farm products price levels declined 21 per cent and farm supply prices about 8 per cent.

MEATS TO VIE WITH TURKEY IN THANKS FEAST

Retail Stores Are Offering Bargains in Roasts.

The largest turkey crop on record will meet plenty of competition in butcher shops this year for the Thanksgiving consumer trade, according to meat men at the Chicago stock yards.

Experts admit that this is one season when the trade for beef, pork and lamb is badly crippled by the demand for poultry. However, they said bargain counters in retail stores will be piled high with all sorts of roasts, particularly from some cuts of beef and pork, at prices that the thrifty housewife will give serious consideration before spending her money on the turkey.

Poultry Prices Lower.

A survey of wholesale markets late last week disclosed that best tom turkeys are moving into butcher shops for this week's trade at savings of 12 per cent compared with 1938 rates, while top hens are costing 8 per cent less than a year ago. Best ducks at the close of the week cost 13 per cent less than in 1938, and chickens about 12 per cent less. Geese brought 7 per cent more than a year ago.

The largest saving in meat prices will be offered in various pork cuts, it was said. Butcher shop owners at the close of the week bought some cuts of pork at the lowest rates in about five years as a result of the vast number of hogs unloaded on the market at low prices.

Packers sold top pork loins at $13.00 a hundred pounds, a reduction of 18 per cent compared with a year ago. Pork shoulders sold 15 per cent under 1938 and butts were off 20 per cent.

Beef Ribs and Loins Cheaper.

Costs to retailers of beef ribs were 12 per cent less than a year ago and loins ran 14 per cent less. Beef chucks were 9 per cent higher. Lamb legs cost the same as a year ago. Lamb loins were 12 per cent lower.

Slaughtering of hogs in Chicago last week was the heaviest since the middle of last January, and about 30 per cent larger than during the preceding week. Live costs to packers slumped sharply. The break was one of the most severe of the year. The various classes tumbled 55 to 95 cents during the six days, closing at the lowest price levels since June, 1934.

Final prices for most steers, yearlings, and calves ranged from steady to 25 cents lower than a week earlier. Beef cows lost fully 25 cents. Heifers, however, were strong to 15 cents higher. The six day steer average fell 25 cents to $9.30, the lowest since the week ended Aug. 26. The week's lamb average, at $9.15, down 20 cents, was lowest since the week ended Sept. 2.

SOARING PLANES.

Repeal of the arms embargo opened the gates to the flow of military aircraft from this country to the warring countries of Europe. Thus a further stimulant was given to the vigorous American aviation industry—now in its economic adolescence.

The industry is at an all-time production peak. Plants are being expanded and labor forces increased. The backlog of orders, estimated at 550 million dollars, is at a record high level.

Domestic sales of aircraft are expected to reach 250 million dollars this year, exceeding the peak of 150 millions in 1938, 71 millions in 1929, and the depression low of 32 millions in 1932.

Potential output of American aircraft manufacturers will be enlarged more than one-half by Jan. 1, 1940, as a result of the current plant expansion programs. Trade estimates indicate that the annual capacity of the industry early in 1940 will be about 700 million dollars in output, compared with 320 millions on Jan. 1, 1939.

The estimated plant capacity predicted for next Jan. 1 in millions of dollars of output for the 10 leading companies follows:

Allison	24	Douglas	[illegible]
Aviation Mfg.	18	Lockheed	[illegible]
Boeing	42	Martin	[illegible]
*Consolidated	48	North American	[illegible]
Curtiss-Wright	120	United Aircraft	[illegible]

*Does not provide for plant expansion being considered.

The immediate need for larger facilities was created by the armament race in Europe and by the heavy emphasis on military aircraft in the federal expenditures for national defense. Air lines also have increased their orders for commercial transport planes.

Three-fourths of the sales this year have been of military planes. Most of these were for domestic national defense, altho the proportion of those for export has been rising steadily.

Not only the present belligerent nations but many neutral countries are among the foreign customers for American made bombers and pursuit ships. Aeronautical exports in the first nine months this year set a record high of $78,100,000, a 45 per cent increase from those of the same period last year.

Despite the large volume of foreign sales, the sustained prosperity of the aviation industry in the future will depend more on domestic consumption by commercial air lines and by the government. In this period of war-accelerated production, the industry may develop low cost, mass production technics which will enable it to widen its domestic market after the war ends.

Altho the current outlook of the industry is favorable, the future is uncertain and aviation stocks should be treated as speculative.

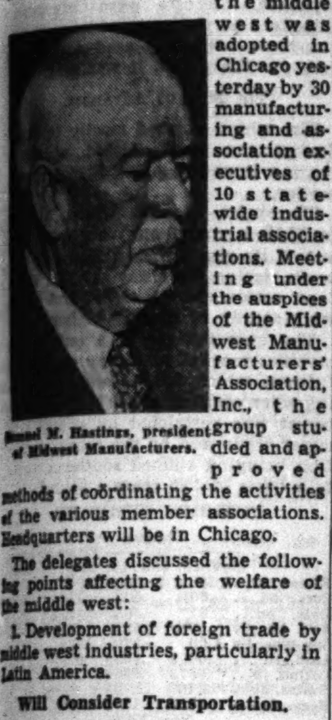
TRADE LEADERS DRAFT PROGRAM TO AID MIDWEST

Industrial Groups Will Co-operate.

A broad program for the industrial development and general welfare of the middle west was adopted in Chicago yesterday by 30 manufacturing and association executives of 10 statewide industrial associations. Meeting under the auspices of the Midwest Manufacturers' Association, Inc., the group studied and approved methods of coördinating the activities of the various member associations. Headquarters will be in Chicago.



Samuel M. Hastings, president of Midwest Manufacturers.

The delegates discussed the following points affecting the welfare of the middle west:

1. Development of foreign trade by middle west industries, particularly in Latin America.

Will Consider Transportation.

2. Transportation problems of particular interest to midwest industry.

3. Industrial mobilization plans for national defense in coöperation with the federal government.

4. Coöperation with agricultural groups on problems of mutual interest to manufacturers and farmers.

5. Coördination of legislative program of midwest industry on state and national issues.

6. Securing beneficial and fair legislation affecting the industrial welfare of the middle west.

7. Protection of state and local governments from further intrusion by the federal government.

8. Opposing legislation adverse to the best interests of the public, of affiliated associations, and of their members.

Leaders of Midwest Group.

Samuel M. Hastings is president of the Midwest Manufacturers' group. He is a former president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Walter J. Kohler, former governor of Wisconsin and former head of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association, is vice president. R. J. Russell, director of the Associated Industries of Missouri, is treasurer. The secretary is John L. Lovett, general manager of the Michigan Manufacturers' association.

"The prosperity of the middle west is largely dependent upon the welfare of its factories," Hastings declared at the meeting, held at the Palmer House. "It is expected that the associations embracing the principal employer groups in this area will serve as an effective agency thru which the viewpoint of industry and business in the middle west on questions of common interest can be safeguarded and promoted.

States Form Inland Empire.

"The middle west is a great inland empire. In the 10 states comprising the territory embraced by the associations, 28 per cent of the manufacturing establishments of this nation are located and manufacturing 28 per cent of the products; 29 per cent of the population lives; 33 per cent of the industrial employés work; 30 per cent of the industrial wages and salaries are paid, and 20 per cent of the land area of the United States is located.

"In this district, nearly 37 per cent of the agricultural income originates. It has 21 per cent of the United States senatorial representation and 30.5 per cent of the representation in the federal house of representatives."

Predicts Effective Service.

"In my judgment," Hastings added, "the Midwest Manufacturers' associations can perform effective service in coördinating the activities of the various associations comprising its membership, particularly in promoting constructive legislation and opposing adverse legislation, both state and national."

The Midwest Manufacturers' Associations, Inc., incorporated in Illinois in 1931, is composed of the following industrial groups: Associated Industries of Missouri, Michigan Manufacturers' association, Ohio Manufacturers' association, Associated Industries of Kansas, Nebraska Manufacturers' association, Iowa Manufacturers' association, Associated Industries of Oklahoma, Indiana Manufacturers' association, Wisconsin Manufacturers' association, and the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Occasional Meetings Held.

Meetings of representatives of member organizations of the Midwest Manufacturers' associations are held from time to time, according to Hastings, to consolidate the interest of the various organizations on questions of common interest.

Representatives of the Illinois Manufacturers' association who attended the meeting were W. Homer Hartz, association president and head of the Morden Frog and Crossing Works; James D. Cunningham, former president of the association and head of the Republic Flow Meters company; Sterling Morton, secretary of the Morton Salt company and treasurer of the association; F. N. Bard, president of the Barco Manufacturing company; James L. Donnelly, executive vice president, and David R. Clarke, general counsel.

Tap New Oil Areas, Depths in Illinois Field

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—Discovery of two new producing formations in the rich Lake Centralia-Salem pool of Marion county overshadowed the possible success of two wildcat tests this week which would open new oil pools in Washington and Wayne counties.

The two new pay formations in the lake field were the St. Louis lime and the Devonian lime, deeper lying formations than the three, the Benoist and Aux Vases sands and the McClosky lime that now are producing in the state's ranking pool.

The St. Louis lime was found productive at Lewis, Armstrong and Day's test at the site of Young's chapel, a church in the heart of the lake pool. The ore yesterday began to flow from the formation at 2,209 to 2,245 feet before the test was completed. Its production was not gauged and the test will be acidized before completion.

Flows 70 to 80 Barrels Hourly.

The Devonian lime from 3,405 to 3,430 feet was found productive at Kingwood Oil company's No. 18-A Shanafelt, which was flowing between 70 and 80 barrels hourly. The success of the Young's chapel well and the Kingwood holding marked the first production from below the McClosky formation in the lake field and was expected to result in an extensive exploration of the two new lime formations.

The prospective pool opened in Washington county, near Dubois, was Shell's No. 1 Mary Dix, which cored six feet of Benoist saturation at 1,359 feet. The Wayne county wildcat was the Cuyuna Oil company's No. 1 J.

The map shows the sites of latest finds in the Illinois oil fields. The oblique lines mark Marion county, location of the rich Lake Centralia strikes. Stars in black areas mark sites of wildcat tests in (1) Washington county and (2) Wayne county.

Vol Borah, about six miles northeast of Fairfield, which will test McClosky saturation at 3,167 feet.

Seek Townsite Pool.

The first Devonian test in the city of Centralia pool was started this week just west of the city limits. The well, the No. 1 Dave Gun, will partly be financed by Centralia business men seeking the revival of a townsite drilling boom.

Thirty-one new producing wells, 28 of them holdings of the Carter company, were completed in the eastern Fayette county pool this week. The completions were featured by Max Conrey's No. 1 Bert Smith, which extended the St. James field three-fourths of a mile southeast and which is producing 80 barrels a day.

Richland county had five new wells, holdings of the Pure Oil company, which were featured by three in the north Richland county's pool whose estimated initial production averaged 1,000 barrels a day. More producers and more new locations in the Grayville area assured continuation of exploration in that territory during the winter months.

The state had 605 operations this week, including 96 completions, 88 new wells, and 112 first reports. There were 122 operations, 21 new wells and 23 first reports in the Lake Centralia-Salem district.

WAR REDUCES SHIP TRAFFIC IN PANAMA CANAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., Nov. 18.—The general disruption of shipping schedules caused by the war in Europe and the absence of German vessels brought Panama canal traffic in October down to its lowest level since September, 1938, official figures showed today. There was a steady upswing all thru 1939 until the war started.

However, the slump was not serious. Tolls collections for the 458 commercial transits were $1,815,210, compared with the approximately $2,000,000 which had been collected monthly prior to September. Tolls for the 10 months of 1939 aggregated $19,952,073, against $18,593,523 in the same period last year, an increase of nearly $1,500,000.

The number of transits also was larger, 4,950 against 4,612.

German tonnage, generally fourth largest exceeded only by the United States, Britain, and Norway, in that order, has disappeared from canal ports. The loss of German business is rapidly being made up by the diversion of ships of other nations to the South American trade.

Postal Revenues Increase with Upturn in Business

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Reporting an increase in postal revenues, Postmaster General Farley said today that they reflected "the upward swing in business and industry thruout the country." Revenues for the first four months of the current fiscal year were $234,987,102, an increase of $7,222,484, or 3.17 per cent, over the same period last year. October revenues totaled $63,886,989, an increase of $2,171,380, or 3.52 per cent, over the same month last year.

BANKERS PLAN ANOTHER CUT IN SAVINGS RATES

Propose Interest of 1¼ Per Cent.

Interest rates on bank savings accounts are to be reduced again, it was indicated yesterday. Bank members of the Chicago Clearing House association are expected to cut their rates from 1½ to 1¼ per cent, effective Jan. 1.

A statement issued by the association disclosed that the executive heads of the five leading downtown banks had agreed to recommend adoption of the reduced rate by directors of their banks. In addition, they will recommend that other Chicago banks which are members of or are affiliated with the association follow this reduction.

Some Already Cut.

Savings accounts of state and national banks in Chicago totaled $595,651,000 as of Oct. 2, date of the last bank call. Based on this figure, the banks would pay their depositors $1,489,120 less annually under the new rate. However, many banks have already reduced their interest rates below the suggested level.

The proposed cut to 1¼ per cent represents a compromise between influential bankers who desired a uniform reduction to 1 per cent, and others who had held out for the higher rate in the hope that loan rates would enable them to employ their investment funds more profitably. No suggestion of this compromise was contained in the announcement, but the bankers' attitude had been well known for several months.

New Deal Is Blamed.

New Deal policies of cheap money, dollar devaluation, and inflation of the public debt are generally blamed for the steady reduction in interest rates in recent years. Some commercial banks have discontinued interest payments entirely because their investment funds do not yield them an adequate return.

Many loop bankers wished to make a uniform reduction during the summer, when suburban banks cut their rates from 1½ to 1 per cent, effective July 1. This was followed by similar reductions by a number of outlying banks.

"This decision," the association's announcement said, "was made only because of the very low rates now obtainable on good loans and securities considered suitable for the investment of funds of savings depositors. The Chicago Clearing House banks for some time have maintained a higher rate of interest on savings than the banks in most of the other cities in the middle west."

Members of Committee.

Members of the association's clearing house committee who agreed to recommend adoption of the new scale by their directors, and urge other banks to follow, are Edward E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago; Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Philip R. Clarke, president of the City National Bank & Trust company; Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, and Howard W. Fenton, president of the Harris Trust & Savings bank.

For many years prior to the present Washington administration's determination to make money cheap, banks throughout the country paid 3 per cent annually on savings funds. A few paid more.

How savings depositors' returns have shriveled to the lowest levels in the history of banking is shown in the following figures, giving the effective dates of rate reductions by Chicago clearing house members: Jan. 1, 1933, 2½ per cent; July 1, 1934, 2 per cent; Jan. 1, 1936, 1½ per cent.

PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY ADOPTS TRADE PROGRAM

GUATEMALA CITY, Nov. 18 (AP).—Five recommendations laying groundwork for a broad expansion of inter-American industry and trade were adopted unanimously today by a plenary session of the Pan-American Treasury conference.

The five recommendations urged establishment of a central bank to facilitate quoting, buying and selling of American currencies; tightening of control of smuggling; unification of customs procedure; unification of government statistics, and exchange of government fiscal information.

Drafted by the exchange committee, the proposals were the gist of general points advanced by at least 11 of the 19 republics represented.

A formal proposal was made to hold the next conference in Washington, D. C.

TRUCK MEN DUB ICKES LORD OF MISTAKEN IDEAS

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes was saluted yesterday as the "lord of mistaken notions" by the Illinois Motor Truck Operators' association. The organization rebuked him for an attack made Thursday in which he said that the "lord of the highway is the truck driver."

Walter E. McCarron, general manager of the association, said in a letter to Ickes that the trucking industry employs 3,500,000 persons and that truck drivers are the safest and most courteous in the world. McCarron denied that trucks use the highways on week-ends more than they must to move perishables.

The secretary termed trucks "pests" and expressed the desire to use an "armored car to bump them off the road."

New Giant of Rails

First Diesel-electric locomotive to be tested in thru freight service. Built by the Electro-Motive corporation, this 2,700 horse power locomotive is hauling freight trains out of Chicago on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

Diesel Engine Given Freight Service Test

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Tests are being made with a large Diesel-electric locomotive in thru freight service on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, H. L. Hamilton, president of the Electro-Motive corporation, disclosed yesterday. This use of a Diesel-electric marks another milestone in the history of American railroads because it is the first time that a locomotive of this type has gone out over the rails in thru service.

H. L. Hamilton.

Shortly after Electro-Motive's big plant went into operation at La Grange late in 1935, Hamilton said that one of the hopes of the company was to see a Diesel-electric go into thru freight service, but development had not gone forward far enough to make this possible.

Locomotive Just Completed.

Within the last two weeks, Electro-Motive completed a 2,700 horse power unit and put it into service in road tests with the coöperation of the Baltimore & Ohio. Hamilton said operating officials of the road are enthusiastic over the performance of the locomotive to date.

Next week another 2,700 horse power unit will be ready for service and tests will be made in which the new unit will be coupled to the first unit to give a total of 5,400 horse power.

The first unit has been running daily between Chicago and Willard, O., a distance of 278 miles. It has been hauling trains of various make-up. One train consists of about 40 cars—about 2,000 tons—in fast merchandise service.

New Engine Cuts Time.

The Diesel-electric has been able to cut about 2½ hours from the schedule of the steam locomotive used regularly in this service.

The locomotive has hauled up to 65 loaded cars and up to 75 cars in mixed trains which included empty cars. It has maintained a speed of 55 miles an hour on level track with a 2,000 ton train. It has traveled at the maximum speed permitted, which is about 65 miles an hour.

The engine has been used on several occasions to Newcastle, Penn., just before the mountains are reached. Thirty minutes were allowed for the changing of the crew, and the engine was started back to Chicago.

Performance Records Lacking.

Commenting on fulfilment of the company's plans for building a thru freight locomotive, Hamilton said yesterday:

"We found that it was quite an undertaking to build a locomotive of this type because there were no adequate records for study on the performance of the steam locomotive. We found little exact engineering data as to what a steam locomotive would actually do.

"The builders had specifications and estimates as to expected performance. But when the steam locomotive gets out on the road, the actual performance records frequently are different from the paper performance. Over a period of years the operating offices of a railroad develop a 'feel' as to what a locomotive will do. But we had to have something definite for a goal in Diesel-electric performance.

Lengthy Studies Made.

"We made long studies. A Diesel-electric for freight service necessarily must be different from one intended for passenger or switching service. There is only one proving ground for theory—that is a railroad.

"The performance of our first locomotive has been excellent. The railroad men who are working with it are enthusiastic."

After the tests on the Baltimore and Ohio are completed, the locomotive will be sent to other railroads. There is a strong demand from the western roads to test it. Among the advantages for the Diesel-electric is a notable one—freedom from having to stop for coal and water. This advantage is particularly valuable to the western roads which operate over great distances. Obtaining satisfactory water for boiler purposes in long stretches has been a problem which, Hamilton says, could be solved by the use of the Diesel-electric.

Jewel Tea Company Sales Show Gain Over Year Ago

A 7.57 percent increase in sales was shown by the Jewel Tea company, food store chain, during the four week period ended Nov. 4, compared with the like 1938 period, the company announced yesterday. Sales totaling $1,981,911 for the four weeks, against $1,851,749 a year ago.

DOORLESS TELEPHONE BOOTHS DEVELOPED TO END SUBWAY NOISES

New York, Nov. 18 [Special].—The New York Telephone company announced today that doorless telephone booths equipped with sound-trapping devices will enable patrons of the new Sixth avenue subway line to talk and hear above the roar of the trains. Fifty-six of the booths will be installed at five stations between 53rd and 4th streets.

The new booth was developed by the Bell Telephone laboratories in collaboration with engineers of the board of transportation.

The upper halves of the booths will be lined with sound absorbent material, faced with perforated metal. Noise from outside the booths will be absorbed by their walls and ceilings and will not "bounce back" to cause reverberations.

FOOD STAMP PLAN FACES DEATH IN CITY OF NATIVITY

Banks' Service Charge Cause of Conflict.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Federal Surplus Commodity corporation's food stamp plan—conceived in Washington, born in Rochester, and dedicated to the nation's poor—tonight faced sudden death Dec. 1 in the city of its nativity.

The government, angered at the Rochester Clearing House association decision to assess a 1 per cent charge for cashing the food stamps, of which the government gives one free for every two sold to relief clients, declared, "Make the charge and we will abandon the plan."

To which adamantly replied the clearing house association: "Their redemption costs money. We charge 1 per cent for their redemption Dec. 1."

The grocers, caught between two fires, called a meeting for Monday to discuss the situation. Their stamp committee will meet with representatives of the chamber of commerce and the clearing house association.

The bankers announced this week they would make the service charge because of the extra help required to clear the stamps, which grocers deposited in lieu of cash. The stamps also are redeemable at the local FSCC offices, or may be traded to wholesalers for their products.

RAIL CAR FIRM SEEKS INTEREST IN AIR INDUSTRY

The General American Transportation corporation, Chicago freight car firm, is carrying on negotiations thru which it expects to broaden its interest in the aviation industry, Max Epstein, chairman of the board, disclosed yesterday. The corporation's deal, which has not yet been completed, Epstein said, contemplates the exchange of its 84 per cent interest in the Barkley-Grow Aircraft corporation, Detroit, for stock in the Aviation and Transportation corporation.

General American is a partner in the purchase of a block of 300,000 shares of the Aviation and Transportation, an affiliate of the Aviation corporation, from the J. Henry Schroder banking interests of London, England. Consummation of this transaction was disclosed in New York yesterday.

The purchase of the Schroder stock will give General American about 150,000 shares of Aviation and Transportation. The block of 300,000 shares was said to have been bought by the American interests, including Lehman Brothers, at $4 a share. The various dealers, it was said, would also give General American a substantial interest in Aviation corporation.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS SET EIGHT YEAR HIGH

Chicago bank clearings in the week ended yesterday were the largest for any week in eight years, Howard M. Sims, manager of the Chicago Clearing House association, said yesterday. The clearings totaled $397,000,000. The largest total of recent years was $404,813,557 in the week ended July 1, 1931. The figures follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 69,900,000	$ 8,800,000

Telenews Theater Will Open in Loop Next Month

The telenews theater, housed in the new building being erected at State and Randolph streets, will be opened next month, it was announced yesterday. Newsreels, cartoons, and other short subjects will be shown exclusively on a one hour program. The theater will seat 600.

TRADE REVIVAL AFFORDS CAUSE TO GIVE THANKS

Many Indices Reach Peak for Decade.

Business and industry came forward last week with welcome seasoning for Thanksgiving feasts in the form of old-fashioned prosperity news. Statistics of progress in many directions painted the most cheerful holiday picture in the last ten years.

Pay rolls were higher, dividend checks larger, and corporation earnings reports were still on the upgrade. Most of the accepted barometers of general business conditions maintained the advance which began in earnest early in September.

Retail merchants thruout the country began preparations for Christmas shopping with the cheerful business statistics buoying their hopes for the best shopping season since the 1929 peak. Many merchants who began displaying Christmas merchandise last week reported shoppers bought liberally.

War Is Minor Influence.

War business played a less prominent rôle in the news, altho airplane manufacturers maintained operations at top speed and machine tool builders worked against a backlog of orders which will keep them busy until next September. Both industries have been given large orders by the French and British governments. The note of skepticism expressed by business men as to the duration of the feast of war orders became more pronounced.

This factor was generally credited for the stock market's failure to respond to the largest budget of cheerful news it has had in any autumn of the last decade. Stocks idled in the rut they have occupied since the war boom quieted down in mid-September. Additional warnings were made against the fallacy of expecting the war boom to produce any permanent benefits.

While progress was maintained the pace of the advance was less rapid than in other weeks since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe.

Industrial Index Advances.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity advanced to 109.1 per cent of its 1929-'30 average, the highest level since November, 1929, from 108.6 the week before and 89.3 a year ago. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

Composite index....	*109.1	108.6	89.3
Automobile prod. ..	80.9	81.3	74.5

*1939 high.

Indices Show Variations.

Railway car loadings and electric power output declined slightly in the latest week for which figures were available, but exceeded last year's figures. Steel production, automobile output, construction awards, bank clearings, and air line traffic continued their push to higher levels.

Several of the week's developments were considered of vital importance by the business fraternity. Of major import was a federal jury's verdict holding the General Motors corporation and three affiliates guilty of violating the Sherman antitrust law. However, the verdict cleared A. P. Sloan Jr., chairman, and 16 other executives of charges of coercing dealers through time sales practices. The verdict is expected to have a far reaching effect on the industry.

War Controls Restrictive.

Chicago bankers and business men disclosed that wartime controls established by the Canadian government were already having a restrictive effect on business between this country and Canada, altho they have been in force only two months. In its transition to a wartime economy Canada has adopted controls similar to those of the dictator states of Europe.

The oil industry, which has become accustomed to startling developments, was electrified by the discovery of a fifth layer of oil in the highly productive Lake Centralia-Salem pool in southern Illinois. Oil men expected this to touch off a new drilling boom overshadowing others since the state began its climb to importance in the

TVA Director Renews Attack in Utility War

New Deal plans 600 million dollar electric hookup east of Mississippi which will vastly extend government ownership and control of power system. Story on page 13 of part 1.

Lafayette, Ala., Nov. 18 (AP).—Sharp words between executives today broke quiescent relations of the Tennessee Valley authority and the Alabama Power company, a Commonwealth and Southern corporation subsidiary.

TVA Director David E. Lilienthal declared in a speech here the company maintained a policy of "antagonism and obstruction" toward coöperative rural electrification. He expressed hope for an end to "this dog-in-the-manger policy" of fighting farmers' coöperatives.

Utility Head Denies Attack.

At Washington, President Thomas W. Martin of the Alabama Power company accused Lilienthal of "continuing the campaign of defamation of utilities" and called upon him "and others in similar positions" to cease "their unfair and untrue attacks."

A long controversy between government and public utility leaders was ended ostensibly last August 15 when the Commonwealth and Southern turned over its Tennessee Electric Power company properties to the TVA for $78,425,096.

Lilienthal criticized the Alabama subsidiary at a six-county gathering here celebrating energizing of the Tuscaloosa river electric membership corporation's 377-mile lines, financed from a $325,000 REA allotment. It is Alabama's 11th such coöperative.

Says Company Blocked Efforts.

"Last winter," he said, "I thought that the Alabama Power company would, in the spirit and following the lead of other utilities, inaugurate a policy of harmony with coöperative associations like your own, and with the REA. Instead, you have been the object of the same old policy of antagonism and obstruction."

Tallapoosa river section farmers, he said, tried unsuccessfully for twenty years to obtain rural electrification from the Alabama company and were met with "spite lines" and hostile propaganda when they undertook to do the job themselves.

Senator Lister Hill [D., Ala.] who shared the speakers' platform with Lilienthal, likewise criticized the Alabama Power company and charged that President Wendell L. Willkie of Commonwealth and Southern sought to obstruct the Tallapoosa electrification.

President Martin's Reply.

Martin, in a statement issued soon after Lilienthal spoke, said: "The Alabama Power company has a national record for building rural lines, which apparently have escaped Mr. Lilienthal's attention.

"This is natural because the program was developed before Mr. Lilienthal knew anything about the power business.

"More than 7,000 miles of rural lines, costing approximately $10,000,000 have thus been built to serve more than 36,000 customers without a single dollar donated by the federal government.

"It is apparent that Mr. Lilienthal is continuing the campaign of defamation of utilities which has rendered it impossible for utilities in the area of TVA to refinance or to raise new money for construction. If Mr. Lilienthal and others in similar positions would cease their unfair and untrue attacks, the companies could spend additional millions of dollars in putting men back to work, and make it unnecessary for the government to spend millions of dollars which it is spending in developing useless federal power projects, thus increasing the national debt to a point which is jeopardizing the national economy."

4 COAL MINES ARE CLOSED BY STRIKE CHARGE

Gillespie, Ill., Nov. 18 [U. P.].—Four Superior Coal company mines were closed today after a conference between company and Progressive Mine Workers of America Local No. 1 over discharge of 97 miners.

Company officials, it was said, discharged the men for what they alleged was a "slow down" strike. W. J. Campion, president of the local denied the strike charge, but countered with a threat of a "real one" next week if the discharged men are not returned to work.

The four mines employ approximately 2,000 men at diggings in Mount Clare, Gillespie, Wilsonville, and Sawyerville.

The four mines reportedly were supposed to be operating under a plan whereby work was divided so that all members of the local received an equal amount of work. Union officials were said to have charged the company with failing to live up to this agreement.

AIRCRAFT ENGINE CONTRACT IS LET BY WAR BUREAU

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The war department awarded today contracts totaling nearly $13,000,000 for aircraft engines to the United Aircraft corporation, Pratt and Whitney division, East Hartford, Conn.

The principal contract totaled $12,710,980 and covered the purchase of an undisclosed number of 450 horse power engines to be installed in new basic training planes, 500 horse power engines for advanced training planes, 1,000 horse power engines for the army's new consolidated four engine bombers and 1,380 horse power motors for the latest bombers.

CONTAINER CO. EARNINGS SOAR ON WAR TRADE

October Profit More Than in 9 Months.

Earnings of the Container Corporation of America, Chicago, last month were larger than the combined total for the first nine months of the year, Walter P. Paepcke, president, told stockholders yesterday in a message accompanying dividend checks. He attributed the improvement to a rush of orders which followed the outbreak of the European war.

Walter P. Paepcke.

October net earnings approximated $346,000, compared with the $285,308 shown in the previously published report for the ninth months ended with September. This brought the figures for the first 10 months of 1939 to $632,098, equal to 81 cents a share, compared with a net loss of $62,662 for the first 10 months of 1938.

Current Earnings Abnormal.

"This was abnormally good, reflective of a very favorable combination of circumstances and not indicative of anything for the future," Paepcke said in announcing the October earnings. He disclosed that last month's dollar volume of business reached $2,475,000, or only $6,000 below the corporation's peak established in April, 1937.

"While the Container corporation does not manufacture any products which are used in actual warfare," Paepcke said, "most products which are used by belligerents are packaged in protective containers. Therefore, the container industry will participate to that extent in any war orders which may be placed.

"September business had largely been booked at prewar prices and was penalized by immediate sharp raw material advances.

No Prosperity in Warfare.

"From our last war experience, it is evident that there is no lasting prosperity to be found in the wartime dislocations of business and price structures. The additional profits of industry are usually more than swept away by the inescapable aftermath of post-war readjustments."

Paepcke said an unusually large backlog of business assures larger than normal operations this month and next. Forecasting that reserves already established against inventory depreciation and other contingencies will prove more than adequate, he said "a rather large year-end credit adjustment may be added to operating profits" for the full year.

The Container corporation reopened a paper mill at Wilmington, Del., recently to handle the rush of business, Paepcke said.

Mexican Court Recesses in Oil Land Seizure Case

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Mexican Supreme court today recessed until Tuesday after devoting a two hour session to consideration of its opinion on the government's expropriation of the foreign oil industry. A large stack of documents on hand still to be read indicated further prolonged examination of the case.

WHEAT FIRMER; NO RELIEF FROM DROUTH IN SIGHT

Only Light Showers Are Forecast This Week.

There is little prospect of the record drouth over a large part of the winter wheat belt being broken this week, the weather bureau indicated yesterday in a long range forecast. Clear skies with temperatures normal or above are expected to prevail, except for probable showers tomorrow in parts of the extreme southern portion of the lower Missouri valley.

Wheat traders took their cue from the long range weather forecast and turned to the buying side of that grain, lifting prices about 1 cent from the early low. Shorts found offerings light when they tried to cover. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were at gains of ⅝ to ⅞ cent.

December Wheat Leads Rise.

December wheat led the advance and went to 2½ cents above the May delivery at one time. Earlier in the month the nearby delivery sold at a premium of only ¾ cent. Cash houses were persistent buyers of the December contracts and sellers of the May option.

Crop experts estimate there are about 15,000,000 acres of winter wheat in the area suffering from what is characterized as a condition of extreme drouth, and 10,000,000 acres or more that are much in need of rain. About 46,000,000 acres of winter wheat were seeded last fall for the 1940 harvest.

Soy beans showed independent strength and closed 2 to 2¼ cents higher. The December and May deliveries sold at new high prices for the season and went into new ground since March, 1938. Short covering and local buying were responsible for the upturn, brokers said.

Big Soy Bean Traffic Expected.

Several million bushels of soy beans are expected to be shipped from Chicago via lake before the close of navigation.

In some quarters it is believed that some of the large processors failed to buy heavily during the early part of the season, and have been forced to compete with export interests for the relatively small amount of beans offered for sale recently in the country.

Corn prices held within narrow limits and closed ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher. Oats closed ⅛ to ½ cent higher.

STOCK MARKET ABOUT STEADY IN LIGHT TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—Stocks firmed up in the late trading today to give the market a steady appearance at the close. Few issues, however, had a range of even a point, and net gains rarely exceeded fractions. Trading dwindled to the smallest amount for a Saturday since Oct. 14, on turnover of 276,560 shares.

Automobile shares were firmer but some traders looked on their performance as disappointing. It was generally expected that prediction of a settlement of the Chrysler strike over the week-end, permitting workers to return to their jobs Monday might influence a revival of buying. Instead activity was limited.

For the first hour and a half all transactions in Chrysler were at 89½. In the next half hour it moved to 89⅞ and closed there for a net gain of ⅞. General Motors also finished with a gain of ⅞.

Steel issues generally held small fractional gains at the close. Utility stocks and rails moved ahead slightly. Airplane stocks were firm to a little higher.

COTTON

Cotton showed a strong undertone yesterday with mill buying a feature. Closing trades on buyers were at gains of .01 to .09 cent a pound with October showing the most strength. Reports from the south indicated farmers were dissatisfied with the loan price on the current year's crop.

The British government has offered to purchase 155,000,000 pounds of Egyptian cotton at the closing price on Nov. 11, it was officially announced. While the price is above the minimum fixed by the Egyptian government on Oct. 25, the parliamentary committee stated that they were neither compatible with the present state of the market nor with the improvement to be expected. The committee advised the government to continue negotiations regarding the price.

Consumption of cotton in European countries was reported high, but censorship regulations prevents the publication of the weekly spinners takings, it was reported.

Spot cotton closed .05 cent higher with New York, 9.68 cents; New Orleans, 9.76 cents; Houston, 9.30 cents, and Galveston at 9.42 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Report Russia Bought Supply of Copper.

Trades in the nonferrous metals last week were outstanding in an otherwise colorless commodities market. New York copper futures, after a week of irregular price changes, closed yesterday at 11.65 cents a pound, a slight advance over the price on Nov. 10.

Russia acquired between 2,000 and 5,000 tons of copper last week, at a price of approximately 13 cents a pound, it was reported yesterday. Japanese interests were interested onlookers at the commodity markets but have not yet placed actual orders for the metal, it was said.

Tin Market Advances.

Tin, which pointed mostly upward during the week, closed at ... cents a pound, against 47.15 a week earlier.

The price of silk, which dipped to $3.17 a pound on Wednesday, resumed its rise toward the end of the week, closing yesterday at $3.27. Wool tops, cottonseed oil, coffee, and cocoa were steady to slightly higher.

The only feature of a quiet commodities market yesterday was sugar futures, which fell on scattered selling after early steadiness. Buying interest was restricted by a dull raw sugar trade and by the recent reduction bringing refined southern sugar to a basis of 4.80 cents a pound.

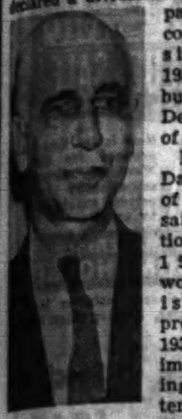
PURE OIL PAYS DIVIDEND AFTER TWO YEAR LAPSE

Votes 25 Cent Payment on Common Stock.

The Pure Oil company yesterday declared a dividend of 25 cents, first payment on the common stock since Dec. 1, 1937. The distribution is payable Dec. 20 to stock of record Dec. 1.



Henry M. Dawes.

Henry M. Dawes, president of the company, said that indications were that 1939 earnings would show a satisfactory improvement over 1938 because of improved operating results. Better operating conditions are noticeable in practically all the company's activities, he said, but largely in refining results, which he attributed to an extensive rehabilitation and rebuilding program recently completed by that division.

Clark Equipment Dividends.

Clark Equipment company declared a special disbursement of 75 cents on the common stock in addition to an interim dividend of 25 cents, bringing total payments on common stock to $1.25 for the year, against 25 cents in 1938. The dividends are payable Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Nov. 29.

Monsanto Chemical company declared a year-end dividend of $1.50, bringing the total for the year to $3, in comparison with $2 in 1938. The dividend is payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Dec. 1. The directors also voted a regular dividend of $2.25 on series A and B preferred stock, payable June 1 to holders of record May 10.

Maryland Fund increased its dividend from five cents to 10 cents, and voted a dividend of that amount payable Dec. 15 to holders of record Nov. 30. The payment brings the year's total to 26 cents, against 14 cents in cash and three per cent in stock voted in 1938.

Aetna Ball Bearing Extra.

An extra dividend declared by the Aetna Ball Bearing Manufacturing company, brought total 1939 payments on common stock to $1.40, in comparison with 50 cents in 1938. The extra is payable Dec. 1, the same date on which a quarterly payment already declared is due, to stockholders of record Dec. 1. The company also declared a regular quarterly disbursement of 35 cents, payable March 15 to holders of record March 1, an increase of 10 cents in the quarterly rate.

BUSINESS BOOKS

"Step Out and Sell," by William E. Holler. [The Dartness Press, $1.50.]

Here is a book written by a master salesman for salesmen. Tho intended for salesmen, is contains inspiration for anyone who works for a living. Holler is the sales manager of the Chevrolet division of General Motors. In the period from Oct. 16, 1933, thru October, 1939, he has directed a sales organization that has sold $4,709,235,-000 of new and used automobiles—a record said to be without parallel in the automobile industry.

"What is your philosophy of life and living?" he asks in the opening paragraph. "Are you a doer or a dreamer? Do you work for things or do you just wait for them? Are you a force or an obstruction?"

Holler has a recipe for sales success. It is work, plan, study. He says he does not believe in the "born salesman." Success is achieved only thru study and planning, and then more study, he declares.

"When we make things happen by careful planning, they are usually good things, and when we let things happen to us, they are usually bad things," he declares. Holler's book is written clearly and concisely.

GIANT CONVEYOR BELT 9½ MILES LONG TO HELP BUILD SHASTA DAM

Akron, O., Nov. 18 [Special].—Twice as large as any ever made and looking something like a prehistoric monster, a giant conveyor belt is being manufactured here by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. It is for use in construction of the Shasta dam in California.

The belt will measure 9.5 miles, weight about 1,500,000 pounds and will be mechanized with 23 200-horse power motors. It will be used to carry sand and gravel from Redding to Coram, Cal., which it will do at the rate of 1,100 tons per hour at a speed of 550 feet per minute.

One thousand bales of cotton and nearly a million pounds of rubber will be used in making the belt. It will require 20 miles of 36-inch, 6 ply rubber and cotton belting.

Roughly following the general contour of the rolling desert between Redding and Coram, the belt will cross the Sacramento river at two points, pass over one state highway, five county roads, four creeks and the main line of the Southern Pacific railroad.

ILLS OF WAR TAKE YEARS TO CURE, EXCHANGE WARNS

Industry Asks Peace, Martin Says.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—William McChesney Martin Jr., president of the New York Stock exchange, said today in the initial issue of "Exchange," a new monthly magazine published by the exchange, that altho war stimulates industrial production, its aftermath will "bring serious problems of readjustment that will require years before normal economic balance can be reattained."

"If there is any question between war profits and peace," he said, "let there be no doubt in any mind that American business and industry chooses peace, knowing that only thru the sane and orderly processes of peacetime activity, the system of free enterprise operates at its best.

"The huge costs of the world war would have been sufficient to have supplied [1] every family in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany, Russia, Belgium, and Australia with a $2,500 house on a $500 lot of at least one acre, with $1,000 worth of furniture; [2] a $5,000,000 library for every community of 200,000 inhabitants in those countries; [3] a $10,000,000 university for every such community; [4] a fund that at 5 per cent interest would yield enough to pay indefinitely $1,000 a year to an army of 125,000 teachers and 125,000 nurses, and [5] still leave enough to buy every piece of property and all wealth in France and Belgium at a fair market price."

BRITISH, FRENCH ARE PAYING THRU RESERVE BANK

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The British and French governments are making payment for wartime purchases in the United States thru the New York Federal Reserve bank, it was reliably reported in Wall street banking circles today.

Some leading bankers defended the action of the reserve bank in paying out on order British and French funds for these purchases, but others asserted some competent legal opinion here raised the question of whether the bank's action may not violate international law covering neutrality.

Officials of the reserve bank, who rarely talk for publication, refused to comment.

SWIFT & CO. PLAN TO SELL LIBBY STOCK APPROVED

Public Offer Is Expected Next Spring.

A plan of Swift & Co. for the disposal of its $23,870,000 stock interest in Libby, McNeill & Libby—as ordered by a federal court—was approved yesterday by Federal Judge Thomas Jennings Bailey in the United States district court in Washington, D. C.

Swift & Co. announced yesterday that as a result of the action it is negotiating with an underwriting group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co., Chicago investment house, to offer to the public the stock which it must sell. The offering is expected to be made next spring.

Result of Federal Drive.

The Chicago packing company had been ordered to submit a plan for the disposal of its interest in Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago food packing and distributing company, not later than Dec. 5, 1940. The action resulted from an anti-trust drive initiated by the federal government 20 years ago to compel packing companies to dispose of their holdings in companies doing a business not related directly to the meat packing business.

The next step in the program provides that the present stock of Libby, McNeill & Libby be reorganized thru action by the shareholders, which is expected to be accomplished before Feb. 1, 1940.

The present Libby, McNeill stock of no par value and of a stated value of $7 a share will be exchanged share for share for a new common stock of $7 a share. Each share of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock will be exchanged for 12 shares of common stock.

Price To Be Set Later.

Upon completion of the audit for the fiscal year ending March 2, 1940, application will be made to the Securities and Exchange commission for the registration of the Swift holdings of about 3,000,000 shares of the new common stock. The sale to the public will be made at a price to be determined when the stock is ready for sale. The proceeds will be paid to Swift when the shares are delivered to the buyers.

Libby, McNeill common stock currently has been selling at about $7 a share. There is little activity in the preferred issue.

COAL FIGHT DATA PLAN DECLARED TOO BURDENSOME

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Suspension of all current activities of the statistical section of the federal coal division would be necessary to compile sales data requested by the Carter Coal company, statisticians for the division estimated today. Even then, with all other activities halted, they said, the 350 employés in the statistical section couldn't round up the sales data in less than 55 weeks.

Their estimates were given by Tom Hunter, chief of the statistical division in an affidavit filed with the examiners conducting hearings on proposed minimum prices for sale of coal at the mines.

Herbert Jacobi, vice president of the Carter company, in requesting that the data be made available for inspection, has contended that without it he would be unable to present a fair and full case against the proposed prices.

Hunter said the division had 240 statistical workers in field offices and another 110 in Washington.

RAYON WORKERS TAKE PAY CUT TO SAVE PLANT

Marcus Hook, Pa., Nov. 18 [Special].—Employés of the American Viscose corporation's rayon plant here voted today to accept a wage cut of 8 to 10 per cent. The vote was conducted by the Textile Workers' Union of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, after it had been learned that the company might close the mill and throw 1,500 out of work. Favoring the wage cut were 699 workers, with 350 opposing its acceptance.

Under the proposal, which will become effective on Dec. 3, the work week will be increased from 32 to 40 hours, the force will be increased to 1,620, pensions will be paid to employés over 65, those said to be unqualified will be dismissed, and some others will be transferred to lower bracket jobs.

The plan is to be operated on an experimental basis for six months.

Washington Park National to Pay More to Depositors

The eighth distribution to depositors of the closed Washington Park National bank was announced yesterday by George D. Crowley, receiver, 1525 East 53d street. A 5 per cent repayment of depositors' funds will return them $334,851, and bring their total return since closing of the bank to $4,697,360, or 70 per cent.

industry a few years ago. A minor boom in Nebraska also occupied the attention of the industry.

Look to South America.

Business men still looked hopefully to South America as an expanding market for American products, particularly since the war has cut off usual sources of Latin American supplies, but their hopes were tempered considerably. This was because of increasing indications that the United States, in building up the South American markets, may be called upon to finance the undertaking. The United States was described as the "key" to an investment plan for exploitation of Latin American potentialities developed at the Pan-American treasury conference at Guatemala City.

Freight traffic over the nation's railways declined less than seasonally in the week ended Nov. 11; operating reports continued to reflect the faster pace of operations, and the carriers placed new orders for equipment. At 785,961 cars, the week's loadings were 2.5 per cent below those of the preceding week, but 23.5 per cent ahead of last year.

Industrial Factors Compared.

Electric power production in the week ended Nov. 11 was down 0.9 per cent from the preceding week's level, but topped last year by 13.8 per cent. Last week's advance in automobile production was checked by the Chrysler strikes. The total of 86,700 cars was 500 above the preceding week's level, and compared with 96,735 a year ago.

Steel mills raised their production another notch, altho the war boom had taxed the industry's capacity nearly to the limit. At 93.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, tonnage output was figured to be running about 15 per cent above the 1929 weekly average.

There were indications that the steel ingots were being converted into manufactured products almost immediately, with consumers' inventories held down to a normal level. The steel mills' consumption of steel scrap in October "apparently set a record," according to the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel.

Heavy Building Expands.

Industrial expansion was reflected in engineering construction awards totaling $96,416,000 in the week ended last Tuesday, the second largest amount recorded thus far in 1939. October home building, involving $118,303,000 in 37 eastern states, reached the highest level for any month since April, 1937. Leaders of the construction industry at a meeting in Washington, D. C., predicted the gains would be extended into 1940.

Air travel in October broke all records for the fifth consecutive month. As aviation factories on the east and west coasts worked at top speed filling a record number of orders, Chicago came into the news as a plane manufacturing center. The Howard Aircraft corporation, the city's lone airplane maker, demonstrated improvements in a new model approved by the civil aeronautics authority.

Bank Clearings Increase.

Bank clearings in 22 leading cities increased 2.5 per cent in the week ended Nov. 15, and showed a larger gain over the comparable period of 1938. Bankers' acceptances outstanding at the end of October registered their first increase since May, due largely to an increase in bills to finance imports.

Business executives who need capital for plant expansion were cheered by a modest resumption of new financing. The first major loan to be offered publicly since the war's start—30 million dollars in New York City securities—was hailed in bond circles as the forerunner of new corporate financing.

Trade in Chicago Stocks Quiet; Minor Gains Shown

Trading in stocks on the Chicago exchange yesterday was restricted to 16,000 shares. Altho advances outnumbered the declines, the gains were generally of fractional amounts. Hall Printing, normally a quiet issue, joined the more active list and rose ¾ point net to a new high at 18¼. A few trades in Mountain States Power put the stock up 4 points to a new peak for the year at 73½. Commonwealth Edison, the volume leader, closed unchanged at 31⅛. Volume of trading in the last week totaled 136,-000 shares, against 157,000 in the preceding week and 155,000 a year ago.

BRITISH EXPERT OFFERS PLAN TO AVOID INFLATION

Would 'Impound' Part of Most Incomes.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—John Maynard Keynes, a leading British economist, urges the government to strengthen its financial war sinews to prevent currency inflation in this country. He would force the public to cut down its consumption and hand over part of its earnings to the state.

John Maynard Keynes.

Keynes' idea is that a proportion of all incomes, except the lowest classes should be deducted at their source. After taking out any payments for income tax the government would absorb the surplus into the war fund. At the end of the war the public would get back its so-called "blocked savings" in installments plus interest at 2½ per cent. He estimates that the scheme would bring in around $1,600,000,000 yearly for the treasury coffers at low rates.

Purposes of Proposal.

The plan, according to Keynes, is designed to reduce the purchasing power in wartime when the civilian production is curtailed and to release it afterward when the position is reversed so as to avoid the dangers of inflation now and deflation after the war. Keynes set out his arguments and conclusions in two articles in the London Times this week.

The immediate financial danger confronting Britain, he contends, is the rising scale of workers' wages coupled with the reduced output of civilian goods. Keynes estimates that the country's wage bill will expand about $2,000,000,000 yearly in wartime. On the other hand, British industry is directed more to war production, and, as the purchasing power of the workers increases, there are fewer commodities for them to buy.

Serious Inflation Possible.

Without a government brake, Keynes says, the shortage of goods combined with the increased demand arising from higher wages will send prices soaring and likely will end in an inflationary nightmare. A counteracting influence, the compulsory levy, he maintains, would be "nearly as good as a 10 per cent fall in the real wages."

Rationing and antiprofiteering measures, Keynes holds, will not help because they simply deflect the purchasing power to other lines and do not affect the trend of prices.

He then examines two other suggested remedies and rejects them. The first is to let prices rise sufficiently to wipe out wage increases and to achieve a new sort of economic equilibrium. This he dismisses on the ground that it would expand living costs and hit the poorer sections of the population hardest. In fact, living costs in Britain rose 8.75 per cent during the first two months of the war, according to government figures issued this week, and Keynes expects a further 20 per cent rise.

View on Taxation.

The second measure to combat inflation and surveyed by Keynes is increased taxation. But here again, he declares, there is the danger of industrial effort falling off if the workers are directly deprived of the benefits of extra wages. The income tax, according to Keynes, misses the smaller incomes and already is overdone in the high grades. He warns that "there is a fatal family resemblance between the burocracies of Moscow, Berlin, and Whitehall, and we must be careful."

Under his proposed forced levy, the economist explains, the workers would get paid in full but not all in cash. A slice varying with the size of the income would be held in the form of a blocked deposit at government controled postoffice savings banks.

Keynes suggests that the levy be applied to all weekly wages exceeding $7 for unmarried and $9 for married men with an extra $1.50 for each child. Out of incomes in excess of this figure the government would take a chunk varying from 20 per cent for the $600 a year class to 80 per cent where incomes reached $80,-000 a year or more.

Keynes' drastic scheme is condemned in some quarters as symptomatic of the growing passion for coercion and regimentation.

Announce Building Program of 120 New Homes in Irving Park Road Project

TWENTY-SEVEN HOUSES UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Future Plans Are Based on Buying by Public.

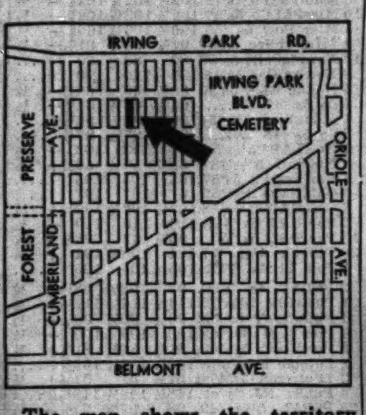
BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One hundred twenty new homes during the next 12 months is the building program of Feuerborn & Klode, Inc., announced yesterday for their development between Irving Park road and Belmont avenue, east of Cumberland avenue. During the last 12 months the firm has built to order 27 residences. All were sold before erection and all are occupied. The firm does no speculative building.

In addition to the 27 houses completed Feuerborn & Klode have 27 more in various stages of finance and construction. Sixteen are being considered by the Federal Housing administration and 11 are being built.

Program Based on Buying.

The program for the next 12 months is based, it was said, on the attitude of the home buying public during the last few months. Contracts for 27 homes were signed in a period of 10 weeks, according to Joseph H. Feuerborn.



The map shows the territory covered by Feuerborn & Klode in their present building program. They originally owned 510 acres. They still have more than a thousand lots as prospective home sites. The arrow shows the location of the row of houses pictured elsewhere on this page.

Most of the homes built or building are of frame construction, with four to six rooms, and cost their owners from $5,000 to $6,350.

Four of the eleven houses under construction in the area have solid brick walls. They all have six rooms and sell for $5,950 each, including 40 foot lot.

All of the Feuerborn & Klode prices are for complete residential units—land, construction costs, all financing charges, and title expense, it was said.

Financed by FHA Loans.

The houses are all financed with FHA twenty-five year insured loans with monthly payments of from $32 to $37.50. These prices include lots, which are figured at about $22 a front foot. Thus, a 30 foot lot would cost $660. Most of the lots platted in 1923 have 30 feet of frontage. These are being replatted into 35 and 40 foot lots, it was said.

Feuerborn & Klode in 1921 began acquiring property in this area. Eventually they owned 510 acres bounded on the east by Oriole avenue, on the north by Irving Park road, by Cumberland avenue on the west, and Belmont avenue on the south.

There are now said to be four thousand families in the area. Feuerborn & Klode still own 1,050 lots scattered through the original holdings. Water, electricity, and sewers are all in and paid for, and streets have been paved by the WPA. There are no special assessments, it was said.

Homes Sold and Built by Feuerborn & Klode

(Story in adjoining column.)

These are some of the homes built, and all sold before construction began, by Feuerborn & Klode in their big west side development. This view is the east side of Pioneer avenue looking south from Byron street. These homes cost, complete, from $5,000 to $6,350. They have from four to six rooms. All have basements, some have fireplaces, and all of the housewives cook with electricity. Across the street a $4,990 home owned by Charles A. Jagade, at 3914 Pioneer avenue, was completed yesterday. Today and during this week, prior to the owner moving in, it will be open for inspection. Two blocks east of this house, at 3923 Panama avenue, a $6,000 brick house has just been completed for Eric and Lydia Schoepper. This also will be open to the public today and during the week.

Buys Bryn Mawr-Wolcott Corner; Will Build Bakery

The southwest corner of Bryn Mawr avenue and Wolcott street, 200 by 150 feet, was sold yesterday by the Trust Company of Chicago, as trustee, to Heinemann's Bakeries. According to Milton Moses, broker for the seller, work will be started tomorrow on a one story bakery, covering 17,000 square feet. It will serve the 12 branch stores now operated by Heinemann, it was said.

News of the Architects

"Large Scale Small House Developments" will be the subject of a motion picture of New York building activity to be shown at a meeting of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects next Tuesday evening, Nov. 21, at Normandy house, 800 Tower court. Speakers will be John R. O'Connor, state director of the Federal Housing administration, and William D. Sorgarz, chairman of the small house committee of the A. I. A.

First Church in South Side Area Planned

The Chatham Fields area, bounded by 79th and 83d streets and South Park and Cottage Grove avenues, is to have its first church. Until recently there were restrictions in deeds prohibiting the erection of church edifices, according to the Rev. Laurence A. Boseck, pastor of the Chatham Fields Evangelical Lutheran church.

Preliminary work is under way on a $100,000 church edifice for that congregation at the northwest corner of St. Lawrence avenue and East 81st street, in the center of the area. The corner stone will be laid today at 3 p. m.

The church, organized last June, has temporary quarters outside of the area, at 7909 Maryland avenue. It will move into the new church about the middle of January, according to present plans.

The church, designed by Architect Albert Frederic Heino, will be built in two units. The main edifice will seat 500 persons. The chapel will have 265 seats.

The corner stone of the above $100,000 edifice of the Chatham Fields Evangelical Lutheran church, at the northwest corner of St. Lawrence avenue and East 81st street, will be laid at 3 p. m. today. It was designed by Albert Frederic Heino and will have exterior walls of stone. This will be the first church edifice to be built in the Chatham Fields area, it was said.

LIFT TAXPAYER BUILDING ROOF TO INSERT STORY

The roof of the two story taxpayer at the southwest corner of Wabash and Adams is being lifted and a third story is under construction. This will give the Adams-State Building corporation, Ben Warshauer, president, space for about 60 more cars in its garage quarters. It now has accommodations for about 120 cars on the second floor and roof. The roof will continue to be used for open air parking. The building is owned by the D. Mark Cummings estate. W. C. Melohn is renting agent. The building, erected in 1937 from plans by Alfred S. Alschuler, Inc., has foundations for another story when needed.

Will Build Oil Plant at Ashland and 45th

The King Oil company yesterday bought from Armour & Co. the northeast corner of Ashland and 45th for a reported $22,000. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. was broker. A $20,000 gasoline and oil distributing plant will be built, it was said.

Install New Elevators at 3000 Sheridan Road

Wirtz, Haynie & Ehrat, Inc., managers of the 17 story apartment building at 3000 Sheridan road, said that the Sherwell Realty company has contracted for the installation of six new elevators to cost $60,000.

Katz Millinery Chain Leases Sites for Two New Loop Stores

The Katz Exclusive Millinery corporation's offer to lease the property at 20-22 South State street for 46 years from the Chicago board of education has been accepted, it was announced yesterday. The lease probably will be signed this week. The annual rental for the property, improved with a six story building, 24x120, will be $32,000 until May 8, 1945. Thereafter there will be a revaluation every 10 years.

The lease will provide that the company spend a minimum of $75,000 in improving the property. However, Samuel Katz, president of the corporation, said that considerably more than the minimum probably will be spent. He said it has not yet been decided whether to remodel the building or raze it and erect a new one. J. E. Ehrenhalt & Co. and the Coen-Block Company, Inc., were brokers in the lease negotiations.

Another lease was negotiated by the Katz organization for space in the Palmer House. Ground floor area 18 by 105 feet at 105 South State street, and basement space containing 5,000 square feet, was leased for 10 years beginning Feb. 1, 1940, on a minimum guarantee basis plus percentage of sales.

The new unit will be used by the company's present store in the Palmer House.

A new store front will be installed and the interior completely remodeled, it was said.

Following a plan inaugurated in 1931 by Robert B. Witwer, real estate agent of the Palmer House, whereby the tenant pays a stipulated sum to be spent for newspaper advertising, the Katz lease provides for similar expenditures.

The Katz company, organized in 1914, has 19 millinery stores in the Chicago metropolitan area and has several out of town units.

Houses in Chatham Park to Be Electric Equipped

Installation of 1,462 electrical units in the Chatham Park apartments, now under construction at Cottage Grove avenue and 83d street, was announced yesterday by George H. Dovenmuehle, vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc., and president of Chatham Park, Inc. This is one of the largest orders for electrical household equipment ever made in the middle west. It will include 554 electric kitchens, and the same number of electric refrigerators. Laundries also will be equipped with electric washers, dryers, and ironers.

ALDERMAN LISTS ADVANTAGES OF BRICK VENEER

Predicts Wider Selection of Materials.

Adoption by the city council of the proposed building code amendment, which would permit brick veneer construction of residences in certain localities in Chicago, will give home builders a wider selection of construction materials than they now have, Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] said yesterday. Ald. Duffy is chairman of the council building committee subcommittee which recently recommended the amendment and is sponsor of the proposal.

In its present form the building code permits only brick, stone, or concrete exterior wall construction for homes within the city fire limits. Ald. Duffy said it has been reported many small homes are built outside the city because of these restrictions.

Little Difference in Cost.

The proposed amendment would permit brick veneer, which consists of a layer of brick outside a frame wall structure, in a city block which is already 51 per cent frame construction.

A survey of architects and building contractors yesterday indicated there is little difference in the cost of the two types of construction.

One leading building contractor said there is no cost differential and another said in the case of an $8,000 six room modern residence the cost differential would be less than $100. He said brick veneer would cost slightly more than solid brick walls.

"Some people like solid brick walls and some brick veneer, so give them their choice," one builder commented.

A large building material firm executive said use of brick veneer would enable a much larger variety in architectural design.

Has Two Layers of Bricks.

According to standard building practices a brick house has a wall composed of two layers of four inch bricks to which is attached one by two inch "firring" strips of wood, 16 inches apart. The lath material and plaster are attached to the firring strips.

Brick veneer construction consists of a wall of brick, one brick thick, supported on the foundation and attached by the firring strips to wooden or composition sheeting, which covers the two-by-four vertical studs of the wall. The lath material and plaster are inside the studding.

An advantage of brick veneer construction, according to contractors and architects, is that two dead air spaces, one between the brick wall and sheet, provided by the firring strips, and another between the two-by-four studs, are provided. This dead air space is regarded as having good insulation properties.

Called More Fireproof.

The only dead air space in the solid brick wall construction, unless tiles are placed between the brick wall and plaster, is the one inch space provided by the firring material.

Advocates of solid brick wall construction maintain it is more fireproof than brick veneer. Some of them also claim that the brick wall itself is a valuable insulating material. Another argument in favor of solid brick walls is that there is a possibility in brick veneer of the outer wall cracking or becoming separated from the interior wooden wall in the event the building should settle at an interior point. Advocates of brick veneer discount this argument and assert there is no such danger any more than there is danger of the solid brick wall cracking from settlement.

2,844 HOLC Loans Paid in Illinois

Loans totaling $9,327,598 have been repaid by 2,844 Illinois borrowers of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, according to Fred B. Bourland, state manager of the HOLC. In addition 51,888 other borrowers, he said yesterday, are in satisfactory standing and clearly on their way to debt-free home ownership. About 6,500 additional borrowers are making adjusted payments.

In all, Illinois borrowers have repaid $61,084,083, or 21.9 per cent of the HOLC loans made in the state. The HOLC refinanced 69,985 mortgages in Illinois, amounting to $279,438,542, during the period from June 13, 1933, to June 12, 1936.

The HOLC now owns 2,551 properties in Illinois, acquired thru foreclosure or voluntary deed. It has sold 4,144 others, 1,705 of which were sold during the last eight months, including 248 in August.

Of the homes still in the possession of the HOLC and available to yield income, 94.8 per cent are rented. Rental collections in August were 99.9 per cent of billings, Bourland said.

COLONY THEATER IS PURCHASED FOR $170,000 CASH

The Colony theater and business building at the northwest corner of Kedzie avenue and West 59th street, lot 175x126 feet, was sold yesterday by the Metropolitan Trust company, trustees under a liquidation trust, to the Colony Building corporation. According to Mort D. Goldberg, attorney for the buyer, $170,000 cash was paid. The building contains the 1,700 seat Colony theater, nine stores, four offices, and twelve apartments.

OFFICE SPACE SHOWS GAIN IN UNITED STATES

National office occupancy has made a fractional gain since May, 1939, according to a survey completed yesterday by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. It now stands at 82.35 per cent, which is 0.12 per cent higher than last May. For six years the trend has been slowly upward, the survey shows.

PEACE TO BE THANKSGIVING THEME

CHURCH NINETY YEARS OLD IS TO CELEBRATE

18 Dutch Founders of Roseland Unit.

The First Reformed church of Roseland will celebrate 90 years of spiritual progress Thanksgiving night with special services commemorating the faith, sacrifices, and struggles of its founders. The founders were 18 Dutch emigrants who came to High Prairie, as Roseland was called in 1849, and established a place for Sunday worship less than a month after they started building homes on the rich earth southwest of Chicago.

The Rev. John Klaaren.

Under the present pastor, the Rev. John Klaaren, the congregation includes 350 families, 822 communicants, and 656 Sunday school pupils. A dozen pastors, 75 elders, and 103 deacons have served during the nine decades of its history, and 20 of its sons have gone into the ministry.

The program Thursday will be featured by an anniversary address by Dr. Simon Blocker, former member of the congregation, who is professor in the department of practical theology in the Western Theological seminary. The Rev. Henry Harmeling, now emeritus, the only former pastor still alive, also will deliver an address.

Expect Foreign Greetings.

Greeting are expected to be received from the church's missionaries in Arabia, Dr. John Van Ess, D. D., and C. Stanley Mylrea, M. D., as well as its ex-missionary, Mrs. I. W. Jones, the former Miss Swatina De Young. Classis Chicago, sectional organization, was represented by the Rev. Harry Hoffs, and Classis Illinois by the Rev. G. J. Rozeboom.

The first services of the church were conducted in a barn. These Dutch pioneers were religious and worship was regarded as more important than the place in which it was offered.

Under the leadership of Pieter De Jong, the little band of men, women, and children from the province of North Holland had arrived in Chicago in June, 1849, and after 13 days of exploration finally settled in what is now Roseland. Then it was High Prairie, in contrast to the nearby South Holland district called Low Prairie.

First Build Homes.

First came the building of homes, made difficult by the fact that lumber had to be drawn by ox teams from 10 miles away. Deeply spiritual, the settlers attended services for a few Sundays in Low Prairie but because a six mile journey was necessary plans were soon drawn to organize a local congregation.

The first congregation was called "De Hollandsche Gereformeerde Gemeente in de Hooge Prairie" and the first consistory was installed on Sept. 23, 1849, by the Rev. W. C. Wust, pastor of the Holland church in Low Prairie, who assisted the new church members.

Elder Jacob De Jong was president of the consistory and Deacon Pieter De Jong was the clerk for the next 40 years. The Lord's Supper was observed for the first time on Dec. 23, 1849, in the barn which had been set aside for worship.

The first church was erected in the spring of 1850 and six years later, under its first minister, the Rev. M. A. Ypma, who divided his time between Low Prairie and High Prairie, a larger church was built to care for the increasing membership. The years 1857 and 1858 are described as having seen the greatest spiritual revival in the history of the Roseland church.

First Parsonage Built.

In 1865, when the pastoral arrangement with Low Prairie was dissolved and the Rev. Peter Lepeltak was installed as pastor, the first parsonage was built. Two years later an expanding congregation again required the building of a new church, to which an organ and galleries were added later.

Since that time the following pastors have served the church: The Rev. H. R. Kloopman [1870-'77], the Rev. D. C. Kriekard [1879-'84], the Rev. Berend Van Ess [1884-1900], the Rev. William Moerdyk [1900-'05], the Rev. Henry Hospers [1906-'09], the Rev. Martin Flipse [1909-'13], the Rev. J. F. Heemstra [1914-'19], the Rev. Henry Harmeling [1921-'29], and the Rev. Mr. Klaaren, who was installed Aug. 14, 1930.

During the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Heemstra the congregation purchased the home at the northeast corner of Wabash and 107th street, which has been used since then as the parsonage. The old parsonage was moved from the church premises and became the Holland Home for the Aged. In 1915 the present chapel was erected. It is used for the Sunday school and weekly church activities.

South Side Zonta.

Betty Browning, women's club editor of THE TRIBUNE, will speak at the dinner meeting of Chicago South Side Zonta club at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening in the Broadview hotel.

Flyer's Jaunt Across Equator Wins a Crowd

BY EDWIN STOLL.

This is not primarily a "plug" for the pulling power of THE TRIBUNE classified section. It just happens that an ad in that mass of small type, Oct. 14 and 15, is the logical beginning.

Lieut. James W. Allen.

It read: "Flying South America Jan. 1 priv. plane; take 4-5; shr. exp.; pilot has army and air line exp. Lt. Allen, HYDE PARK 7577." Forty persons responded, and Lieut. James W. Allen, 5314 Blackstone avenue, has formed his party for his aviator's holiday, outdoing the proverbial postman.

A pilot for the United Airlines on the Chicago to Cheyenne semi-weekly run and a reserve officer in the army, he will receive a two months' vacation, beginning Jan. 1. He and his brother-in-law had planned this South American cruise for 18 months. Then the latter discovered he would be unable to leave.

Depart New Year's Day.

The ad was the result, and as social and financial partners, Lieut. Allen now lists Seward Bowers, an attorney from Benton Harbor, Mich.; Miss June Sprau, Lake Forest, and Miss Fritz Zylstra, 5308 Kenwood avenue. Two others will be selected before the jaunt begins.

Foregoing New Year's eve whoopee, the group plans to take off in Lieut. Allen's five-place Ryan cabin ship at 8 o'clock, Jan. 1, and reach Brownsville, Tex., that night. Then they will head down over Mexico, Central America, and the west coast of South America to Santiago, Chile. From there they will cut east thru a pass in the towering Andes mountains to Mendoza, Argentina. Buenos Aires and Rio de Janiero are the last stops on the 8,000 mile leisurely journey thru 13 countries, expected to be completed in two weeks.

In Rio the group will break up and return by boat, some members immediately. A flight back, Lieut. Allen explains, would necessarily retrace about 75 per cent of the route, so he plans to sell his plane. He and Mr. Bowers probably will remain for about five weeks, making side trips and hunting excursions.

Maps Lack Details.

Maps for the journey cost $100, and even then they are not reliable, he explains. Airplane pilots who have covered the South American west coast many times say that they are not precise. Some of the charts even carry boxes in the corner describing the percentage of accuracy which can be expected for some of the inland sections, which have been little explored. Most of the maps he obtained from the navy department, the National Geographic society, and the air corps, which in many instances received them from South American surveys.

A blond genial man, only 26 years old, Lieut. Allen has been flying for 10 years, and has never had a crackup. While in the army service, however, he did crash in a ship piloted by another officer at Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala. Both were soaked with gasoline, but luckily no fire started. Neither was hurt seriously, but the plane was demolished.

Fears Motor Traffic.

He is an example of boyhood fulfilled. Like many another youth, he dreamed of flying and teased his mother for money to take lessons. Finally she gave him $200 for which he received 10 hours of instruction at a school in Syracuse, N. Y., near his home outside of Ithaca. During weekends and summers then he worked as a mechanic to acquire more time in the air.

With 4,000 hours to his credit now, he accepts flying as a safer means of transportation than auto driving and fears to risk his life on the Outer drive. Many pilots, he claims seriously, seek flying schedules for weekends so that they will not become involved in the heavy holiday automobile traffic.

After his graduation in 1934 from Cornell university as a civil engineer, he went thru the army flying course in San Antonio, Tex., and had a year of active service. Then came the period of his most dangerous flying as pilot in bombing projects of fire control with the United States forestry service in California.

Bombs Forest Fires.

There it was his duty to drop powder, water, or other fire fighting bombs on burning forests, flying a heavily loaded plane only 300 feet above the flames. The altitude, moreover, averaged thousands of feet, and the planes maneuvered less easily in the rarified air. His successor cracked up within two weeks after he started.

Aviation is his chief avocation also, and during his spare time he is an instructor for the newly organized Spread Eagle Flying club which had as its objective teaching civilians to fly at a nominal cost. Started just last spring, it already has several branches in the Y. M. C. A. and a membership of about 80.

Lindblom High Alumni Plan to Give Homecoming Dance

Eighteen hundred persons are expected to attend the homecoming dance sponsored by the Lindblom High School Alumni association Thursday evening in the school gymnasium, 61st street and Wolcott avenue.

They Wear Persuasive Smiles

With such persuasive smiles, these four lovely daughters should encounter little sales resistance as flower girls at the annual Infanta ball of the South Shore Center of Infant Welfare Saturday night, Dec. 2, in the Blackstone hotel. They are, left to right (standing), Miss Eleanor Conners, 7411 Oglesby avenue; Miss Barbara Jean Grubb, 6801 Jeffery avenue; Miss June MacArthur, 6811 Crandon avenue, and (seated) Miss Ruth Hope MacArthur, 6811 Crandon avenue. Proceeds will go toward the maintenance of the Russell Square station, 83d street and South Shore drive. Mrs. K. Ray Ballantine is social chairman and other members of the committee are Mrs. A. V. Conners, Mrs. V. J. Ream, Mrs. Adam Riffel, Mrs. W. M. MacArthur, Mrs. John Byrne, and Mrs. George K. Hendrick. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FIRST CONCERT IS SCHEDULED BY MALE CHORUS

New Group of 400 Will Sing Saturday.

Four hundred members of the newly organized Illinois Male Chorus association will hold their first annual concert Saturday evening in Orchestra hall. The association, a division of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, was formed largely thru the efforts of Peter Olson, director of the Grieg Male chorus. He is president of the association, which is similar to those in Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana.

Items on Program.

The concert will include selections by Handel, Bach, Foster, Soderstrom and Herbert. Among the charter member clubs in the association are Arion Male chorus, Bordon-Wieland Glee club, Century Male chorus, Chicago Welsh Male chorus, Grieg Male chorus, Kewanee Men Singers, Orpheus club, Railway Express Glee club, Sterling Male chorus and West Suburban Glee club.

Conductors of selections at the concert will be Peter Olson, Robert Gomer Jones, Richard L. Wesselius, Carl Earnest, Edwin T. Karhu, Carl O. Behnke, Myrtle Nelson, Orian A. Galitz and Louis Gregsamer.

Will Be Accompanist.

Accompanists include Esther Arneson, Ruth Leary, William Notley Hughes, Marie Wessellus, Dorothy Hvass, Karl Liimatainen, Lillian Loeck, Claude Whitaker and Paulyn Anderson. Esther Hardie will be soloist.

In addition to Mr. Olson, other officers are Robert J. Jones of the Chicago Welsh Male choir, vice president; Edward J. Hermann of the West Suburban Glee club, secretary-treasurer, and Lester S. Larson, historian.

Chi Sigma Beta Chapter to Have Rush Tea Today

Pi chapter of Chi Sigma Beta sorority will hold a rush tea this afternoon in the Morrison hotel. SOUTHWEST SIDE CHURCHES WILL HOLD SERVICES

Many Groups Are to Have Union Rites.

BY PAUL HEALY.

For more than 300 years Americans have been following the example of the Pilgrim fathers in setting aside one day of the year to give thanks for a plentiful harvest. Sometimes the "harvest" has been freedom, sometimes it has been prosperity, sometimes it has been progress. This year it is peace.

Next Thursday the southwest side will be a microcosm of the United States as men, women, and children raise their hearts in thanksgiving to a Providence which has spared their nation the agony of war. Focal points for most of the worshippers will be the churches, where appropriate services have been plannned.

Twelve churches will unite at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening for services in St. Ambrose Episcopal church in Chicago Heights. The Rev. H. G. Elsam of the First Christian church will preach the Thanksgiving sermon. Congregations which will combine in the service are Trinity Lutheran, Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, Christian, Swedish American, Swedish Baptist, Episcopal, St. John Evangelical, Nazarene, Institutional Baptist, and African Methodist Episcopal.

Plan Union Service.

A union Thanksgiving day service will be held Thursday at the Wentworth avenue Baptist church, 4412 Wentworth avenue, of which the Rev. Eugene H. Daniels is pastor. Churches coöperating in the service are the Pilgrim Mayflower Congregational of which the Rev. Philip W. Yarrow is pastor, and the Union Avenue Methodist of which the Rev. J. Franklin Clancy is pastor. The Rev. Mr. Yarrow will preach the sermon.

A union service including several churches at 10:30 a. m. and an evening service at 7 p. m. will be held at the Second Swedish Baptist church, 7848 South Normal avenue, Thursday. The Rev. John Swanson is pastor.

Another Union Service.

The Garfield Boulevard Methodist church, 717 West Garfield boulevard, will hold a union service at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Julia Gay Methodist church in conjunction with the Eighth United Presbyterian, the Green Street Congregational, and the Bethlehem Presbyterian. The Rev. J. W. George is pastor of the Garfield Boulevard church.

The Rev. Hugh S. MacKenzie, pastor, and the Morgan Park Congregational church also will particpate in a union service at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Morgan Park church at 112th street and Hoyne avenue. Congregations coöperating will be the Morgan Park Methodist, the Morgan Park Baptist, the Morgan Park Presbyterian, and the Morgan Park Christian. The Rev. Homer C. Boblitt, pastor of the Christian church, will preach.

Homecoming Is Listed.

A Thanksgiving service and harvest homecoming is planned by the Seventh Presbyterian church, 8624 South Sangamon street. The service will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening when Dr. John Calvin Leon-

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TWENTY-SIX members of the Olson family will gather for a real "double feature" at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night in the home of Frank, 4940 North Karlov avenue. There Gustaf, 8115 South Throop street, and Frank, probably among Chicago's oldest twins, will celebate their 70th birthday. Each, moreover, has been married 45 years and has five sons and daughters. Born in Sweden, both have lived in Chicago for more than 50 years. Gustaf left the old country when he was 17 and Frank when he was 18.

Gustaf and Frank Olsen.

Our Towners for 70 years, Mr. and Mrs. August Kasdorf, 1606 Chicago road, Chicago Heights, recently marked their 62d wedding anniversary with four generations joining in the festivities. They have three sons, two daughters, seven grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Kasdorf came from Germany 0 years ago.

OUR TOWNER JACK F. GRADT, 8053 South Paulina street, who attracted nation-wide attention last year in his successful fight against death from streptococcus infection, has been elected president of the Chicago club at DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind. Orton Alkire, 9373 Longwood drive, was chosen secretary. The organization will sponsor a dance during the Christmas holidays in one of the downtown hotels for the students and alumni living in Chicagoland.

IN the story of Romeo and Juliet, romance had a rough course. But for Carl Pokorny, 6755 Crandon avenue, and Miss Sally Jesselson, 6565 South Harvard avenue, who enacted those rôles for the Chicago Philanthropic Club Juniors, the way has been smoothed. In celebration of their engagement, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jesselson will have a reception from 3 to 6 o'clock today.

One of twelve students so honored, Miss Barbara Blend, 9300 South Winchester avenue, received a bid to Tau Sigma Tau, honorary art sorority at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo. An outstanding student in the art department, Barbara is a member of Sigma Alpha Chi sorority and secretary of the board of publications.

REMINISCENT of his duck hunting days, two of the four studies of Howard Brown, 4319 Ellis avenue, in the third annual exhibit of miniature etchings of the Chicago Society of Etchers in Mandel Brothers galleries are entitled "Stragglers Come In" and "Gunners in a Blind." The display of 116 etchings, representing 40 arists from 18 states and three foreign countries, will continue thru November.

Dr. Charles M. Rauch, who has served as pastor of the Brookline Presbyterian church, 73d street and Maryland avenue, for 18 years, preached his farewell sermon last Sunday. He leaves to serve a church in Flora, Ind.

MUSTER VOTERS ON EXPANSION PLAN AT JOLIET

Referendum Ballot Is Next Tuesday.

Spurred by reports of activity by opponents, members of the Greater Joliet committee are concentrating their efforts on urging voters in a large section east of the city to visit the polls in a special annexation referendum next Tuesday.

Harold A. Wallace, chairman of the committee, declared last week that the greatest danger to the annexation plan, which will add an estimated 9,000 to the city's 43,000 population, is indifference on the part of residents of the area.

Test polls conducted in the east side tract, about two square miles in extent, have indicated that 70 per cent of the residents are in favor of joining the city, 20 per cent are "on the fence," and only 10 per cent are actually opposed.

See Power of Minority.

"But this overwhelming sentiment in favor of annexation will count only if translated into votes," Wallace warned. "If most of the annexationists stay at home Tuesday while the 'antis' turn out in force, then the plan for a greater Joliet will be defeated. It will be another instance of the minority imposing its will on the majority.

"Most of our neighbors want to come in with us. They can do so by the simple expedient of recording their votes next Tuesday."

Wallace reiterated that sample studies made in the territory it is proposed to annex show that it will in most instances actually lower costs to householders and at the same time provide better service.

Costs for nine homes in the area were figured first on the present basis and then on the basis of what they would be if the area is annexed.

Comparison Is Shown.

The nine home owners and their comparative costs for taxes and service are:

Laverne C. Hahney, 1408 East Washington street—Outside city, $80.54; inside city, $66.33.

Raymond E. Shea, 420 Kraker avenue—Outside city, $77.68; inside, $48.89.

Dr. Earl R. Steen, 1208 Sterling avenue—Outside city, $105.40; inside, $105.60.

Robert L. Keith, 615 East Cass street—Outside, $173.56; inside, $127.58.

Percy F. Brewster, 1401 East Washington street—Outside, $72.04; inside, $72.47.

Services Are Told.

The costs in each case include taxes, insurance, water [except in the case of Dr. Steen, McLaughlin, and Brewster, who have private wells], and library tax. The costs as they would stand after annexation include garbage collection, fire and police protection, and street lighting. None of the nine homes at present has the latter three services, but will enjoy them if annexation is approved.

Additional information concerning these and other matters can be obtained from the Greater Joliet committee offices in the Sippel building on Jefferson just east of Scott street, Wallace said.

Here is a list of Tuesday's polling places, as designated by County Judge Glen L. Cowing of Will county:

District 1, garage at 221 Henderson avenue.

District 3, Risinger residence, 1120 East Jackson street.

District 4, Bolton barber shop, 404 Walnut street.

District 5, Kastman garage, 500 Kraker avenue.

District 6, Goddard and Rudd service station, 1901 East Washington street.

District 7, Dyer garage, 1400 East Washington street.

District 8, People's Coal and Coke company, 824 Second avenue.

LIONS TO HEAR ABOUT BUSINESS MEN AND DIET

Dr. Kenneth K. Jones, professor of pharmacology at Northwestern university, will address the Auburn Park Lions club Wednesday noon at Greene's restaurant, 7919 South Halsted street. The title of his talk will be "The Business Man and His Diet."

At the recent National Safety congress Olaf Newgard, superintendent of shops at the Bethlehem Steel corporation, 8301 Stewart avenue, was awarded the National Safety council trophy at Atlantic City. The award was based on "no time lost and no accidents" per number of man hours.

Another Lion, Roy F. Healy, has been reelected president of the Chicago Association of Business and Professional Men. In the last seven years he has held the presidency five times.

TRAFFIC DEATHS GAIN BUT MAY BE HELD DOWN

Month's 2 Weeks Total Is 43 Lives.

Traffic killings in the second week of November were more than double those of the first week, but there is still reason to believe the toll may be held to a new low level. This is shown by a study of records kept by the coroner's office.

From Nov. 1 to 14, inclusive, a total of 43 persons lost their lives as a result of automobile and truck accidents in Cook county. This is an average of slightly more than three deaths a day.

During the second week there were 29 deaths, an average of more than four deaths a day. This compares with only 14 deaths in the first week of this month, or an average of two a day.

Still Below Average.

The two weeks' combined average of three deaths a day is still considerably below the November daily average of 3.69 for the previous 10 years. It is even with the previous low average for the month, set last November. Various factors tend, however, to offset this favorable showing, traffic observers pointed out.

In the first place, they said, the unseasonably mild weather during the first half of the month, while it did result in a heavier than normal traffic flow, afforded better highway traction than the month usually sees and thus held collisions down.

Besides this, with probably severer climate causing skids and obscuring drivers' vision, it is reasonable to expect that the last half of this month will see a sharp increase in the traffic death rate, these observers warned.

Pedestrians in Peril.

For this reason they urged an increase in ordinary caution. The greatest danger at this season is to pedestrians, according to past records, and so drivers were cautioned to hold speed down, while persons on foot were advised to keep a more vigilant lookout for approaching automobiles and trucks.

Support for the pedestrian warning is to be found in the traffic death records for Cook county. In the first half of November 25 of the 43 persons killed, or nearly five of every nine, were pedestrians.

In the first week exactly half the fatality victims were walking when struck by motor vehicles. Their proportion rose sharply in the next seven days, for in the second week 18 pedestrians lost their lives as against only 11 drivers and passengers.

Corpus Christi Church Fete Will Come to Close Today

Operation of Air Express Talk Theme for Academy

Students and guests of the Academy of Our Lady, 95th and Throop streets, will be shown the operations of the air express when they view "Wings of the Morning," a sound-slide film sponsored by the Railway Express agency at 2 p. m. today. Color movies taken at the San Francisco exposition also will be exhibited. Arrangements for the program were made by Sister Mary Ellen of the Academy and Mel Anderson, commercial agent for the express company in the Beverly-Brainerd-Morgan Park area.

3 CLOSED BANKS SCHEDULED TO REFUND $86,000

May Come in Time to Aid Yule Shopping.

Three more closed state banks on the southwest side may soon return an additional $86,000 to 10,100 depositors, perhaps in time to help out with Christmas shopping.

This prediction was made by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett last week when he made public statements showing the condition of the final group of southwestern banks for the September quarter.

Mr. Barrett's figures are taken from reports made to him by receivers for the 134 Cook county state banks still in receivership. Charles H. Albers is general receiver for all but two of these banks.

The Halsted Street State bank is planning to divide another $41,000 among its 5,000 depositors, who have received 55 per cent since the bank suspended on Sept. 29, 1933.

The Sherman State bank may soon distribute an additional $11,000 among its 1,600 depositors. They have received $47,000, or 22½ per cent, since the bank closed on April 23, 1932.

The Universal State bank in the next few weeks may repay $34,000 additional to its 3,500 depositors, who have received 37½ per cent thus far. The bank closed June 23, 1932.

Ridge State—Total receipts, $165,417. Paid on prior claims, $53,827. Paid depositors, $37,032 or 20 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $2,839; legal, $8,718; clerical, $24,671; interest, $187; advances to protect assets, $26,593, with $17,317 refunded. Cash, $4,218. Perhaps another 5 per cent remains.

Roseland State Savings—Total receipts, $1,575,438. Paid on prior claims, $146,285. Paid depositors, $883,193 or 55 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $12,575; legal, $41,975; clerical, $95,086; interest, $258; advanced to protect assets, $324,336, with $307,129 refunded. Cash, $71,726. It still appears that the total payout may reach 70 per cent.

Sherman State—Total receipts, $224,896. Paid on prior claims, $58,439. Paid depositors, $47,239 or 22½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,001; legal, $9,737; clerical, $24,896; interest, $1,293; advanced to protect assets, $48,159, with $45,183 refunded. Cash, $14,381. The total may go to 30 or 35 per cent.

South Shore State—Total receipts, $566,062. Paid on prior claims, $200,435. Paid depositors, $201,008 or 45 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,157; legal, $17,792; clerical, $51,469; interest, $5,302; advanced to protect assets, $66,909, with $53,247 refunded. Cash, $18,986. There may be 5 to 8 per cent more eventually.

South-West Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $3,140,657. Paid on prior claims, $1,112,365. Paid depositors, $1,291,341 or 80 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $9,390; legal, $103,746; clerical, $109,925; interest, $4,508; advanced to protect assets, $448,232, with $423,759 refunded. Cash, $61,144. There is a possibility of 5 or 10 per cent more before the receivership ends.

State Bank of Beverly Hills—Total receipts, $797,642. Paid on prior claims, $206,182. Paid depositors, $319,296 or 55 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $7,427; legal, $39,478; clerical, $57,033; interest, $1,479; advanced to protect assets, $124,505, with $110,450 refunded. Cash, $23,337. The next distribution of 5 per cent or so will probably be the final one.

Universal States—Total receipts, $776,738. Paid on prior claims, $240,995. Paid depositors, $242,034, or 37½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $5,699; legal, $27,723; clerical, $47,533; interest, $4,494; advanced to protect assets, $123,781, with $107,110 refunded. Cash, $48,314. The payout may go to 45 per cent or perhaps a little more.

First Englewood State—Total receipts, $1,221,346. Paid on prior claims, $369,567. Paid depositors, $344,928 or 60 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $5,078; legal, $36,319; clerical, $54,009; interest, $20,212; advanced to protect assets, $157,597, with $150,207 refunded. Cash, $25,812. Estimates of the total still stand at 70 per cent.

First State Bank of Chicago Heights—Total receipts, $776,670. Paid on prior claims, $270,077. Paid depositors, $227,744 or 30 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $6,280; legal, $18,634; clerical, $57,853; interest, $3,849; advanced to protect assets, $165,724, with $158,997 refunded. Cash, $16,503.

First State Bank of Steger—Total receipts, $92,269. Paid on prior claims, $18,950. Paid depositors, $35,717 or 43.2 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $1,808; legal, $4,865; clerical, $16,497; interest, $43; advanced to protect assets, $14,386, with $14,386 refunded. Cash, none.

Halsted Street State—Total receipts, $1,598,072. Paid on prior claims, $358,238. Paid depositors, $452,295 or 55 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $874; legal, $25,649; clerical, $70,806; interest, $20,614; advanced to protect assets, $200,550, with $188,430 refunded. Cash, $46,716. Little will remain after the proposed new disbursement is made.

Homewood State—Total receipts, $318,535. Paid on prior claims, $75,699. Paid depositors, $82,660 or 40 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $2,722; legal, $14,718; clerical, $26,779; interest, $4,821; advanced to protect assets, $58,391, with $51,511 refunded. Cash, $4,088. There are indications that the payout may reach 55 or 60 per cent.

Industrial State—Total receipts, $236,795. Paid on prior claims, $85,455. Paid depositors, $68,638 or 35 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $7,639; legal, $5,048; clerical, $39,591; interest, none; advanced to protect assets, $9,232, with $10,750 refunded. Cash, $21,189. About 10 or 15 per cent may be repaid additionally before the receivership ends.

Marquette Park State—Total receipts, $986,342. Paid on prior claims, $130,337. Paid depositors, $336,506 or 35 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $9,964; legal, $34,939; clerical, $69,730; interest, $632; advanced to protect assets, $327,902, with $316,436 refunded. Cash, $23,843. About 5 or 10 per cent more is about all that can reasonably be expected.

Morgan Park Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $860,046. Paid on prior claims, $106,540. Paid depositors, $290,291 or 52½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,773; legal, $33,628; clerical, $50,503; interest, $7,705; advanced to protect assets, $177,903, with $182,034 refunded. Cash, $20,180. There will probably be little more for the depositors.

Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $45,419. Paid on prior claims, $11,639. Paid depositors, $14,979 or 33 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $1,154; legal, $4,339; clerical, $9,335; interest, $167; advanced to protect assets, $416, with $416 refunded. Cash, $3,385. There are prospects of perhaps 5 per cent or a little more in addition to what has been paid.

Don't Spill the Beans!

Mary Theresa and Edward, two of the children in St. Joseph Home for the Friendless, 739 East 35th street, look as if they might spill the beans in their enthusiasm. They like them and hope the home receives more during the food shower and pound party at 3 o'clock this afternoon, sponsored by the St. Joseph Home for the Friendless guild. Soloists from St. Lawrence church choir, under the direction of Richard B. Keating and Miss Catherine Moran, will present a program. The Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondolet direct the institution. CHURCHES PLAN CEREMONIES FOR THANKSGIVING

ard, pastor, delivers a sermon entitled, "Why Be Thankful?"

"The Feast of the Gathering" will be the title of the Rev. Benjamin E. Chapman's sermon Thursday morning at the Church of the Incarnation, 102d street and Parnell avenue.

Five churches will hold a union service at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning at the Ogden Park Mission Covenant church. They are the Englewood Mission Covenant, Tabernacle Covenant, Bethany Mission Covenant, Oakdale Covenant, and the Ogden Park. A concert will be given in the evening by the church choir under the direction of Oscar W. Green, assisted by the Jennie Lind musical trio, Tony Turco, boy soprano, and Miss Evelyn Wettersten, organist.

Will Observe Tradition.

A tradition of many years will be observed when the Palos Park community church holds a "plain service of Thanksgiving" at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. The Rev. Charles A. Rawson is pastor.

Four churches will worship at Thoburn Methodist, 64th and Paulina streets, at 10:30 a. m. Thursday. They are the Ogden Park Methodist, Ashland Christian, Drexel Park Presbyterian, and Marlboro Presbyterian. The Rev. John H. Delacy of Thoburn church is chairman of the service.

Hope Evangelical Lutheran church, 6400 South Washtenaw avenue, will hold services at 8 a. m. and 10:45 a. m.

At St. Bartholomew's.

At St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, 6720 Stewart avenue, Holy Communion will be celebrated at 7:30 a. m. Thursday and a choral Eucharist and a sermon by the Rev. Howard R. Brinker, pastor, will take place at the 11 o'clock service.

A sunrise service at 6:30 o'clock Thursday morning will be held at Chandler Methodist church, 72d and Carpenter streets. Dr. John L. Cheek, pastor, will speak on "Enjoy Your Life."

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

FOR MUSEUM EVENINGS.

Ask any visitor to Chicago what he has seen and what he wants to see, and 90 per cent of the time he will tell of the Field museum, the Planetarium, the Museum of Science and Industry and other really worthwhile sights of the city. Then ask your average Chicagoan how many of these places he has visited. Apologetically, he will say that he always intended to get down to the museums, but never finds the opportunity. And he is not entirely at fault. He probably works all day during the week and on week-ends social activities occupy most of his time. Consequently, I think that the plan for opening these institutions at night is a wonderful idea for the city. With a little publicity about the advantages and entertainment of these spots many an average Chicagoan would spend a profitable evening.

THIRD DISTRICT ADDRESS THEME IS 'PROPAGANDA'

Second Meeting Is Set for Next Friday.

"The Relationship of Propaganda to War and Peace" is the title of the address to be delivered by Miss Katherine E. Hunter at the second meeting of the international relations department of the 3d district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at 1:30 p. m. Friday. The meeting will be held at federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street.

Miss Hunter is director of the international relations speakers' bureau connected with the League of Nations association. She will be presented by Mrs. Merle S. McCarney, 5756 Richmond avenue, district international relations chairman. Mrs. McCarney has announced that the two main projects of her department will be the analysis of propaganda and neutrality.

Hamilton Park Women's Club.

Tuesday's program will consist of piano selections and a talk on the highlights of grand opera by Leo Heim, vice president of the American Conservatory of Music. Miss May Barron, mezzo saprano, will sing operatic arias and Mrs. D. H. Wansley, state music chairman, and Mrs. P. E. Grundman, 3d district chairman, will be guests. Mrs. I. L. Roberts, chairman of the music department, will have charge of the meeting, which will take place at the Hamilton Park fieldhouse, 72d and Normal boulevard.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

The garden department will hold a tea a week from tomorrow at the home of Mrs. W. E. Brewster, 8918 South Hamilton avenue. There will be a general discussion and a report on flower shows attended during the summer and the tour of the Illinois state parks.

The literature department will have charge of the meeting at 11 o'clock, Nov. 29. Mrs. C. H. Chatters, 10726 South Hoyne avenue, chairman of the department, will introduce Mrs. W. F. Blackford, 1626 West 105th street, who will discuss phases of the book, "America in Midpassage," by Charles and Mary Beard. Mrs. R. M. Bennet, 1632 West 104th street, will discuss the current political and economic situation.

The Littlefield ballet will be introduced at the afternoon program by Mrs. W. K. Holmes, chairman of the drama department.

Mrs. Holmes last week announced the cast for the drama department's play, "Penny Wise," by Jean Ferguson, to be presented twice on Dec. 6 at the Ridge Park fieldhouse. It will include Mrs. W. J. Alcock, 9144 South Hamilton avenue; Mrs. W. J. Campbell, 9620 South Longwood drive; Mrs. A. E. Schwind, 10346 South Bell avenue; Mrs. W. N. Strack, 9150 South Hoyne avenue; Henry Barbour, 9436 South Laflin avenue; Edward Hudson, 11030 Prospect avenue, and Walter Wark.

Brainerd Women's Club.

The business meeting at 11 a. m. Tuesday in the Ridge Park fieldhouse will be followed by the introduction by Mrs. William Long, 9013 South Laflin avenue, of a representative of the American Airlines, who will show a film on air travel. Mrs. Albert Hart, 9330 South Laflin street, will be luncheon hostess.

Mrs. Lawrence O'Toole, contralto, a member of the club, will open the afternoon session with a group of songs, after which the drama and literature departments will present a dramatized review of A. J. Cronin's latest novel, "Vigil in the Night," under the direction of Rupert Hoye, 10019 South Oakley avenue, drama chairman. Mrs. Fred Kaiser, 8154 South Winchester avenue, literature chairman, will be narrator.

Participants in the dramatization are Mrs. Glen O'Toole, 8851 South Elizabeth street; Mrs. Raymond Fern, 938 West 87th street; Mrs. E. A. Schlagter, 8832 South Throop street; Mrs. Earl Gray, 8751 South Throop street; Mrs. Milton Nelson, 8951 South Justine street; Mrs. George Kinnear, 2335 West 113th place, and Mrs. Edward Tocatlian, 1849 West 107th street. Mrs. Harry Slater, 3d district chairman of motion pictures, will be a guest.

West Lawn Women's Club.

A business meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. O. J. Bergman, 6326 South Karlov avenue. Mrs. George Herbold and Mr. David Armstrong, president and first vice president, respectively, will report on the state convention held last May.

Englewood Women's Club.

The monthly business meeting will be held tomorrow morning, after which Mrs. John B. Haeberlin, first vice president, will give a report on the General Federation council meeting at San Francisco last summer.

The program in the afternoon will be devoted to the department of home and education. Miss Mari Floto, stylist, will give a talk on "Fashion Facts and Fancies" and special guest will be Mrs. S. J. Gottschalf, 3d district chairman of American Home.

Clearing Women's Club.

Gordon Nereim, baritone soloist, will be heard at the dinner program at the Clearing Industrial club, 6500 South Central avenue, Tuesday evening. A reception will precede the dinner with the officers of the club, headed by the president, Mrs. Reede Foster, in the receiving line. Guests will include the husbands of members and Mrs. S. J. Gottschalk, district chairman of the American Home department.

Chicago Lawn Women's Club.

The meeting which begins at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning will be built around the topics of radio, press and publicity. The program will be opened by Mrs. Howard Gentine, radio chairman, when she presents a well known radio commentator, who will speak on "News from Behind the Mike."

Miss Rita Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Tribune staff will speak at 2 o'clock in the afternoon on "Publicity from the Editor's Viewpoint."

Also in the afternoon Miss Bertha Bodtke will relate her experiences as club editor of the South Town Economist and Mrs. Fred Waterman, past state chairman of press and publicity, will discuss "The History of the Press Department in the state and the General Federation."

Climax of the program will be the staging of "Aunt Minnie Read It," state prize winning publicity playlet of 1939 by five club members. In the cast will be Mrs. S. C. Kehl, Mrs. Homer Best, Mrs. J. R. Thetford, Mrs. E. T. H. Schmidt, and Mrs. Stevesson. The play will be directed by Mrs. W. E. Tressel, dramatic coach.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

A "book fair" will be held tomorrow at the Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive, arranged by Mrs. John J. Bickel Jr., 10437 Hale avenue, literature chairman. Books loaned by members will be on display. One table will contain bibles in different languages and a copy of "How I Found Livingston in Central Africa," autographed by Sir Henry Stanley.

Mrs. Harry Bremer, 11548 Longwood drive, American Home chairman, will present Mrs. Herbert Reed of Lake Bluff at 11 a. m. to take charge of the program entitled "Decorative Schemes for Special Occasions." The talk will be illustrated by the setting of party tables.

At noon Mrs. Clyde S. Stow, 2256 West 116th place, program chairman, will introduce Mrs. W. G. Suthers in a talk on parliamentary procedure called "The Importance of Election Mechanics." Luncheon will be arranged by Mrs. Oscar Carlson and her committee.

Thanksgiving Day Bride

Miss Rosemary Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Cameron, 6537 Maplewood avenue, will become the bride of Joseph Pierchala, son of Mrs. Albert Cekan, 1710 East 77th street, on Thanksgiving day in the Emerald Avenue Presbyterian church. A reception will be held after the ceremony in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. Miss Cameron is a graduate of De Paul university.

HOMEWOOD CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON POTTERS' CRAFT

Hazel Caldwell Eppens, lecturer, will talk on "potters' craft" tomorrow afternoon before the Homewood Woman's club at the village hall. The program was prepared by Mrs. James Blair. Mrs. W. P. Cronican and Mrs. C. H. M. Janson will welcome members and guests, foremost of whom will be Mrs. S. J. Gottschalk, 3d district chairman.

Mrs. James Blair.
[Carson Pirie Scott Photo.]

Thirty-five new members, more than one-third of the club's membership, will also be introduced at the meeting by Mrs. H. D. Cressey, membership chairman. They will be welcomed by Mrs. Russell Anderson.

Chicago Heights Juniors.

The outstanding event on the club calendar, the annual Thanksgiving dance, will be held Saturday at the Lincolnshire Country club in Crete. Miss Gertrude Scheiwe, social chairman, and a committee are making the arrangements.

Harvey Junior Woman's Club.

Dr. C. B. Alexander of Harvey will be guest speaker at the regular general meeting of the Harvey Junior Woman's club in the faculty dining room of Thornton Township High school at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. His talk will be illustrated by motion pictures. The musical part of the program will be furnished by Miss Irene Romayne.

ST. XAVIER COLLEGE ALUMNAE TO HAVE HOMECOMING TODAY

The Rev. Michael English, Jesuit priest whose study at the Sorbonne was cut short by the war, will discuss European events and his perilous ocean voyage on the S. S. Acadia for the annual alumnæ homecoming program of St. Xavier college this afternoon in the school, 4928 Cottage Grove avenue. An informal tea will follow, in which old acquaintances will be renewed. Miss Holly McKillen, 7747 South Park avenue, president of the alumnæ, has charge of the program, assisted by Miss Kathleen Garvey, 3328 West 65th place; Miss Catherine Butler, 5516 Princeton avenue; Miss Frances Mazurk, 5038 South Ashland avenue; Miss Phyllis Hackett, 7728 South Morgan street; Miss Virginia Cheevers, 7823 Cregier avenue; Miss Jean Koepke, 7704 Green street, and Mrs. Livia V. O'Neill, 8200 Maryland avenue.

JUNIOR WOMEN TO HAVE MOVIE FILM PROGRAM

Meeting Scheduled for Tuesday Evening.

Motion pictures will be featured at the regular meeting of the Brainerd Junior Woman's club at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Ridge park fieldhouse. Mrs. Arthur Larson, chairman of the motion picture committee, will be in charge of the meeting and program.

The principal movie will be "Happily Ever After," written by Edgar A. Guest and featuring a Hollywood cast. This is the first appearance in Chicago of the picture, which was shown at the New York World's Fair. In addition there will be a short subject, "It Takes a Heap of Living," adapted from one of Mr. Guest's poems.

Special guests at the program will include Mrs. Harry Slater, 3d district senior motion picture chairman; Miss Ethel Foster, 3d district junior motion picture chairman, and Mrs. William Long, Brainerd senior motion picture chairman.

The evening will also be the premier of the new Brainerd chorus. Mrs. Warren Robinson of the Brainerd senior woman's club, director, who has been trying out new voices for several weeks. Six of the members who were accepted last week were Miss Esther Farrar, music chairman; Miss Grace Johnson, 3d district music chairman; Mrs. Arthur Larson, Mrs. Raymond Bohne, Mrs. Lucille Hanson, and Miss Naomi Schodrof.

Englewood Junior Women.

"Hobbies for Happiness" will be the subject of a talk by Jean Pickett Cochran, lecturer and writer, at a meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon. A hobby exhibit by members will be a feature. Miss Elizabeth F. Peppet, president, will preside. Mrs. Milton F. Carr and Mrs. Henry G. Hoffman will serve tea after the meeting.

Morgan Park Junior Women.

The regular meeting tomorrow will be featured by Miss Esther Cheatle, who will present a puppet demonstration, and Miss Eunice Bennett, contralto, who will sing several numbers. Mrs. D. C. Walker, fine arts chairman, will be in charge of the meeting.

New members of the club are Miss Dorothy Brown, 10826 South Bell avenue, and Miss Esther Paddock, 1032 West 103d place.

"What Petersen Promises—Petersen Does!"

Petersen's CLASSIFIED CLEARAWAY

Our Annual Pre-Christmas Clearance of Floor Samples, One-of-a-Kind Pieces and Odds and Ends to Make Room for Thousands of Dollars Worth of New Merchandise Bought for Christmas Selling.

Here's an annual event known to thousands of Chicagoans as one of the most spectacular, money saving furniture sales of the year. Just at this time, each season, we start to prepare our stores for Christmas. In order to make room for our three big toy departments and the thousands of additional items which we display at Christmas time, we must clear our floors of much of the regular floor sample merchandise and of all odds and ends accumulated during the year. That's why we hold this amazing, once-a-year sale—a sale that thousands of thrifty shoppers look forward to each November. Remember most items are one-of-a-kind only. Early shoppers will get the best buys—so prepare now to be at your nearest Petersen store tomorrow when the doors open at 9:00 A. M.

HOBBIES? RADIO STARS GO FOR QUITE A VARIETY

Dave Elman Might Find Good Prospects.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Dave Elman, the conductor of Hobby Lobby, might plow up some interesting interviews right among the people who make their living by performing before the microphone. For many artists, radio is a Simon Legree who gives them little time [or energy] for avocations. But a good many do have hobbies.

Kate Smith stopped off here the other day and told local radio people about some of her outside interests. She is daffy over amateur movie making. Kate has several expensive outfits—one of which requires practically a truck to carry all the pieces. She finds some of her most satisfactory subject matter at Lake Placid. Ted Collins, her manager and partner, goes for still cameras.

Kate is also a dog devotee. While in Hollywood she put through several long distance calls to her pet cocker. And here's a surprise: Kate is an ardent radio listener. She has a 36 tube set and she spends many hours beside it.

O'Keefe's Unusual Tastes.

Walter O'Keefe spends many an hour reading the "extended remarks" section of the Congressional Record. He clips and saves all talks by senators and congressmen having to do with bridge and high school dedications and cornerstone layings.

Tony Wons builds model houses and is an expert at violin making. He spends a lot of time in his workshop near Kenosha.

Paul Whiteman in recent years has become an ardent horseman.

Bob Crosby collects drums and old-time minstrel programs.

Bob Hope collects buttons; his songstress, Judy Garland, has hundreds of swing records, many of them rare. And Jerry Colonna takes a great pride in his assortment of mustache cups.

Lombardo Favors Boats.

Guy Lombardo has had a flock of boats. Each year or two he gets a bigger one. Blair Walliser and Ken Griffen are ardent yachtsmen, among the local radio folks.

Actress Joan Blaine has a collection of 50 antique receiving sets. Tommy Riggs spends much of his time delving into the history of ventriloquism, tho not claiming to be a ventriloquist himself. He doesn't know what Betty Lou does for diversion.

Actor Les Tremayne collects trout flies. Lucille Wall, radio actress, collects radio scripts and claims to have more than 4,000 episodes of daytime serial dramas.

Gracie Allen Crochets.

John J. Anthony, who conducts Mutual's Good Will Hour, collects soap figures carved by blind pupils in New York schools.

Here's one: Gracie Allen is a crocheting fan. She works at it during pauses at rehearsals and has trunks and barrels filled with tablecloths, sweaters, scarves, mittens and such, they say.

Bob Trout has amassed an astonishing assortment of old newspapers.

Dick Marvin, the radio producer, has a fine collection of joke books and volumes on humor extending back several centuries. He can trace every joke on the air straight back to its source—or at least one source.

Rudy Vallee is another movie fan. He has obtained pictures of most of the famous personages who have appeared with him.

FANS WILL QUIZ BOB BECKER ON W-G-N PROGRAM

Bob Becker's "Chats about Dogs" program aired at 1:45 p. m. Sundays over W-G-N, will be presented in a novel form today. Bob has invited several listeners to take part in the program. During his many years on this program, Becker has received thousands of letters from dog owners requesting his advice on the care of their pets. Listeners who will participate today will ask Becker a variety of questions on the care, feeding, and training of dogs.

How is a dog entered in a show? How do you train a dog for a show? How can you break a dog of meanness and bad temper? How can a dog be taught to refrain from eating indigestible material? What causes a dog to shed hair excessively? These are some of the questions which Becker is prepared to answer when these listeners meet him face-to-face in the studio.

"Taxes—Good and Bad" Subject of Round Table

"Taxes—Good and Bad" will be the subject for discussion on the University of Chicago Round Table, at 1:30 p. m. over WMAQ-NBC. The forum on taxes will bring to the microphone three members of the University of Chicago staff—Albert Lepawsky, research associate in political science; Louis Wirth, associate professor in sociology, and Neil H. Jacoby, assistant professor in the School of Business.

Cong. Dies' Talk Before Realty Men on Mutual

Representative Martin Dies will be heard over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System at 10 p. m. Tuesday, when he addresses the Chicago Real Estate board in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. His subject will be, "Americanism." Congressman Dies is chairman of the special Congressional committee investigating un-American activities in the country.

SOPHIE TUCKER, MOORE, GAXTON ON W-G-N SHOW

'Leave It to Me' Numbers to Be Featured.

Sophie Tucker, Victor Moore, and William Gaxton, headliners in Cole Porter's musical comedy, "Leave It to Me," will be guest stars in a special program arranged by Harold Stokes, from 8:45 to 9 tonight on W-G-N.

The W-G-N Dance orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Stokes, will play all the numbers from the show which opens tomorrow at the Auditorium theater. Moore, Gaxton, and Miss Tucker will present a special comedy skit which they have prepared for the occasion.

From 8 to 8:30 p. m., the musical show, "Your Sunday Date," under Harold Stokes' direction, will provide a prelude for the program with some of the all-time hit tunes from previous Cole Porter shows.

Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno and the chorus will be the vocalists and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will play special arrangements of the Porter melodies, which will include "Night and Day," "Easy to Love," and numbers from such shows as "Rosalie," "Born to Dance," "The Gay Divorce," "Anything Goes," and "You Never Know."

"Romance in Rhythm," directed by Harold Stokes, will pay homage to Thanksgiving day with a prelude of appropriate music by the W-G-N Dance orchestra and singing by Miss O'Dell and Curt Massey and the Four Shades of Blue, from 9:30 and 10 p. m., Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The Pageant of Melody, under the direction of Henry Weber, will feature the singing of Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and a cello concerto by Raphael Spiro, in a program of light and classical music, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Themes from P. Tschaikowsky will be played during the Concert Revue, conducted by Mr. Weber, with songs by Kathryn Witwer and William Miller, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., Thursday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Don't Be Fat!

IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second.. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

ELMHURST HOME WELL INSULATED FOR ALL SEASONS

Spacious House Combines Beauty and Utility.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our concern over outdoor temperatures and conditions has grown steadily less acute these last few years as our control over our indoor climate has been more nearly perfected. In building our new homes or remodeling our existing ones we spend as much as we possibly can afford for several or all of the different phases of air conditioning.

The seven most common phases of air conditioning are heating, humidification, cooling, dehumidification, ventilation, air cleaning, and air circulation. One or all of these phases can be best accomplished when proper equipment and good house construction go hand in hand. When a house is poorly built it is expensive to control its indoor air in any of the seven ways.

Has Adequate Insulation.

When Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Sheehan, 177 Olive street, Elmhurst, planned their new home they planned it well, aware of the close connection which exists at the present time between air conditioning and house construction. And when the architect, Elmer William Marx, 2734 North Mildred avenue, Chicago, designed and built the house he specified adequate insulation which would make possible at minimum cost modern automatic control of room temperature, automatic heat, and some of the seven phases of modern conditioning of room air.

There are grace and dignity to this quiet, handsome colonial home. Its exterior is carried out in tan face brick with black roof and black blinds and presents a quiet, self-possessed front to the world, while its interior is notably livable and workable, with particular emphasis placed on the close relation between indoors and outdoors.

Built on Wooded Site.

Mr. Mary has developed a plan which would serve as excellently in many ways for a smaller home or a larger one. The house stands on an attractive site with fine trees. [There's an appeal in trees! How many people have bought a lot and built a house on it because of a single tree!]

The recessed entrance doorway has a graceful frame of good proportions and detail. A doorway is a focal point and almost without exception can be counted on to make the first impression. It can be formal or informal, but simplicity is the key to most good designs.

There was no demand for minimum hall space, and the inner hall is spacious and inviting. The rooms are disposed on either side of it, with a small, captivating powder room at right of entrance. This has a silver ceiling, lively red walls, blue linoleum floor, and white fixtures.

Plenty of Wall Space.

The living room at the left is amply proportioned with finely designed windows and French doors, abundant wall space for furniture, and cream colored walls. Details have been simplified with a view to freer, more gracious living, and particularly pleasing thruout the home are the wall treatments and open layouts on both floors.

The walls in the dining room are canary yellow, in the kitchen they are a soft off-white, in the study they are dusty rose, and in the charming, small nursery they are pale blue. These nursery walls are decorated with decal designs, transfers which illustrate Mother Goose characters.

Useful for Work.

Mrs. Sheehan decided on this room instead of a large cedar storage room which she had originally considered. Such a spot can be made into a very useful bit of work space. Sometimes, as in this case, a sewing room is frankly a sewing room and nothing else. Again, where space must be more conserved, it is combined with a guest room perhaps, with a bed that rolls or hides away, a sewing machine which has a table cover, an ironing board and cutting board built in the wall and out of sight and reach when not in active service.

The bathroom in this home is striking in its color scheme—its pale green ceiling and off-white walls, its tile floor with two shades of green and the white tiling around the tub.

In the basement there is a forced warm air heating system fueled with gas.

Narthex and Byway

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The Rev. John Evans.

He had been a locomotive engineer for 40 years with a perfect record. For more than half of that time he had been at the throttle of a crack transcontinental train and had carried thousands of passengers safely over the rails of his division. Forty years of perfect service should have been news.

But it was not until he was well along in his 41st year of service that the engineer made newspaper headlines. He ran thru a warning semaphore and his great train sideswiped a freight car which had not been fully moved on to a side track. A man was killed. The news said the engineer was blamed for the fatal accident.

Narthex and Byway contends that 40 perfect record years ought to have been news before the forty-first year began. But who would have told us the story? If you go out on the street on a dark night and club a man to death the newspapers will tell all about you because your crime is a matter of police record, but if you are a Goodfellow and live a useful life you do not get into news columns unless a good friend of yours tells us about you. And what about that high school boy who hasn't missed Sunday school for 10 years? How would we know about him unless you tell us, or, who is the senior pastor in active service in Chicago? His story would be interesting.

[An editor has just asked what a narthex is. It's the vestibule of a church and corresponds to the foyer of a theater. The narthex is where old church friends meet with friendly handclasp and speak of divers and sundry matters—the minister's good sermon this morning, the new church school teacher who is doing such good work with Johnnie, men's club affairs, choral society, and the like. There's seldom, if ever, an unpleasantness in the narthex—and there'll be none in Narthex and Byway!]

The byway part of the name of this column is where the people live whom the church seeks. A mother from downstate asked us in a letter the name of the church on the corner of Kildare avenue and Washington boulevard. Her son lives near that corner and she wanted to write a letter to the pastor.

It's St. Mel's Catholic church.

Will your Thanksgiving day have to be spent in a loop hotel instead of at home? A suggestion: Hear Bishop Waldorf's Thanksgiving sermon at his 8th annual union service in the Chicago temple, 77 West Washington street, at 7:30 a. m. Subject: "Wells We Did Not Dig." Arrive a few minutes early or you may not get a seat—and you may meet friends from back home.

Good Fellowship Notes:

The rectors, choirs, and organists of St. Chrysostom's and St. Paul's Episcopal churches will trade with each other for this morning's services. The two rectors, Doctors Dudley Stark and F. C. Benson Belliss, say that various congregations ought to know each other better.

"The Lutheran church stands opposed to the philosophy that a man can polish himself until he shines with righteousness."—Lutheran Council News Bulletin.

SCAN HAZARDS TO MOTORISTS ON S. WEST SIDE

Motor Club Scouts List Traffic Perils.

Obstructions to the safe, smooth flow of trafic on the southwest side were surveyed recently by the south area council of the Chicago Motor club. The reconnoitering was the first of a series planned by the organization in mapping its 1940 program of street and highway improvements thruout the city.

Area councils in all sections of Chicago are sponsoring similar scouting excursions, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the club. He explained that the area councils will also study recommendations received from 250 affiliate organizations.

In their first southwest side tour, the scouts began at 87th and Halsted streets and traveled over Halsted south to 115th street, west to Ashland avenue, south to Vermont street, west to Western avenue, south to 147th street, where the complicated intersection of Western, Brennan highway and 147th street forced a temporary halt to their progress.

Find Signs Down.

Along this route it was reported that stop signs are down at the northeast corner of 109th and Halsted streets, at Laflin and 115th streets, at 120th street and Ashland avenue, all in Chicago, and at Des Plaines street and Western avenue in Blue Island and 144th street and Western avenue to Lixmoor.

Motorists traveling over these sections of road, according to the scouts, have three extremely rough railway crossings to pass over. They are near 115th and Halsted streets, at 124th and Ashland, and at 115th and Ashland.

At 147th street and Brennan highway the scouts discovered that neither road is identified for motorists going north or south on Western making it easy for them to confuse Brennan with 147th.

Take Another Route.

Their return trip took them over 147th street to Crawford, north to 127th street, east to Western avenue, north to 87th street, east to Halsted, north to Vincennes, northeast to Marquette road and east to Cottage Grove avenue.

Traveling east on 127th street at dusk, their attention was attracted to the side walls of a bridge which crosses Stony creek one block east of Kedzie avenue. The walls, they reported, are at the very edge of the highway where motorists would ordinarily expect to find the road shoulder and are not easily discernible to approaching trafic.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 20.

If the ground is workable bulbs still can be planted, especially tulips. Plant six to seven inches deep and mulch after the ground freezes. It is possible to increase the supply of garden roses from rooted cuttings. Take cuttings of the current season's wood at this time, allowing three buds to each cutting. Tie each variety in a bundle and bury outdoors in a garden spot until midwinter. Then place in rows in flats of moist sand about three inches deep. When rooted, pot up and grow like any plant. Keep in a sunny place. Shrubs can be rooted in the same way, altho they are not removed from the garden until spring, when they are lined out.

Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Trees and shrubs can be effectively fertilized during autumn or whenever the ground can be worked. Special plant foods are available for these plants. Commercial chemical foods contain all the necessary elements and are easily applied. Directions should be followed to the letter. House plants may have a bit of food about once a month to keep them in good condition. Plant tulips this fall, for prices likely will be much higher next year due to the war in Europe.

Wednesday, Nov. 22.

Grape vines may be pruned now, as well as in spring. Late summer and fall flowering shrubs may be pruned now if there is likely to be a lack of time in spring. The advantage of spring pruning is that some winter killing may occur and dead stems are removed at the time. Now is an excellent time to replant the garden or to plan a new one. The plan can be changed until it seems perfect to the designer. Apple trees can be sprayed now with lime-sulphur for San José scale. The lawn can be top dressed with good soil to repair irregularities. Place windbreaks in front of azaleas and rhododendrons to reduce the likelihood of injury from the sun's rays.

Thursday, Nov. 23.

Try sowing a few sweet peas now. They will germinate but make little growth, and stand thruout the winter, starting early in spring. They like cool weather. Cover the rows with three to four inches of straw, removing it when warm weather comes in spring. The hardy annuals also can be sown. They will germinate early in spring and make earlier flowers. If the garden soil is not up to standard, an excellent way to improve it is by trenching. Some gardeners trench four feet deep and, when the work is finished, plants grow astonishingly. Instead of spading in the ordinary way, throw out a furrow to one side, then spade one spading deep below the upper spading. This loosens the lower strata.

Friday, Nov. 24.

Do not mulch the strawberry bed until the ground freezes. Be careful to use material for mulching that contains no weed seeds. If black spots are seen on cherry or plum trees, prune them out. A thin cover of peat moss over the lawn will prove beneficial. Trees and shrubs can be planted as long as the ground can be worked and trees may be transplanted all winter if moved with a frozen ball of earth. Do not move thin barked trees. Consult the nurseryman. Poinsettia plants should never stand in a drafty place or be obliged to endure sudden changes of temperature or the leaves will fall.

Saturday, Nov. 25.

Be sure to keep flowering house plants well watered or the flowers will droop. Make a terrarium of ferns and small tropical plants, such as small palms, the bright partridge berry, peperomia, dumb cane, and others. The so-called sweat plant [selaginella], table ferns, and baby's tears make delightful low table decorations. If plants lose their buds they are probably suffering from too much water and not enough sunlight. Falling leaves usually are due to overwatering. When plants grow leggy cut them back.

HOSPITAL AIDS GIVING BENEFIT PARTY TONIGHT

Proceeds to Help Work of Osteopaths.

The women's auxiliary of the Chicago Osteopathic hospital, 5200 Ellis avenue, will sponsor a benefit party in the form of a smörgasbord at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the Southside Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue.

Mrs. W. J. Downing. [De Haven Photo.]

Following the dinner, Mrs. W. J. Dohren, cochairman of the ways and means committee, will introduce Helen Harriet Larson, contralto of the Sylvan trio, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Chloe F. Wright. Mrs. Harlow Horner will read "The American Way."

Officers of the organization this year are Mrs. W. J. Downing, 7807 Ridgeland avenue, president; Mrs. C. E. Gaddie, 7540 Constance avenue, first vice president and program chairman; Mrs. K. R. M. Thompson, 9457 Winchester avenue, second vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. J. M. Watts, 1222 East 82d street, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. E. Dundon, 1449 East 50th street, recording secretary, and Mrs. Fred Bischoff, 1461 Fargo avenue, treasurer.

The auxiliary has just refurnished the reception room at the hospital and plans further improvements.

Two Proficient Riders

Boots and saddles are familiar accoutrements in the life of most of the cadets at Morgan Park Military academy. Boys who have a love of horseback riding are given an opportunity to improve their skill almost daily thru the woods and across the prairies five miles southwest of the school. Two of the more proficient of the riders are Corporal William Campbell (left) and Sergt. Charles Kirk. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

St. Christina's Sodality Will Hold Fall Festival

The fall festival dance sponsored by the Young Ladies' sodality of St. Christina's church will be held Nov. 29 at the church hall, 110th street and Homan avenue. The committee of arrangements consists of Alice Alger, Emma Domazet, Bernice Catilus, Catherine Cunningham, and Joanne Petro.

WILSON COLLEGE STUDENTS NAMED AIDS TO FACULTY

Staff Members Chosen for Citizenship.

Virginia Edwards was chosen chairman and Erline Churchill co-chairman of the junior staff at Wilson Junior college, 6800 Stewart avenue last week, according to Lumir Brazda, faculty sponsor. This student group assists the faculty at school events such as assemblies, elections, and festivals, ushers at graduations, and represents Wilson at other institutions.

Membership is based on good scholarship, outstanding service in extracurricular activities, willingness to cooperate with the faculty, and commendable character.

Members of Staff.

Others who were named to the group by the faculty are:

Fourth semester students—Virginia Brehm, Catherine Davis, Alice Duncan, Olga Grab, Betty Hoserodt, Esther Hill, Rosalie Kentopp, Dorothy Raschlitz, Florence Tish, Jean Turnbull, John Gildroy, Joseph Isaacson, Warren Sorenson, Alex Spear, and Bernard Weiland.

Others in Group.

Second semester—Dorothy Best, Ruth Borchardt, Betty Graf, Beverly Hill, Ann Mary Kirchoff, Bernadine Swanson, Henry Hawthorne, Robert Ohlsson, Hardy Ruffin, Walter Thinom, and Fred Vinroot.

First semester—Juanita Coombes, Marie Enright, Earla Musselman, Lawrence Doyle, Ernest Kurtz, and Robert Lindwall.

—Harper—

Twenty-five cadets in the Harper High school R. O. T. C. unit are members of the ushers' club, which supervises order at all school functions. Maj. Julius Wrage is head of the ushers, assisted by Lieut. Lawrence Cooke. Members are Otto Schaefer, Robert Leahy, John Major, Terrance Dolan, Mike Del Pnoire, Harry Collins, Robert Rothel, Steve Leonardo, Robert Schreiber, Harry Leuhring, Kenneth Gross, Edward Kross, Ewar Voss, Raymond Mischke, Raymond Cataldi, Robert Lackner, Andrew Herrman, George Schulte, Christopher Tebbens, Lawrence Tebbens, Frances Durkin, Thomas Durkin, Wayne Aye, Norman Olsen, and Samuel Bischof.

Morgan Park

A total of 39 noncommissioned officers exists at Morgan Park High school after the final list of permanent promotions has been made by Sergt. Veachel A. Dennison, R. O. T. C. instructor. Selection of "noncoms" is considered important because they command the basic units, perform certain tactical duties and are being trained as potential officers.

The complete list follows:

Master sergeants—Norman Meyer, Paul Lauerman, William Minor, and Elmer Fogelsong.

First sergeants—John Ulreich, Robert Blend, Ray Hager, Justus Eddy, and Warren Ewert.

Corporals—Joseph Abrahams, James Angstrom, Otto Bednarik, James Deming, George Greene, Reinhardt Jahn, Alan Johnston, John Johnson, Malcolm Little, Russell Potts, Harold Reinbold, James Schielke, Robert Schmitt, William Schurz, Jack Spence, Louis Swatkowski, and Robert Wilson.

—Fenger—

In a new plan to make rifle marksmen of all Fenger cadets, more than 85 per cent of the 340 students in the unit took their turns on the range before a third of the semester was completed this fall. Approximately 8,000 rounds of ammunition was used in the comprehensive practice encouraged by Sergt. William P. Robinson, military instructor. From the exhibition given by all cadets, Sergt. Robinson will select members of the rifle team to complement Maj. Kent Cox, Capt. Robert Lang, and First Lieutenant Gregor Larsen, veterans from last year's squad. Likely candidates for the vacant positions, it is reported, are Eugene Erickson, Ray Schmidt, David Johnson, Richard Helstrom, Gino Nicol, Robert Martin, Oscar Lind, and William Carlson.

LORING SCHOOL TO CELEBRATE FOUNDER'S DAY

The Loring School for Girls, 10650 Longwood drive, will celebrate Founder's day with a Thanksgiving program Wednesday evening at the school. According to tradition, pupils will bring offerings of food to be sent to the Visiting Nurse association for distribution among the sick and needy.

Founder's day is celebrated each year on Nov. 22 because it is the birthday of Stella Dyer Loring, who founded the school in 1876. Miss Stella Loring, honorary principal, will speak on the early days of the school at the exercises. Miss Anne Williams, former kindergarten teacher at Loring and present faculty member at the National College of Education in Evanston, also will speak.

On Tuesday evening the senior class will be introduced to the members of the Alumnae association at the annual dinner. Miss Lois Hay, 10744 South Hoyne avenue, is president of the senior class.

WALLACE RIFLE TEAM WINS GARY SCHOOL MATCHES

Lew Wallace High school, with 793 points, won the shoulder to shoulder matches held recently among three rifle teams of the Gary R. O. T. C. unit. Horace Mann school scored 736 points and Emerson school was third with 729 points.

Joseph Hill of Horace Mann fired the highest individual score with 175. Fred Stanley of Lew Wallace, Joseph Scheck of Emerson and Walter Shepard of Horace Mann tied for second highest with 172.

SAFETY RALLIES OPEN IN HARVEY SCHOOL TUESDAY

The first in a series of six monthly industrial safety meetings sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council this fall and winter will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in the auditorium of Thornton Township High school of Harvey. The meetings are intended to instruct executives, foremen, supervisors, key employés and families of Chicago Heights and Harvey manufacturing companies. The industrial safety school is an annual feature of the program of the suburban group of the council; this is its 12th season.

WHATEVER PRICE YOU PAY PER PACK, IT'S IMPORTANT TO REMEMBER THIS FACT: BY BURNING 25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS TESTED—SLOWER THAN ANY OF THEM—CAMELS GIVE A SMOKING PLUS EQUAL TO 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

Cigarettes were compared recently... sixteen of the largest-selling brands... under the searching tests of impartial laboratory scientists. Findings of these tests were announced as follows:

1. CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
2. CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!
3. In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

Turn to Camels. Get extra smoking per pack... cooler, milder smoking topped off with the delicate taste and fragrant aroma of Camel's finer, more costly tobaccos.

MORE PLEASURE PER PUFF... MORE PUFFS PER PACK!

Enter Big Christmas Jingle Contest for Dr. Lyon's Users and Dealers

Just Do This:

ENTER this NEW $10,000 CASH PRIZE contest that's so EASY and SIMPLE to win, it's like A.B.C.! Just to introduce to you more quickly the wonderful way Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder reveals the NATURAL BEAUTY OF YOUR TEETH!

Imagine waking up some bright December morning to have $1,000.00 cash fall in your lap! Or $500.00 . . . $200.00 . . . $100.00 . . . or any one of these other 429 big cash prizes! Enough cash to make the first payment on a home, a car — pay your bills and still have enough for things you've always wanted! Wouldn't that make your happiest Christmas ever! Then get busy!

All you do is just fill in a last line for the jingle above. Anybody can do it — for a line that rhymes just naturally pops into your head as you read it. (See "Hints" above entry blank.)

How to write a line that rhymes. First — to get ideas, think what Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder does for your teeth. Try it. See for yourself how it brightens your teeth . . . how this effective cleansing agent reveals all the WHITENESS they may really have. See what a thrilling improvement this makes in your smile — in your attractiveness and charm!

Then remember, when you go to your dentist to have him clean and polish your teeth most probably he uses POWDER to do it. And it stands to reason he knows more than anybody else about cleaning and polishing teeth. So in using Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, especially developed by a dentist for daily home use, you are following an accepted method that millions use.

With these facts, it's easy to rhyme. And fun! Try it. Even a child can win. Get the whole family working for you. Send as many entries as you want. The more you send, the more chances to win! Get a can of Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder for a few cents at any drug or department store and send in your entry today!

READ THESE EASY RULES

1. Write on entry blank or an ordinary sheet of writing paper. Write or print your last line, using sufficient words to complete the jingle. Your last line may embody any idea you think completes the thought, if the last word rhymes with "bright." Print or write your name and address.

2. Enclose one empty cardboard box from any size can of Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder and the name and address of the dealer who supplied you with this. Mail to The R. L. Watkins Company, Box No. 9, Canal Street Branch, New York, N. Y. Please use sufficient postage.

3. Contest closes December 3rd, 1939, and all entries must be postmarked on or before midnight on that day.

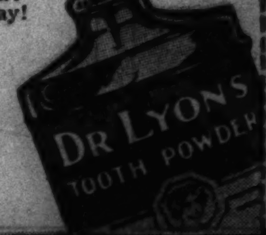
4. Entries will be judged for aptness, originality, and suitability. Decision of the judges will be final. "Fancy" entries will not count extra. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. No entries returned and all entries, contents, and ideas therein become the property of The R. L. Watkins Company, makers of Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder.

5. Anyone may enter the contest except employees of The R. L. Watkins Company, and their advertising agencies and the families of these employees. This contest applies only to Continental United States and is subject to all Federal, State, and local laws and regulations.

6. You may submit as many entries as you wish, just as long as each is accompanied by a Dr. Lyon's box.

7. Major winners will be announced over radio programs "Backstage Wife" and "Orphans of Divorce," as soon as possible after contest closes, and their prizes mailed before Christmas. Other winners will be notified and their prizes forwarded by mail.

All Prizes Paid December 15
Checks Mailed by That Date



Hints To Help You Win!
Once you know what Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder does for your teeth, why it is to your advantage to use this powder dentifrice, you'll think of a number of suitable words to rhyme with "bright" and "night." Then it's easy to write a line, such as "You'll quickly take the spotlight" — or, "It's a treat to use it, all right," etc. You probably have a better line in mind already. Send it in today! It may win up to $1,000.00!

IF YOU WANT PEANUTS FORGET THIS AD

It's directed, by a General Motors affiliate, to only three Chicago men. These men may not now be in any department of the automotive business but they must be men who like to sell, who have demonstrated their ability to sell successfully and who want to make some real money with an exceptionally well regarded organization.

We offer such an opportunity to one South Side man, one West Side man, and one Northwest Side man. They will sell what we believe to be the finest used cars in the city of Chicago, conditioned by such unusual means as to make every salesman and customer an enthusiast. They will receive unlimited co-operation. Drawing account against commission given to start.

Every man who makes good can go just about as far as he pleases in an organization that has the finances to pay in big brackets. Character and business references essential. Permanent.

MEN.

Six years ago I came to Chicago and ran my first advertisement for man to help me establish my business, using as a base an electrical unit.

During these six years my business has grown to where hundreds of men are associated with me within a 200 mile radius. We have not scratched the ice, even though we have over 50,000 customers. Your neighbors, friends, and relatives are users of my products and my associates who handle these customers earn in commission and bonus alone monthly figures in many cases from two to four times as much as they ever earned in their lives.

MY PROPOSITION

You call at exactly 2:00 P. M. Monday.
I spend two hours with you explaining every detail and answering your every question.
At 4:00 P. M. I select 8 that I will completely finance. You do not invest one cent.
The following two days you are trained in our business and select location.
Thursday morning you are in business for yourself under our iron clad contract which is the same as all other men have.
Next Monday (one week from the day you answer this ad) your first weekly settlement record will be ready.
Your past experience means nothing to me. Neither does your religion or politics. If you want to make money, are willing to work, are honest and reliable, that is all I ask. No strings attached—no red tape.
Apply Room 400, Maryland Bldg., 841 E. 63d-st., Chicago. Ask for Mr. Buckley.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Fruit Falls Fast.

Nov. 18, 1939.

FRUIT bearing trees which grow on the Du Page county farm have felt the effects of several heavy frosts during the last few weeks. Early in the autumn it was fun to walk thru the woods and see the wild crab trees loaded with fruit, note the contrast between the green grass and the bright red thornapples that have fallen to the ground, hunt for wild grapes along the fence rows, and check on the apples that have managed to stay on the branches, much to the delight of the starlings.

But a hike over the farm this late in the season is a different story. Most of the trees and shrubs have lost both leaves and fruit. Even the branches of most wild crabs are bare. The small green apples of these trees are on the ground ready to be taken to the farm kitchen to be made into jelly.

Hedge Rows Are Bare.

There are several osage orange hedges on the farm which earlier in the season were attractive because of the large green "oranges" on their branches. These hedges were almost bare of leaves this week, but on some of the trees there were a few green "oranges" that managed to withstand recent winds, rains, and frosts.

No fruit on the farm is so unusual in size, color, and texture as the osage orange. They are yellowish green in color, rough skinned, about the size of an edible orange, and when cut exude a milky sticky juice. In many counties of Illinois the osage orange has been planted as it grows on the farm—to form a hedgerow. Miles of these osage hedges grow downstate, altho many of the trees have either been cut down or uprooted completely.

Today the osage has no claim for consideration on the part of the landowner except that it is decorative, provides excellent nesting sites for birds which consume injurious insects and weed seeds, and it makes a good hedge. Years ago, however, it was important to both the pioneers and the Indians. The wood of the tree is satiny smooth and extremely elastic. It was a favorite material among the Indians when they wanted wood to make a good bow. Indians that lived a thousand miles from the middle west [where the osage was growing wild] sometimes would offer a horse and a blanket for one high grade bow made from osage orange wood.

Source of Dye Wood.

The large roots and the heart wood of the tree are a bright orange in color. The Indians soon learned that from the roots they could make a yellow dye and they often utilized this source in order to get bright yellow tints for their garments and even for their bodies.

The osage hedges growing on the farm are in many respects typical of those which may be seen downstate. They are thick, form an impenetrable barrier, and are armed with sharp thorns. It's easy to see how early settlers saved their money on fencing by having these green barriers around their fields.

Give Teeth the Care of Jewels

By Eleanor Nangle

WE'VE read somewhere that every pious Mohammedan says appropriate prayers while he is cleaning his teeth. Not such a bad idea, that. Sound teeth should be prized above rubies. A little prayer for their preservation, plus practical care, is quite understandable.

In totaling the score of feminine beauty a lovely smile counts for a great deal. And fine teeth, strong, even, shiny, and white, are the vital ingredient of the smile beautiful.

There is no hocus-pocus about preventive dentistry. In many respects it's something you practice yourself, guided by your dentist. You're practicing it when you eat properly, when you drink your quota of milk a day, when you lap up citrus fruit juices, when you chew your food thoroly. You practice it when you make a standing date with your dentist for several times a year. And, above all, you practice it at least twice and maybe three times a day when you clean your teeth as they should be cleaned.

As a beauty asset healthy teeth (which nearly always are beautiful teeth) cannot be overestimated. When you preserve your teeth you also are preserving facial contour.

New Underlayers Dramatize Figure

By Rhea Seeger

NOTHING ever sponsored by the designers has caused as much chattering comment and as many arguments as the wasp-waisted corsets spotlighted during a fall opening in Paris. Shocked audiences held their breath while the hourglass figures of the parading mannequins passed by. The creations almost superseded the war headlines in the various publications, and the feminine half of the world settled down to decide yes or no.

So far the issue is a draw. Some already have worn the sleek foundations; others have tried them for an hour or so at night under the confining streamlines of the newest ball gowns; and still others are wearing them all the time, with some very smooth results.

Girdles, corsets, combinations of both bra and girdle, aren't especially new for a lot of us. Faithful to the precept that a straight, graceful figure is the loveliest silhouette of all, sold on the eye-proved fact that bulges and poor posture are anything but appealing, there are thousands who have never yielded to the rather lazy way of dressing. American corsetry has been unappreciated, for long before Mainbocher laced the satin foundation around the gasping world of women this fall, American designers had been presenting each season miracles of easy, comfortable satin magic to keep the figure under eye-appealing control.

Lastex panels at the side, satin brocade, and summer net streamlines, made by experts at the game of maintaining supersmoothness with every bit of necessary comfort, make the best of the foundation models. These have been worn and used under the most expensive of costumes, for active and spectator sports wear, for dancing, for sleek afternoon and daytime outfits, and for the loveliest of evening gowns.

New clothes are made with a defined waistline, with hips graciously curved, with the bosom definitely high and round. Consequently they fit only over the correct streamline, and no figure is perfect enough to wear these revealing gowns without a sleek, skin-smooth foundation. Underlayers to dramatize every figure, most of them without a single constricting bone, are obtainable with price marks to please every shopper. Inexpensive models as well as the luxury finds are made with the same skilful design, the same faultless detail, and the same smooth fitting. Models to wear with evening gowns, models that stress the suave fit of afternoon dresses, suits, and coats; short, waist-defining affairs for the full-skirted ball gowns, and the expertly cut foundation layers for active sports are legion.

New colors especially offer everything. We are going back to provocative satins, to ribbon lacings, to fine laces and finished corsets, girdles, or all-togethers that are the last word in appealing femininity.

And here is the final and best argument for the wearing of the newest models: Since the clothes you buy are sized 14, 16, 18, and so on, they have been cut and fitted for just those sizes. If you struggle into a dress that does not fit, the alteration charges loom before you. If you are properly corseted before you try the dress, the sizes agree, the body lines are smoothed comfortably into an unbroken streamline, and the necessary alterations are few if any. Usually the sum asked for alterations equals the price of a good underlayer!

Sketched are a few of the newest models, models for day and evening clothes as well as for active sports.

D—Material called "silver" in all-in-one for wear under "plastered" costumes. ● E—High-cut girdle with specially designed midriff section, matching bra. ● F—Copper colored model of satin and lastex, matching bra. Similar all-in-one model also obtainable. ● G—Suave low-cut all-in-one, expertly fashioned, with lace bra.

Fear of Marriage Often Selfishness

By Doris Blake

(Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

YOUNG men and young women, here is one of your contemporaries speaking! We want you to read what this young woman has to say on the attitude so many assume toward marriage today. We want to know if you agree with her that it is fear that obsesses you, fear of having to forego certain of your little pleasures when you agree to get along on a single income, and it not too large a one.

We think that you young men should be glad to know that there still are young women in your midst with the spirit of our correspondent, Helene. We'll venture that she is neither unusual nor amiss in her reasoning. A question bothers us in connection with this fear angle. It is this: Are young men more fearful of the marriage step than are young women? Our feeling is that young men are afraid more often than women because of the money feature. But we would like you to tell us your own reaction to thoughts of being tied for life at your age.

Meanwhile you might ponder Helene's version of the importance, or lack of it, that certain of you young people give to becoming engaged with a view to early marriage. Do you agree that getting herself a man rather than the man colors the matrimonial choice too much for eventual marriage success? Do you allow the unfortunate marriage experiences of failures to affect your attitude?

Helene writes: "I have just finished reading your column quoting the two letters from a girl and a boy who find themselves engaged and panicky about the whole affair. I simply have to express my views on the subject. I'm not given to writing every time something bothers me, because I know that every one is entitled to his own opinion, but this time I feel that perhaps my opinion might be of some use to the poor, forlorn souls who haven't gumption enough to run their own lives properly.

"To begin with, if a person has accepted an engagement ring, or given one that has been accepted, it should be considered a sacred vow. That's what's wrong with the youth of today. Things don't mean anything to them any more. Marriage, love, romance, it all amounts to a row of pins, and each person is trying to step over the upturned points without getting himself or herself scratched by them! I've been engaged myself, so I know what I'm talking about.

"A girl is so worried these days that she won't get herself a man that she either runs headlong into the very first proposal she gets or grabs for a man she doesn't really want, simply to show the world that she has the power to attract and hold a man! A man thinks it's fun to play around with lots of girls and to promise anything they want him to do without ever (Continued on Page 2.)

"Open House" Is Simple Way to Entertain

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The open house method of entertaining large groups of friends is one of the most charming. The informality and hominess of open house atmosphere warm the hearts of guests and hosts alike. There is no better place to see one's friends than in one's home, and if the entertainment can be informal and easy, in the open house manner, the intimacy of a small group may be felt even in a large one.

The beauty of the open house, from the standpoint of the hostess, is that so little food preparation is necessary. A big punch bowl, hot tea, wine, cider, or cocoa, with perhaps little cookies, cakes, or sandwiches is sufficient. These recipes offer a wide choice of beverage.

PARTY PUNCH.
[Serves 30.]

2¼ quarts [9 cups] pineapple juice
2 cups orange juice
¾ cup lemon juice
1 quart ice water
1½ quarts ginger ale
Plain sirup
Pint box of strawberries
Slices of orange

Combine fruit juices and water. Sweeten to taste with sirup made by boiling equal parts sugar and water together for 5 minutes. To serve, pour fruit juices over a block of ice in a punch bowl, add the ginger ale, stir to blend, and garnish the bowl with sliced berries and orange.

Fresh strawberries aren't to be found in every market this season, but frozen ones will do quite as well.

HOT SPICED CIDER.
[50 teacups.]

2 gallons cider
6 cups brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
16 2 inch pieces cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole cloves
2 tablespoons whole allspice
1 teaspoon mace

Tie spices loosely in a cheesecloth bag and add with sugar, salt, and cayenne to cider. Bring slowly to the boiling point, boil gently for 15 minutes and remove spice bag. Serve hot.

WINE PUNCH.
[2 gallons.]

1 bottle port or claret wine
1 pint lemon juice
1 pint orange juice
½ pint grenadine, grape juice, or pineapple juice
1 bottle carbonated water
1 pint ginger ale

Combine ingredients and pour into a punch bowl in which a block of ice has been placed. Garnish with cherries or sliced oranges. Less lemon juice may be used if a sweet punch rather than a tart one is preferred.

MULLED WINE.
[1¾ quarts.]

1 quart port wine
½ pint rum
1 pint water
1 stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon whole allspice
1 tablespoon sugar
8 whole cloves

Place spices in a bag and add to water and sugar. Simmer for 15 minutes. Pour wine and rum into the hot water. Stir gently. Do not let the mixture come to the boiling point. Remove the spice bag and serve the wine quite warm, but not hot, in wine glasses.

COCOA.
[25 servings of 1 cup.]

1 cup cocoa
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups water
1¼ cups sugar
1¼ gallons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Few grains of cinnamon

Mix cocoa, salt, and sugar together. Add water, mix until smooth, and cook together for about 5 minutes. Scald milk, add cocoa mixture, stir until blended. Cook in the top of a double boiler 15 minutes to develop flavor. Beat to a froth with an egg beater so that a film does not form on top. Add vanilla and a sprinkling of cinnamon just before serving.

BOHEMIAN TEA.
[Serves 20-22.]

3 quarts boiling water
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon orange pekoe tea
¾ cup orange juice
Juice of 2 lemons [1½ if they are large]

Tie spices loosely in a cheesecloth bag and add with sugar to hot water. Boil for 10 minutes, turn off heat, and add tea, tied in another bag. Cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Remove spices and tea bag. Add fruit juices and serve hot, in teacups.

Ground spices may be used. Tie ½ teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves in a muslin bag and boil for 5 minutes instead of 10 with the sirup.

Spiced Pineapple Rings Delicious with a Ham

Spiced pineapple rings are a delicious garnish for boiled or fried ham. For a quick spicing method, simmer 15 minutes one-third cup red cinnamon candies with 1 and one-half cups juice, one-half cup brown sugar and six slices of pineapple. Stir several times. Pour onto a shallow dish and, when chilled, the slices will be jellied on top.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

We don't think we're the least bit too early in suggesting these Christmas gifts you can make yourself. In fact, we advise you to order the patterns now so that you'll have plenty of leisure in which to create them to your satisfaction.

No. 3034 fashions all-in-one pajamas for juveniles. They may be of flannel or cotton, plain or figured. There is a handy pocket for the bedtime handkerchief, and long sleeves for warmth.

No. 2607 is a "dressmaker" nightgown with square and lace-trimmed neckline, short puffed sleeves, also trimmed with the lace, and sculptured waistline, below which is a full and graceful skirt. Both lingerie cottons and silks, white or pastel, are the materials to use. The other version, with shirtwaist collar and long, full sleeves, makes up well in plain or figured flannelette.

No. 3175 fashions dressy and tailored collars and cuffs to dress up plain frocks. Use lace, linen, pique, and similar materials.

No. 2634 makes a tweed or other woolen jacket. There must be at least one friend who would appreciate a gift as unusual as this one.

No. 2822 makes one of the most acceptable of gifts, a turban. Use jersey, either woolen or silk, crêpe or plain woolen crêpe, and choose a high color.

Doll patterns Nos. E-822, E-843, and E-11187, and stuffed animal patterns Nos. E-854 and E-821 are ten cents each. Directions and yardage requirements furnished with patterns.

Applique patterns Nos. E-801, E-11183, E-11013 and E-11012 must be ordered separately for ten cents each.

Style No. 2607 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4⅛ yards of 39 inch material, 4¾ yards of lace, for dressy version.

Style No. 3034 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 4, and 6. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3175 is designed for one size. Collar and cuffs require ⅛ yard of 39 inch material, 2¼ yards of lace. Jabot with collar requires 1 yard of 35 inch and 2¾ yards of lace. Guimpe requires ¾ yard of 35 inch material.

Style No. 2634 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material.

Style No. 2822 is designed for one headsize, adaptable to your own needs. Requires 1½ yards of 39 inch material.

Each of the 14 patterns described costs ten cents.

For 15 cents buy the fall and winter Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to New York address in coupon.

Sunday Night Treat.

For a Sunday night supper treat, split hot biscuits, quickly spread some apple butter, blended with a little butter over them. Put the halves together again and serve them with a hot beverage.

Old Candles Can Be Put to Many Uses Around the House

Save your old candles now that the season is here when you'll be investing in many bright, colorful new ones. For just ordinary wax, melted to proper consistency, is of inestimable help around the house.

Melted wax, for instance, will keep the stopper in the thermos bottle tighter, once it has started to loosen. A coat of wax over that worn out washer will prevent an irritating spray until the plumber arrives. A coat of wax on the base of a vase will eliminate danger of damp circles on your choice surface tops. Melted wax in the sockets of candle holders will keep many a wobbly candle firm and many an old candle can be called into emergency use to serve over a glass of jelly or preserves.

Test Washing.

To make sure that a fabric can be washed without harm to color, texture, or finish, squeeze a sample [or an inconspicious part of the garment] in lukewarm suds for five minutes; then rinse, dry, and compare it with the unwashed material.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN
When Aggravated by Excess Uric Acid
Thousands take ALLENRU for the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or rheumatic backache when aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons. Such excess acid and poisons should soon start to leave your body and thus the terrible agony is often relieved—no powders—no opiates.
Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid—costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

For nursery play zones that are drafty and for game rooms that are stuffy, for bedrooms that are noisy and for all house or apartment rooms which can use fresh, clean air in winter, there are portable window units which ventilate air, clean and circulate it, and deaden sound. Side vents temper the incoming cold air, mix it with the warm room air—a nice unit which does its allotted part toward better conditioning of our indoor air.

If you would make a dramatic change in the face of some informal floor of your house this fall, a livelier floor for your game room or den, your inclosed porch or attic bedroom, try "the old New England spattered floor." You can "spatter" your own floor to fit the color scheme of any room, and this treatment is neither expensive nor hard to do.

Etiquet Editor Gives Rule in Signing Cards

How many attendants should the bride have? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, answers this and many other questions about weddings in her valuable booklet, "The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

"Should the woman's name be first or last when a husband and wife sign a card?" . . . "Is 'Mr. and Mrs. John Smith' the correct way to write a signature?" . . . "How should our names be printed on the card?" There seem to be a dozen ways of putting the question, but it all boils down to the same problem, which is the correct signature on Christmas cards. Christmas is not the only time during the year that people have an occasion to sign their names to cards or messages, but it is in the holiday season that all these questions are concentrated.

Remember this! People have two names—one a social title and the other a legal signature. The social title is Mr. John Smith or Mrs. John Smith, the name by which persons are addressed, the name used in formal correspondence, the name used on calling cards, and the name used on letters directed to persons. If this name is used on a Christmas card—Mr. and Mrs. John Smith—it must be a very formal card with the name appearing above the greeting on the card, and never in the position of a signature following the message.

The other name, the legal signature, is the name used in signing all letters, notes, cards, legal documents. For a man this is accomplished simply by dropping the title "Mr." His signature then becomes John Smith, his given name. Mrs. Smith also reverts to her given name and drops her title, and her signature becomes Mary Brown Smith. Mrs. Mary Smith is never correct, under any circumstances, whether the woman is married, widowed, or divorced.

This, then, is the common usage. Christmas cards are becoming more and more informal year after year, so whether the cards are signed in longhand or printed, when the names appear below the greeting on the card the given names are used. I have seen some so informal that nicknames were used, and others with the given name alone. Of course, the given name must be a very distinctive one and adequate identification if the surname is to be omitted.

Husbands and wives, when putting a joint signature on their cards, place the woman's name first . . . Mary and John Smith.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago [To the Home Building Editor].—Is there any real loss of indoor heat in winter thru window glass? The rooms on the north and west of our house already are colder than those on south and east. We only moved in last July.—J. K.

Answer: Heat loss thru window glass is serious and costs money. It also causes discomfort when space around windows is too cold to be usable, or the entire room is too chilly for enjoyment. Hence the value of well fitted storm windows, especially on the north and west of the house, or on the exposed side. Such windows should be weatherstripped, too, for greatest protection.

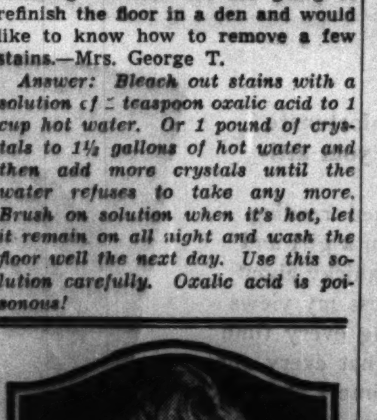
Valparaiso, In. [To the Home Building Editor].—We are going to refinish the floor in a den and would like to know how to remove a few stains.—Mrs. George T.

Answer: Bleach out stains with a solution of ½ teaspoon oxalic acid to 1 cup hot water. Or 1 pound of crystals to 1½ gallons of hot water and then add more crystals until the water refuses to take any more. Brush on solution when it's hot, let it remain on all night and wash the floor well the next day. Use this solution carefully. Oxalic acid is poisonous!



New Light-Hair Shampoo Keeps Blonde Hair Golden and Lustrous
To keep blonde hair from darkening, fading and losing its attractiveness, it is always necessary to wash it with particular care. Its texture is so delicate that ordinary shampoo methods may cause it to streak and lose its charm.
So do what millions of attractive blondes do. Use New Blondex, the special shampoo that washes it shades lighter and brings out the full radiant loveliness, the lustrous sheen and highlights that can make blonde hair so beautiful. Blondex costs but a few pennies to use and is absolutely safe. Fine for children's hair, too. Get New Blondex today at any good store.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Girlish simplicity is the outstanding characteristic of this "date" frock. It's the sort of thing girls on the campus like for fraternity teas and informal dances, sorority house affairs, and gang trips to the town dance spots. This dress is what one might call a social success, since it's appropriate and in good taste anywhere and every one likes it.

My own version of the model is the one sketched. I used moire in a soft green shade and put two bronze clips at the collarless neckline. The only other trimming is a horizontal ruffle placed midway between hips and hem. There is no belt, because the princess lines fit the dress beautifully to the figure.

One could make this dress of any sort of crêpe, sheer woolen, or of velveteen. Without the ruffle, the design is simple enough for office and classroom wear. Black is always good, of course, but in a season for colors such as this one it's a shame not to take advantage of the misty tones, jewel colors, and high shades available.

Style No. T-8648 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Is Selfishness Behind a Fear of Marriage?

a thought of fulfillment in mind! O, I'm terribly smug, I suppose, but if only girls and men would realize that engagement and marriage are the most important things in the world! If only they wouldn't be so terribly worried, if they'd stop to realize that they wouldn't be disillusioned so much if they didn't bother about what the rest of the world is doing and looked to their own better choices in matters of this kind!

"You know, as I see it, it all sums up to the fact that it is merely a fear of not being able to cope wtih the world and with the tasks marriage brings upon us. We American youth have been, up until the time of our engagement or marriage, all wrapped up in no one but our own little selves and our own good times. The fact that some day a special boy or girl will step into our lives has been viewed by us as a wonderfully glamorous romance without a care or doubt flitting on the fringes.

"However, when the 'great day' comes, and we find ourselves engaged, we suddenly wake up with a terrible start and realize that, from this moment on, our lives are not our own. From now on we must think of some one else, we must give up all our other dates and cling to the one person we have chosen. O, horrible thought! Imagine giving up all our lovely dates to settle down on a fairly scrimpy salary and struggle along without or two-thread stockings or our silk ties, and nothing but the movies every other week for entertainment! O, horrors!

"What it all boils down to is fear. Where, may I ask, would this world be today, or this country, rather, if our forefathers and mothers had been the lazy, self-centered, egotistical cowards that we are?

"By word of parting I'd like to say that before you get yourselves engaged look your future life partner over carefully. Make sure you want to make life for him or her happy and peaceful! Be most certain that you are unselfish enough to derive enjoyment from catering to him or her. And after you have accepted the ring or given it, don't look back to your past gay times. Look forward, always forward, to the life you two are going to have with each other. That is love! A beautiful love as God intended it to be!

"HELENE."

Clotil[de ...]

There's a good deal of charm in the lines of this juvenile frock. It has a fitted and paneled bodice that is trimmed with two self material pockets and three ribbon bows. Topping the bodice is a detachable shirtwaist collar to contrast. The narrow cuffs on the short puffed sleeves match the collar.

In the back of the slim waistline is a voluminous bow, and the skirt flares rather widely.

This frock may be made less tailored by using a lace collar and lace edging for the sleeves, and by omitting the pockets.

The tailored version may be made of silk, cotton or woolen, and checked patterns are attractive. The dressier design makes up well in silk, velvet or velveteen.

Style No. 3083 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of [...] inch materi[al] of contrasting, and [...] yar[d ...] for bows.

Short Skirt Is Latest Evening Fashion News

By Bettina Bedwell.

It took the world war to banish long skirts from fashion, and they came back only in the restricted section of feminine finery reserved for evening, when the ban was lifted in 1929. The present setup of styles in the war-torn European capitals of Paris and London clamps down again on the elongated skirt. Short evening skirts, and I mean SHORT, came back to fashion within a month after war was declared early in September.

Women who wouldn't wear the ultratrousered evening ensemble I wrote about recently in these columns could pick short-skirted dresses for the underground life of the cabaret and dance emporiums of Paris and London. In some sections of England the police had to make regulations on the subject, since long skirts are considered hazardous to the nimble scramble necessary when the air raid signal sounds.

Dresses with very short skirts, usually quite full, are the new uniform for evening. A stray evening dress here and there made its wearer so conspicuous from the very beginning of hostilities that they all disappeared. Crowds made unflattering remarks about any women brash enough to dress in a long and low-cut gown, and in some cases the remarks were followed up by rude jostling and more personal physical demonstrations of disapproval.

In Paris these short dresses, usually black or some very dark color, look so absolutely right for the surroundings that I wonder that they ever seemed dull and daytime-ish. Many of them are discreetly embroidered, but there isn't a hint of the lavish blare and glitter with which the fall evening fashions started off just before the war.

I noticed that all the fancy jewelry I used to see of an evening in Paris and London also disappeared when war broke out. Everybody began wearing pearls, most of them phony, which was the only jewel one could see anywhere in the last years of the world war, and for some years after that. Some women have revived the thin gold chain necklace with a locket or lavaliere hung from it, but pearls are seen most frequently around the best necks.

Another noticeable change, manifest since September, has been the way women wear their hair. Hair neatly waved, on the general lines preferred by the duchess of Windsor, with a chignon at the back of the neck, which often is as false as the pearls below it, is a favorite coiffure. Cropped hair, not as short as the boyish bob of the '20s, but pretty short, is another style. It's usually curled all over.

A dress such as one Molyneux model, made of a sheer, smoky gray wool, with a fitted, long-sleeved waist and a circular skirt that ends not far below the knees, is representative of evening fashions. A large motif of gray and pink pearls is embroidered on the chest, and hip pockets are embroidered in the same way. A string of pearls is worn around the neck.

Another kind of short dress that's worn for evening is made of black velvet and trimmed with black net and bands of black lace. The net makes the shoulder yoke, the set-in girdle, and the panel down the front of the skirt.

With us always is the question of how to make the most of appearance on the sanest sort of budget. Or how to look chic and clever on the money we do lay out for clothes season after season.

The line of demarcation between being well dressed today and being well groomed and attractive is so thin one hardly knows where it begins and ends. We thought a few pertinent words from one of the most glamorous and notably best dressed women would fit into our beauty scheme well at this time of wardrobe arranging and rearranging.

So we present the lovely Gladys Swarthout, opera soprano and definitely one of the always perfectly dressed women.

"Fashion," says Miss Swarthout, "begins with an understanding of one's own personality. Wear what is most flattering to YOU, and don't worry too much about the latest style dictates. If you are dressed in becoming, simple clothes, you always are dressed in good taste, and that, after all, is the most important fashion rule to observe.

"Today," comments the brunette diva, "styles are so flexible that every woman, tall or short, plump or slender, always can find a frock that best suits her particular type. If you have good shoulders, you can show them to advantage in the new vignette evening gowns. If you haven't, long-sleeved gowns and covered shoulders are high style, too, and are equally flattering to every type of figure.

"Whether your hips are too full or too slim, or just right, the new gathered and swirling skirts will prove very effective. And, of course, for the girl who can wear it, the pencil-line silhouette is particularly smart this year.

"But always remember," warns Miss Swarthout, "the most important point of all is to dress to your personality and not to current style. A dramatic frock that looks divine on the model may look rather foolish on you.

Miss Swarthout maintains that when she likes the lines and cut of a good dress, she will wear it for as many as three or four seasons, because, she says, the style of a good dress will improve with age!

Very often this charming singer chooses a basic style which she finds especially becoming to her, and has gowns made up along the same pattern for several years with slight detail variations and interesting new materials.

Her particular favorite is a renaissance evening gown, the simplicity and superbly cut lines of which act as a perfect foil for Miss Swarthout's beauty. It is a long-sleeved, high-shouldered gown, with molded bodice and full-gathered skirt. The lovely singer was wearing this style long before Paris proclaimed it a fashion "first," which only proves her point that dressing to flatter one's self is dressing in top style.

Whether your clothes budget runs into three figures or six, Miss Swarthout claims, you need remember only a few simple rules to be well dressed. Here they are:

1. Study your own personality and pick the clothes best suited to your type and your figure, making style of secondary importance.

2. Organize your wardrobe so that it is interchangeable and practical to your needs. This will insure economy and variety. As an example, the new two-piece dinner gowns are very lovely and most practical. Skirts and blouses may be interchanged to create an entirely new ensemble.

3. Study your colors. Decide which are most flattering to you, and stick to them.

4. Cultivate a graceful carriage. Always remember that, no matter how beautiful your frock, if you walk with a slump and your shoulders hunch up you certainly won't look smart, and you will add years to your appearance. A gown must be worn proudly and gracefully if it is to show to best advantage.

5. Buy a few good things rather than a lot of cheap ones. It is better to have fewer frocks in your wardrobe and know that each is the perfect one for you. To look always well groomed and beautifully turned out is more important than to be seen in a different dress every day. Inexpensive clothes lose their style and fit much more quickly than does a better frock, and you will find that the investment of several extra dollars is the wiser economy.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

Fabric Plays the Leading Role in New French Frock

By Bettina Bedwell.

Fabric plays the leading rôle in this dramatic frock with simple styling. The material used in the original is a combination weave featuring both dull and shiny surfaces creating a pattern. You may use any fabric with unusual characteristics, altho there's no prohibition on the more conservative type of materials, if you happen to prefer simple crêpe, sheer woolen, or velvet.

The bodice is semifitted and smooth, as is the rib hugging waistline. The hipline is molded and the skirt widely flared. Unusual detail is introduced in the shoulder yoke, which features shirring that resembles classic drapery.

Sleeves that are puffed at the shoulders gradually become slender until at the wrists they are snugly fitted. Around the midriff is a self fabric belt with novelty buckle.

Style No. 5321 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Nursing Needs of Community to Be Discussed

The Central Council for Nursing Education will begin a session dedicated to "Community Nursing Needs" with a meeting at 2:30 tomorrow at the Palmer House.

"The Public Health Agency's Need for Well Prepared Nurses" will be the topic of tomorrow's program. Speakers will be Miss Sara Place, superintendent of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago; and Miss Eula Butzerin, associate professor of nursing education at the University of Chicago.

Miss Place will discuss "Qualifications Demanded of the Graduate Nurse by the Agency," and Miss Butzerin's topic will be "How the Department of Nursing Education in a University Is Prepared to Assist in Preparing Nurses for the Public Health Field."

The council is interested in promoting the highest standards for the education of nurses, and in disseminating information regarding the possibilities and the accomplishments of the nursing profession, particularly in order to bring well qualified young women into the profession.

Mrs. David Wilson Graham, surviving charter member of the woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital, is honorary chairman, and Mrs. Arthur C. Backmeyer is chairman. Miss Madeleine McConnell, director of nurses at St. Luke's hospital, is in charge of the program tomorrow. Institutions holding membership in the council are the Presbyterian hospital, St. Luke's hospital, Children's Memorial hospital, Cook County School of Nursing, Evanston hospital, Grant hospital, Michael Reese hospital, and Wesley Memorial hospital.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

There's a good deal of charm in the lines of this juvenile frock. [illegible] bodice is trimmed with two self material pockets and three ribbons. Topping the bodice is a detachable shirtwaist collar in contrast. The narrow cuffs on the short puffed sleeves match the collar.

In the back of the slim waistline is a voluminous bow, and the skirt flares rather widely.

This frock may be made less tailored by using a lace collar and lace edging for the sleeves, and by omitting the pockets.

The tailored version may be made of silk, cotton or woolen, and checked patterns are attractive. The dressier design makes up well in silk, velvet or velveteen.

Something Different in Chops Is Fruited Ones

How to make fruited chops: Brown veal or pork chops, place in a shallow roaster, and top with sliced oranges. Sprinkle with just a little lemon juice and bake until the chops are very tender, about 40 minutes. The orange flavor blends deliciously with the meat.

This Is New Use for Leftover Fruit Juices

Here is a new use for those leftover canned fruit juices: Quarter and peel some apples, simmer them until tender in peach, apricot, pear, or pineapple juice. Add a little cinnamon and cloves and serve warm or cold as a meat or fowl garnish. Chilled, they make a refreshing salad combined with diced lettuce and salad dressing. Put in a few broken nuts for crunchiness.

Mercolized Wax Cream Skin Bleach Beautifier Lightens the Complexion

A LIGHTER, lovelier complexion can be acquired with the aid of Mercolized Wax Cream. This fragrant, dainty cosmetic contains active ingredients for flaking off the dull, drab surface skin in tiny, almost invisible particles to reveal the fresher, prettier underskin. Freckled or suntanned skin is lightened.

Mercolized Wax Cream has been famous as a complexion lightener for over a quarter century. Get a jar of Mercolized Wax Cream today. Apply it to your skin every night like a cold cream. While you sleep, this delightful cream bleaches your skin to a fairer, more attractive appearance.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT—the Skin Freshener, to help tighten skin tissue and effect a temporary contraction. It aids too, in reducing excess surface oil. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion on the skin daily.

PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Removes Superfluous Hair. Try this quick, easy-to-use facial hair remover. Not a powder. Not a cream. Phelactine Depilatory lifts out the surface hair as well as the part embedded in the follicle below the surface.

To Relieve Bad Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

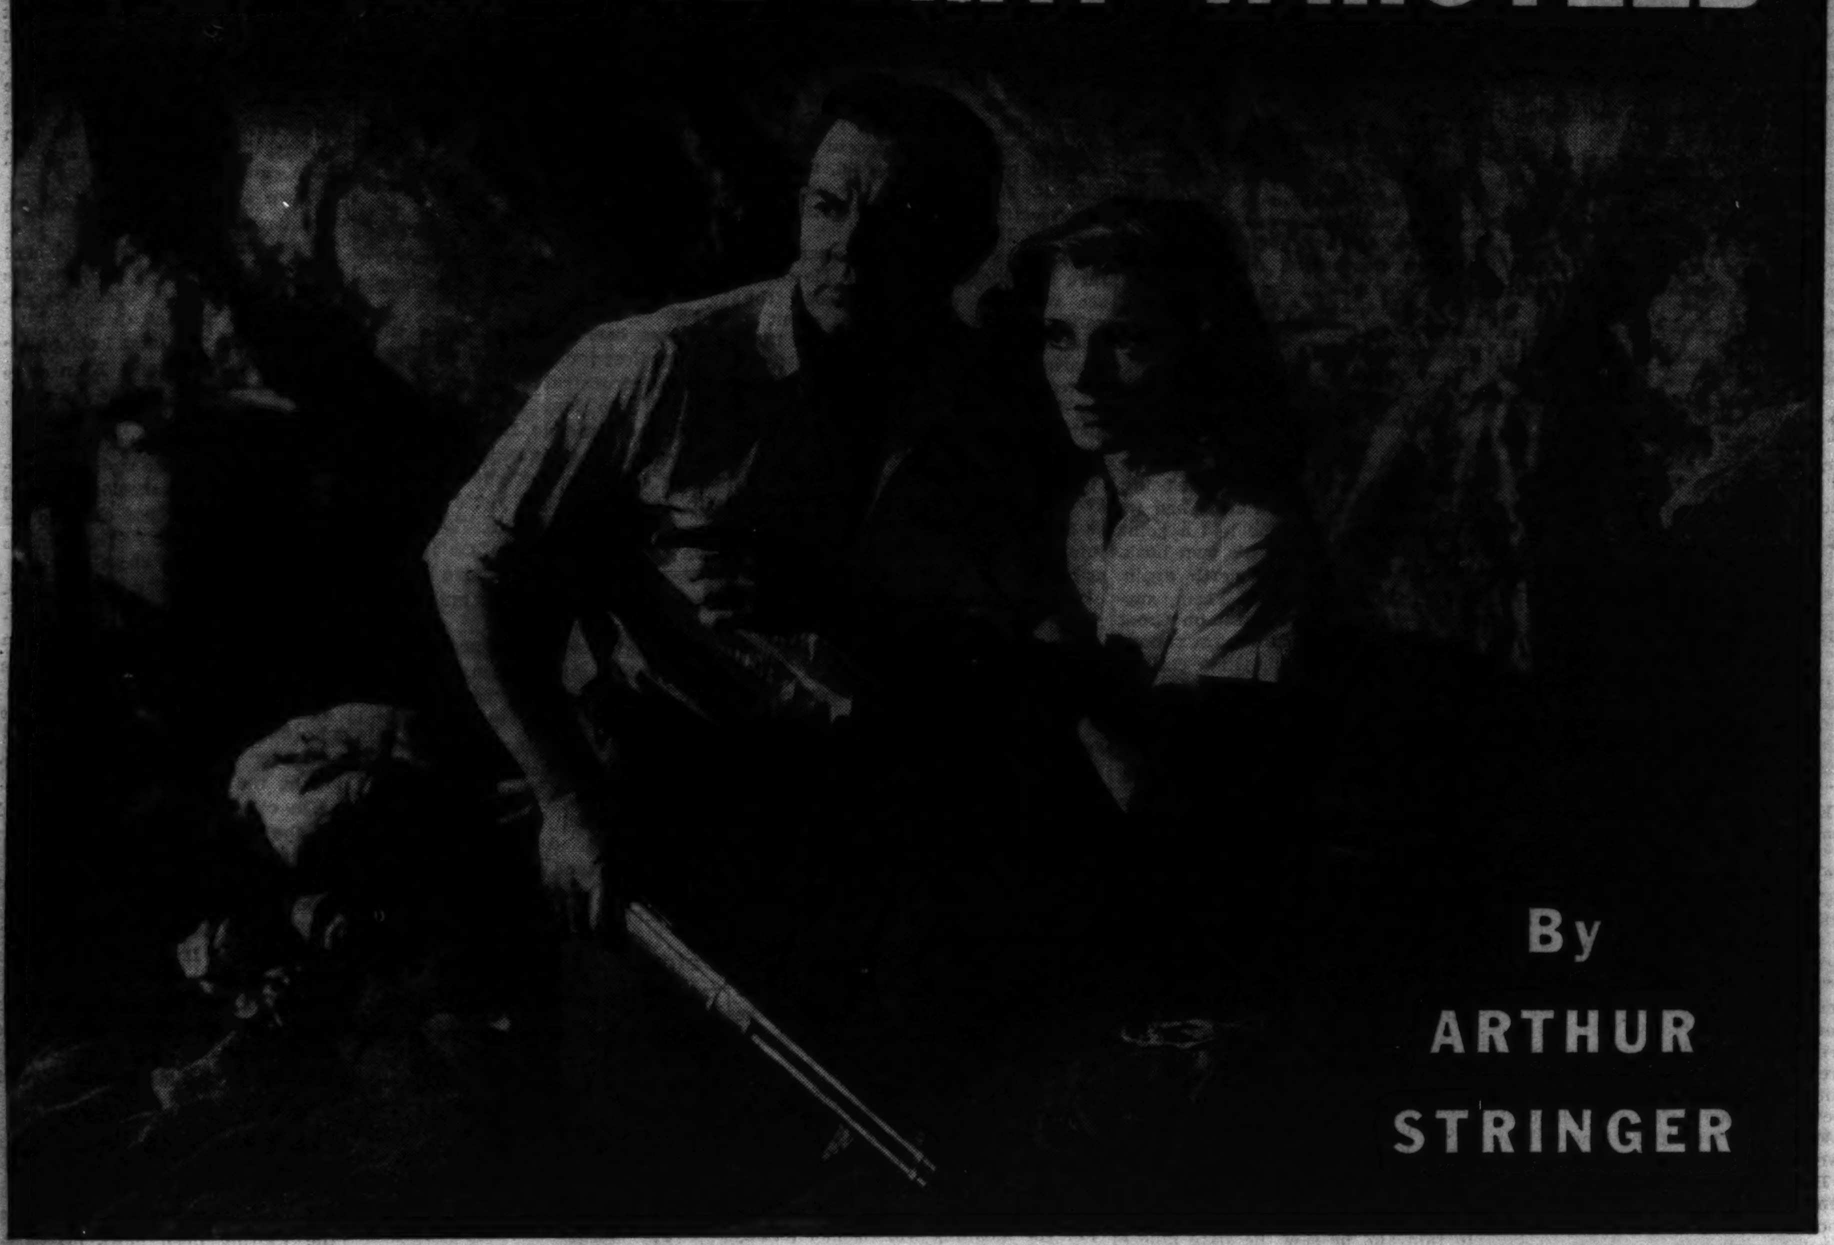
THE CORPSE THAT WHISTLED



By ARTHUR STRINGER

KLEM AIKEN, flying solo and hightailing it for Fort McMurray, tried to forget the empty desolation of the Barrens under his floats by thinking of a girl. It was a girl all in white, with cool hazel eyes and a nose like Myrna Loy's, a streamlined wisp of a girl who tried to look like Florence Nightingale as she walked along a row of ward cots and wrote things on charts hung over the bed ends.

Then Klem suddenly forgot about the girl. For his eye, coasting along the dull terrain, spotted a sign of life in the deadness below him. He saw a smoke plume at the end of Little Wolf lake. Thru his glasses, a moment later, he made out a man, a man waving something white.

Klem banked and turned back, dropping lower as the scrub ridges swam up to meet him. He was puzzled by any such sign of life in the heart of the Barrens. But there was no knowing, of course, how far into the north some lonefire gold hunter might push. And the solitary man on the shore rocks was sure working his signals, his arms flailing like a windmill until the old Bellanca heeled down on the lake water where a dozen eiders took flight.

Klem, as he poled ashore and tied up, remembered how the call of yellow metal was taking men into queer corners of late. And being a bush pilot bumped you into queer predicaments. And also into queer figures. That fact came home to him as he turned to study the bearded stranger whose voice was as ragged as his clothes.

"Thank God you came," croaked the hollow eyed exile. "I was beginning to think I'd cash in out here."

"What's wrong?" asked Klem, inured to calamity along that unbeaconed wilderness. It was a tame season, since the Great Bear country broke open, that didn't give him a couple of mercy flights.

"I'm lost and out of grub," was the tremulous answer. "Been livin' on jackfish and bullrush roots. Can you take me out?"

"Of course," said Klem. He stepped closer and inspected the gaunt face under its straggle of beard. Then light came to him.

"Why, you're the rock cracker I flew in to Dog-Leg lake, seven months ago."

"You sure did," lamented the bearded wreck.

"You and your partner, Big Bill Purvis," pursued Klem. He glanced about the shore ledge. "Where's Bill?"

The bearded man stood silent a moment.

"Bill's gone," he said, looking down at his gnarled hands.

"Gone?" barked Klem.

Again silence hung for a moment between them.

"Bill wandered away from camp, over yonder, and never showed back."

"Over where?" questioned Klem. Being a bush hawk, and merely a sideline watcher of the gold game, often left him curious about things beyond his air routes and his instrument board.

"Over beyond Barren creek," said the lone-fire derelict. "He went off four weeks ago, without gun or grub, sayin' he wanted to look into the promise of a placer bed above the falls."

FOREWORD Plenty of action and plenty of thrills are packed into the two stories presented in today's Fiction Section. A tale of the far north, loaded with cool courage and tinged with mystery, is the first of the two, "The Corpse That Whistled," by Arthur Stringer, a big name in contemporary literature. The Canadian-born Mr. Stringer has been writing since the early nineties, and numerous are the products of his pen—poems, short stories, novels, and photoplays. The second of the two stories, "If It Hadn't Rained," by Denis Morrison, is built around a strange collection of characters—an opportunist, an actress, a playwright, a doctor who has seen better days, and a hapless Mexican and his wife. The author scrambles them in an exciting plot and then unscrambles them according to their just deserts.

Describes Vain Search for Missing Partner

The fixed melancholy of the other's face disturbed Klem.

"D'you mean he's dead?" demanded the lean jawed young pilot.

The derelict's matted head moved slowly in assent.

[Copyright: 1939: By Arthur Stringer.]

Klem made his next speech a challenge.

"Didn't you look for him?"

"Look for him?" shrilled the other. "I tramped them damned hills until my shoe pacs were wore out. I fine-combed them ridges until my feet left blood on the rocks. Take a squint at 'em."

Klem inspected the dolorously protruding toes as the dolorously thin voice went on. "I searched and searched for that pard o' mine. But I couldn't smell out a trace. And I knew I'd have to get out of that wilderness or crack up myself."

Klem remembered the man's name was Volger, Wolf Volger. He didn't, for some reason, like the name.

"You two quarrel about anything?" he queried, knowing what solitude could do to the desolation hounded wanderers of the north.

"How could good pards like me and Bill quarrel?" was the plaintive noted rejoinder? "Like brothers, that's what we were. And I worried about Bill until I couldn't see straight. I guess my wires are kind o' gettin' crossed. I——I keep thinkin' I can hear Bill whistlin'."

"Whistling?"

"Yep, whistlin' for me to come back."

A surge of pity went through the young bush hawk.

"All right," he said. "Let's get aboard."

He glanced about the meager camp. It left him wondering how a man could live under such conditions.

"There's not much here to fly out."

"There sure ain't," agreed the derelict. "Canoe got away from me when I was grubbin' out cattail roots, got plumb away. And I had to cut up the old tent for ore bags."

"Ore bags?" echoed Klem, suddenly arrested. "Does that mean you and Purvis made a strike?"

"O, we scratched out a bit of color," was the slightly retarded reply. "But until you get your assay you can't tell if it's even worth comin' back to. And what I'm wantin' now is some real grub under my belt."

"You'll get it," said Klem, his eyes on the litter of ore sacks.

"I'm most too weak to handle them bags," was the other's hollow noted complaint.

"I'll handle them," said Klem. "You climb aboard and get busy on my ration box. There's enough for both of us until we hit the Post."

Hunger took the broken man over the side like a seal into its blowhole. Klem, busy with the bags, found them heavier than he had counted on. The mildewed corner of the last one, as he shouldered it, gave way under the strain.

He put down the ruptured bag and stooped to recover the ore samples that had fallen out. His hand, reaching for the scattered quartz, hung suddenly arrested. When he saw how that quartz was seamed with virgin gold, bright in the slant of the sun, a whistle escaped the careless young lips.

"Was it you done that?" was the quick and guttural challenge from the plane. The shaggy head, so abruptly thrust out, made Klem think of a turtle snapping at a dragonfly.

"Done what?" he asked, shadowing the sprawl of glitter with his bag end. For five years, from the Pas to Waterways, he'd been toting mine samples down to the assay office. He knew color when he saw it. But never, in all those years, had he sighted quartz so rich with yellow.

"Was it you whistled that way?" demanded the man with the coffee thermos in his hand. The hand was shaking so that some of the coffee spilled out.

Klem forced a laugh. "What about it?" he countered.

The other, steadying himself, forced an answering cackle. But his face, as the deep sunken eyes slowly circled the scrub ridges, remained morose.

"I'm queer about whistlin'," he complained.

"Why?"

"It's plumb bad luck in the bush, same as at sea," Wolf Volger solemnly averred. "And I've had my bellyful o' bad luck."

Volger Vague Under Klem's Questions

Klem wondered about that. He watched the shaggy head subside, like a mossback's into its shell. His face became thoughtful as he restored the fallen ore and tied the bag corner with the severed end of his shoe lace. Then he stowed the last of the treasure aboard.

"Where'd you dig out your rock?" he quietly inquired of the man munching food in the crowded cockpit.

Wolf Volger became vague.

"Down north a bit," he said. He emptied a half tin of dried beef into his hand. "Losin' Big Bill that way kind o' muddled me upon the lay of the land."

"Then you made your strike before you lost Purvis?"

Wolf Volger wiped his mouth with the back of his hand. He seemed less of a maverick, with good food under his belt.

"We didn't make any strike, sonny. We were just two underfed ore hounds scratchin' round for a bit o' pay dirt." Again the haunted eyes circled the skyline. "And if ever I go back to that damned valley it'll be to find poor old Bill's bones."

Klem's face remained thoughtful as he cast off the mooring line.

"You kept a log?" he prompted.

The other's laugh was quiet and contemptuous.

"I was too busy trying to keep alive," he said as he loosened his worn belt a notch. He shifted a little under the steady gaze of his young rescuer.

"You'll have to report to the Royal Mounted, of course."

"Where?" asked the derelict as he pulled the ore bags closer about his ragged knees.

"When we hit McMurray," Klem answered.

"Sure, I'll report to the Mounties," conceded the man with the cavernous eyes.

Klem, pushing off, heard a pontoon bottom scrape along the shore gravel. The hollow metal magnified and sharpened the sound into a shrill of protest.

"What's that?" cried his passenger, brought suddenly to his feet.

"What's what?" asked Klem, conscious of the tremors ebbing thru the ragged figure.

"You hear a whistle then?" was Volger's sharp demand. He leaned over the side, scrutinizing the empty scrub ridges.

Klem pushed him back in his seat.

"The old crate rubbed bottom," he explained. He waited until the twisted face grew quiet again. "You know, of course, that Purvis has a sister down at Athabasca Landing? She's a pretty swell girl."

"What's that to me?"

Klem resented the roughness of that retort.

"How're you going to tell her?"

"I ain't much of a hand with women," said the waif from the wilderness. His small eyes slewed about to his rescuer. "Any chance o' you strikin' that far south?"

"I might," Klem announced, wondering how much the memory of Vera Purvis had to do with his sudden decision. She'd always looked pretty nifty to him in that nurse's uniform of hers. And disaster was woven into her day's work. She could take it. She wasn't the kind to blow over with a bit of bad news.

But Klem's weathered young brow remained furrowed by a line of thought as they rose and banked and headed southwest across the water spangled waste of the McKenzie basin.

Half an hour after landing at the Fort, Klem was giving Sergt. Fraser a friendly tip to put Volger thru the wringer. Then the bush pilot hopped off for Waterways, delivered his freight at the railhead, and doubled back to McMurray, with Wolf Volger still on his mind.

"You're wrong about that bush wolf," the sergeant assured him. "His record's clean and his story's straight. The mistake was in dropping men off in the Dog-Leg district. It's as empty as the Sahara."

Klem got the rebuff. But there were occassions, he remembered, when Mounties didn't get their man.

"You had a look into his ore bags?" Klem questioned.

"Sure, I had him open up one of his old sacks. Then I had Saunders check up on his rock. And it looked like pretty low grade stuff to us both."

There was more than one way, Klem remembered, of dealing a card from the deck bottom.

"He may be lower-grade than you imagine."

Sergt. Fraser shook his head.

"The poor bird's bushed, of course. And he feels bad about losing that trail mate of his. He feels so bad, in fact, that he's just hired a Canada Airways plane and headed back to that Barren creek country."

"For what?" asked the youth with the abruptly hardened jaw.

"To see if he can't pick up some trace of Purvis. It's foolish, of course. But Purvis isn't the first man who's lost out in a fight against the Barrens."

Purvis' Sister Refuses to Believe He's Dead

Klem let it go at that. But he took a busman's holiday by beelining for Athabasca landing. There, at the wooden hospital on the river, he sat and waited until Vera Purvis came off duty as night supervisor.

She was pale, but quite self-possessed. The landing, he learned, had already caught the story from the air as it went down to the press wires. But she stubbornly declined to accept it.

"I know he's not dead," she maintained. "He's trailed the bush for years and never been downed."

"But that's bad country," ventured Klem.

"Will was a good tripper," she retorted.

"But without supplies you couldn't stick it there for a week. It doesn't even support a Dog-Rib."

"Then he's been deserted," she persisted. "And if he's alive I intend to find him."

"I'm afraid he's not alive," said the unhappy Klem.

The girl turned to him, quiet voiced and determined.

"Will you fly me in to the Little Wolf and then on to Barren creek?"

His hesitation was not lost on her. But her smile was edged with bitterness.

"You'll be quite safe with me," she proclaimed.

"I'd rather be with you," he found the courage to announce, "than with any one on God's green earth. But I still say it's bad country."

"Then we mustn't make bad bargains," she said as she withdrew the hand which he had instinctively reached out for. "But I'm going in to Barren creek."

They stood, for a moment, with locked glances.

"I'll take you," Klem finally proclaimed.

It would, he knew, be like looking for a needle in a haystack. But being with a girl like Vera Purvis had its compensations. And he had a point or two to clear up on his own hook.

So when Klem flew north again, carrying in drill points and camp supplies for the Burney outfit on Great Bear, he took with him extra rations and a cloudy eyed girl in a caribou parka.

"We do it in a day, with this old crate," he explained. "But by water, before these puddle-jumpers happened along, it used to take 'em nine long weeks."

He kept a sharp eye out for camp smoke and some sign of Volger. But all they found at the Little Wolf was fish bones and a pile of ashes. So they cruised out along Barren creek, where no trace of anything living showed itself. When daylight waned they landed and made a fire and spread out their sleeping bags on the shore rocks.

By morning a cold rain was beating across the Barrens. Klem decided to push on to Dog-Leg lake. But the rain squalls turned to snow, shutting them up in a gray emptiness that made Klem worry about ice on his allerons. He dropped lower and circled about for a landing. He breathed easier when the snow softened back to rain and he saw the slate blue of water close under his floats.

He taxied into a narrowing bay and tied up at two stunted spruce, watching the rain runnel his windshield.

"I told you it was bad country," he said with a forced laugh.

"The country doesn't count," proclaimed the girl in the parka. "And I think it's going to clear."

She was right in that. For towards dusk the clouds thinned and parted, leaving the Barrens spectral-like in the green light of sub-arctic evening. It gave Klem a chance to clamber ashore to build a wind break and make camp.

With a good fire going, he decided, they'd feel less homeless. But everything about him was rain soaked. A fire on that sodden edge of nowhere, he saw, would be a matter of woodcraft.

So, belt ax in hand, he pushed up over the mammilated hills, looking for sizable blow-downs that would be dry under their dripping bark.

Klem Follows Trail and Finds Volger

Then he stopped short, arrested by fresh ax marks on a spruce stump. Through the scrub he discerned a faint trail, which he followed over a hill and across a valley and up a second hill. There, as he flaired the wind on his face, he caught a faint smell of wood smoke. And, mingled with it, oddly enough, he detected the electrifying and unmistakable aroma of frying bacon.

He pushed on, more guardedly, thru the thickening brush. He could see where a stream threaded the valley bottom and elbowed about a clearing. And at the center of that clearing stood a miner's wall tent, oyster white in the twilight. At a fire in front of that tent a solitary man was cooking his evening's sowbelly.

The man Klem saw was Wolf Volger. He looked shaggy and neolithic as he bent over the smoking skillet, intent on the browning slabs of fat as he tilted the pan from side to side.

The young bush hawk stood there for a full minute. Then he quietly retraced the trail. When he emerged on the lake shore he found Vera Purvis valiantly gathering wet spruce boles for their campfire. She felt better, she told him, with something to do.

Klem, remembering his need for dry kindling, groped his way along the narrow shore line and finally made out in the diminishing light a spruce that had died on its feet. That, he knew, would give him the fire starter he wanted.

He stepped up to it, ax in hand. But the poised ax blade failed to sink into the tree trunk. For as he stood there, with a sense of softness under his feet, his ears were accosted by a muffled whistle.

Klem, in the face of that unexpected sound, sidestepped like a farm boy who had trodden on a black snake. His first suspicion was that he had walked on a sleeping animal. For the moaning whistle had plainly come from below the earth. Yet neither fox nor wolverine, he remembered, would be hibernating at that season.

He decided to go somewhere else for his wood. But the enigma remained with him. He thought about it as he smoked and watched the fire that night. He even mulled over it between his broken snatches of sleep. And at the first gray light of morning, without wakening his campmate, he slipped away to the blighted spruce.

He had his suspicions, but he was afraid to formulate them. And they seemed confirmed when he explored the ground at the tree base and found it soft under his feet. But his body weight, this time, brought no sound from below. So he dropped on his knees and began scraping the loose soil away with his ax blade.

What he uncovered there didn't entirely surprise him. But his blood chilled a little as he exhumed the body of Bill Purvis. And again, as he turned it over to make sure of identification, the gases of decomposition brought a faint thoracic wheeze from the dead man's throat.

That curdled his nerve ends. But it also brought an answer to the mystery of the whistling sound. And Klem's eyes were hard as he studied the remains. He looked first for bullet or knife wounds. He could find none. It wasn't until he saw how the back of the head had been bashed in, with the telltale fracture of the thick skull bone, that he began to understand.

He sat back, steadied by a wide and wordless indignation, and did his best to reconstruct the crime. He pictured two lone fire prospectors, gaunt and irascible from hardships, finally making their strike. One, unwilling to share that sudden wealth with the other, had decided to do away with his campmate. They might have quarreled openly. Or the less stable of the two might have brooded over his imagined wrongs and quietly waited for his chance.

The fatal blow had come unexpectedly, probably in a canoe. It had been dealt furtively, from behind. Then the murderer, in his natural aftermath of panic, had hurried ashore with the body and buried it in the shallow soil that mattressed the pre-Cambrian bedrock. It should have been buried deeper. But that wasn't important, after all, in a God forsaken wilderness that never saw a white man in a century.

Determines to Spare Feelings of Girl

Klem stood for a minute or two trying to figure out a line of action. There were, he remembered, certain difficulties. And the first of them was the quiet eyed girl still lost to the world in her sleeping bag, unconscious of the record of hate around her. She had to be saved from things, even though her calling, plainly enough, had inured her to death and mutilation. And he would see to it that she was saved.

That thought steadied his hand as he quietly reburied the body. It stiffened his spine as he went grim jawed back to camp and found Vera, not in her sleeping bag, but up and about. She waved to him, almost gayly, as she went down to the lake edge to wash her hands and face.

He joined her there as the copper ball of the sun came up over the blue line of the barrens. He stood at the edge of the sloping rock where the water lapped so musically, knowing he'd have to tell her in the end. But she was, he reminded himself, made of the right stuff. She'd take it in her stride. She might look small and defenseless against the wide sweep of the wilderness, but there was something gallant and invincible about her. He was glad, in fact, that she could laugh as she glanced at his hands and announced that a little soap and water wouldn't hurt them.

He scrubbed them in silence, wondering how to begin. It made it harder as she laughed for a second time as she handed him their makeshift towel of cotton bagging. He even wondered if destitution didn't bring people closer together than comfort. Then the thought went out, like a candle in the wind.

"Turn around, you two," a harsh voice barked out behind them.

They turned in unison and faced Wolf Volger with a magazine rifle in his hands. His small eyes narrowed as he studied them.

"What are you folks lookin' for?"

"Nothing," answered Klem as he dried his hands. "We're flying out, in fact, in about fifteen minutes."

Volger's laugh was not pleasant.

"I've something to say about that," he announced. His shoulders hunched a little as he stepped closer to the young bush hawk. "You seem to know considerable about me."

"Only one thing," said Klem, ignoring the leveled rifle. His gaze, avoiding Volger, was directed towards a blighted spruce top showing above the shore bend scrub.

"What's that?" challenged the man with the rifle.

"Listen," Klem called out, still staring at the spruce top.

The other listened, his face ruddied by the rising sun. His laugh was both raucous and reckless.

"You listen to me," he began. But Klem cut him short.

"Listen!" Klem cried for the second time. "Isn't that Bill Purvis whistling for you?"

Volger's face lost its ruddiness. His body stiffened and shivered a little as his eyes, showing a startled disc of white, circled about to the blighted spruce.

Hand-to-Hand Battle in the Wilderness

That momentary side glance gave the waiting bush hawk his chance, his tattered rag of a chance. He caught the barrel end as he leaped forward, forcing it up. It couldn't spit death in his face after that, but the man still clutching it had to be reckoned with. So it became a matter of body against body, a contest of muscle and sinew that remained inconsequential until Volger maneuvered his hand down to his belt knife.

It was that maneuver, apparently, that brought the startled girl into the combat. She ran forward and caught at the hairy wrist. She clung to it until her campmate could wrench the rifle free. Then she shut her eyes, as tho in dread of what was coming.

She gasped with relief when she saw that her companion, swinging the rifle stock about in a fore-shortening circle, had merely clubbed the matted head so close to her face.

Volger grunted and went down. He was trussed and tied, like a French capon ready for the roasting pan, by the time consciousness seeped back to him. And he remained thus trussed, blasphemously indignant, all the way down to McMurray.

Sergt. Fraser, in answer to Klem's short wave call, was waiting for them when they landed.

"What've you got here?" asked the puzzled Mountie as the pontoons kissed the float edge.

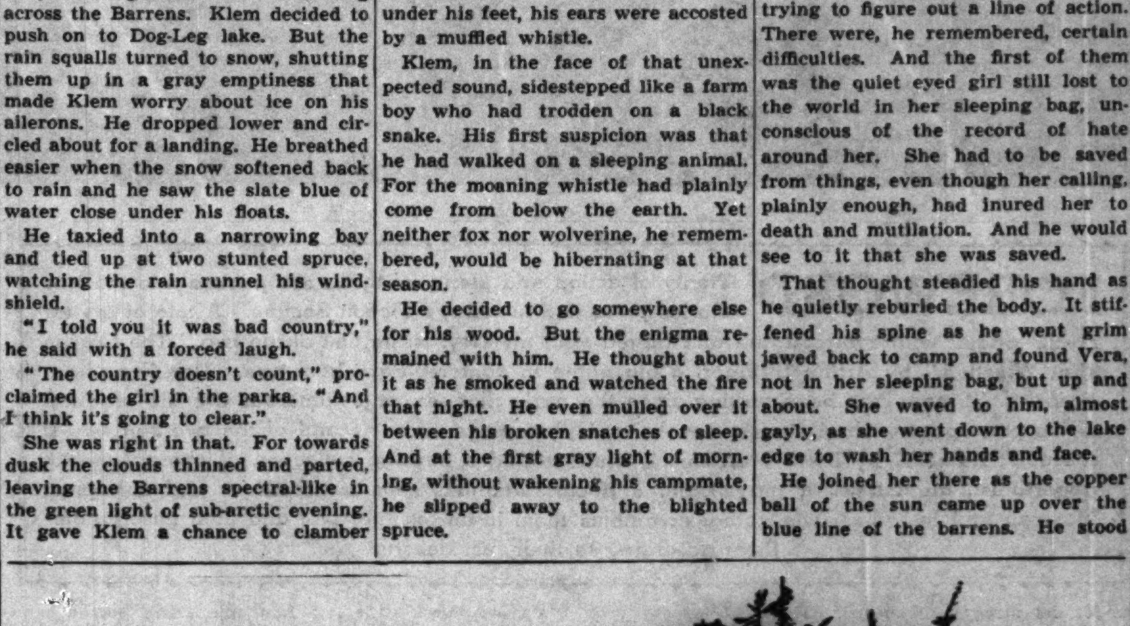
"Your prisoner," said Klem, helping a very tired girl over the side. But it was more than weariness, apparently, that kept her arm linked thru that of the man beside her.

"What's he charged with?" asked the still skeptic arm of the law, frowning over a trussing job that failed to meet with his approval.

"With the murder of his campmate, Bill Purvis," announced the young bush hawk. "And the evidence is wating for you when you fly in tomorrow."

"How'd you get it?" questioned the sergeant.

"It was whistled up to me," was Klem's not altogether satisfactory answer.



"What are you folks lookin' for?"

IF IT HADN'T RAINED

By DENIS MORRISON

[Copyright: 1939: By Denis Morrison.]

BILL RHYNE had five guests in his beach house. It was a spacious house with large rooms and broad verandas, but it wasn't large enough, Bill told Paula James, to hold the people in it.

If he'd known, there was a sixth guest on the way, yes, and a seventh, he'd have been even more disturbed. Paula was the only one who had been invited, if you except Paula's maid, Marie. The others were interlopers, you might almost have called them invaders, and Stone, giving orders and acting as if he owned the place, was the worst.

Outside the wind roared in from the sea and rain beat in a steady, pelting downpour that hadn't let up in three days. They were marooned, cut off from town by land slides, cut off even from the highway by the mad torrent raging thru Tres Hermanos canyon out of the Malibu mountains.

Paula was out of patience with nature's showing off, feeling that the storm had played her a number of shabby tricks, not the least of which had been to place her en famille, so to speak, with a riffraff of the queerest people she had ever seen.

"It's a thrilling climax to an otherwise perfect vacation," she told Rhyne.

"That's one way to look at it," he asserted.

Their eyes met and she smiled. A possessive eye, Bill's, almost like a husband's.

The beginning of these events goes back a little to a night in New York when Paula, having somehow got thru the 308th performance of her starring rôle in an exacting drama, caved in physically and emotionally. The neurologist decreed:

"You've got to rest. Nothing wrong but overwork and nervous strain. You'll be fit in a month."

"The ocean always recharges my batteries," she said.

"Fine. Go to Florida."

"No. Florida's a circus. And Maine's no good in February. Marie!"

"Yes, Miss James."

"Get Bill Rhyne on the phone for me in Hollywood. And start packing."

That's how it started. The first three weeks were nothing short of heavenly. Bill picked out a perfect house . . . Marie got a flirtation of her own started off with Charlie Pflaum, a hulking lobster poacher who functioned also as navigator of Bill's boat. Paula had known Rhyne a long time and admired him as a go-getter. He had, in fact, worked for her once when he was a theatrical press agent on Broadway.

He progressed later into what Hollywood calls flesh peddling, or ten percenting, which is to say he was one of that incredibly busy and voracious army prowling like hungry wolves on the flanks of the incredibly luscious citadel of film production. She knew he was doing all right because he had been at her to sign with him as a client. She knew he would jump around for her and he did.

"I've got a hut of my own up above Malibu," he told her when Marie got him on the phone. "And there's a marvelous place on the Point close by."

From the terrace overlooking the ocean she could see a huddle of houses down the beach. This was "the colony," a hive where certain personages lived so close they could hear each other eating soup. Bill paid her a lot of attention and they had glorious times.

His ketch had an auxiliary motor. Once they week-ended at Cherry Cove, on the coast of Catalina, and on the way back trolled for bonita. Another time a high fog rolled in at dusk and they motored up to the crest of the Malibu mountains along a lonely, frightening road. They gazed over the dark Pacific brooding under a roof of clammy mist with the full moon trying to break thru.

"This part of the world has got everything," Paula said.

"Look," he told her, "why don't you marry me? Give up the stage. You and I together can take Hollywood like nobody's business."

She laughed gently and considered him with curiosity, reflecting that the old Bill Rhyne never would have been so brash. But she didn't snap him off because it occurred to her that there might be something in the suggestion. He was an important guy. These few weeks had brought her an insider's perspective of what makes Hollywood click. Bill did not realize on what well prepared soil his propaganda seed was falling.

"You work ten times as hard as a picture star for a lot less," he pressed.

"I had a pang of envy when you drove me past Norma Shearer's beach place," she admitted.

"I'll drive you out to Stanwyck's joint in the valley where she goes in for breeding racehorses. I'll show you Lombard's shack on the side of a mountain, a hundred others."

"Don't," she pleaded.

"The palazzos in Beverly——"

"And the rolling green hills of Brentwood dotted with white villas. Don't, Bill. I'll admit I'm a sucker—maybe."

"Movie money built 'em all. Get wise, babe."

"Hollywood—where all the Bedouins have beds of their own. The trouper's dream come true."

"Your crackup was the best thing that ever happened to you. There's plenty of things life can give you that you haven't reached for because you never knew about 'em. By the way, how are you feeling?"

"Like a million. Going back next week."

"Aw!"

"Have to finish the run. After that—we'll see."

The rain started that night. She stood on her terrace thinking when a drop squinched out her cigaret. She was glad because it gave her an excuse for calling Marie, giving ear to Charlie Pflaum on the beach below.

"It's late and it's beginning to rain."

"Right," Charlie answered, "and it'll rain plenty before it's thru. I can tell."

She thought of that when she awoke next day to find it pouring. Marie came in with her tray.

"Charlie says," she quoted, "that in California you're as glad of rain as an Eskimo is to see the sun."

"I'm not an Eskimo. Phone the airport for reservations. Marie, we're leaving today."

"I can't call up. Our phone is dead. Charlie heard over the radio that no planes are going. No trains either. It's the storm."

"Bother the storm," said Paula.

Rhyne dropped by on the way to town. That was on Monday. She didn't see him again until Wednesday afternoon. He was excited.

"Had to use all my influence to get thru to you," he said. "The slides came just after I made it. Just missed getting smashed up. It's terrific."

"Bill, I'm so glad to see you. But this grand house you peddled me! The basement is flooded, the roof leaks, the garage is bogged with sand so the car can't be moved. And your lovely boat! I saw it crunched and gobbled this morning. It's simply fierce!"

"You're coming to my house. This place may drop into the ocean. Get some things together and hurry."

Retreat Thru Storm to Safer Quarters

Rhyne's house was on higher ground, remote enough from the surf to be in no danger from combers that charge the shore like ranks of white caparisoned cavalry. Pflaum found souwesters for the dash to the new haven. He got a fire going and Rhyne brought out a decanter. Paula said:

"This is cozy. I like it."

"There's plenty of food and nothing to worry about. We'll just hole in for the duration."

"This California! Did I say it had everything? Plus! The mountains are big and awkward and out of drawing. When you're not having forest fires or earthquakes, floods come along to break the monotony."

"We had a forest fire last year. Deer and rabbits and what not came scooting out of the brush. Right in these hills. We had venison for a couple of weeks."

"Good heavens! Did you shoot a deer?"

"Did I? I got a seven point buck."

Pflaum came in with an armful of wood.

"It wasn't a buck," he interrupted, "it was a doe and Juan Diego went to jail for it. He's still in jail. By God, Mr. Rhyne, I'm glad to hear you admit the truth. You swore you never shot anything."

Rhyne said quite easily: "You and I are talking about two different things, Pflaum. By the way, I'll be needing you the next few days. My Filipino boy ran away. I'll give you five dollars a day to look after things. That means you'll be working here, you understand, not a guest privileged to butt into conversations."

Paula inquired: "What's the difference between a buck and a doe?"

"About six months in jail," Pflaum told her. "Hello, there's some one at the door."

A voice shouted: "Hey, let me in!"

"Sounds like Stone," said Charlie.

The man who stepped in was tall, lean, and wiry, with bushy eyebrows and a weather-seamed, bronzed face. He was carrying a swarthy, squirming girl who had an oddly misshapen adolescent body. He deposited her on Rhyne's down-cushioned davenport and said:

"Well, Rosie, here we are. Thought we'd never make it, didn't you? Any port in a storm, eh? Hullo, Rhyne. Ho, another female! Good, we'll be needing you."

Rhyne said: "I say, old man, this is a private home, you know. You can't just come barging in."

"Who says I can't?" Stone retorted. "Does your girl friend," staring impertinently at Paula, "know anything about babies?"

"Certainly not!" Paula banged at him.

"Too bad. Rosie's going to have one, and darned quick if I'm any judge. Well, Doc's struggling along in our rear. Doc can't see so well so he's taking it slow and easy. But he'll tell you what to do when he gets here."

"Tell me what to do?"

"You'll want to help, won't you?"

Paula tried to stare down his cool, cheeky insolence. She knew she wasn't succeeding and was irked the more. She said: "I don't believe I shall," definitely and incisively. Her tone was edged with the dislike she felt toward him.

Stone muttered "hmm" and turned to the girl called Rosie. "How's it go, kid?" he asked. "Feel all right?"

"Me? Hokay, finer than frog's 'air."

"Well, lie there and keep quiet, you monkey. I'll rustle some eats. Come on, Charlie. By the way, Rhyne, my cabin's gone and Rosie hasn't any home, either. We'll be bunking here a while. Sorry. We don't like it any better than you do. Hullo, Doc!"

The man who entered and stared diffidently about was gentle, spectacled, slight of build, with myopic eyes that darted timidly over Rhyne's candle-lit living room. Expressive, eloquent eyes that trumpeted the haunting suspicion and fear of their owner. He wore a woolen scarf that did not hide the extraordinary length of his neck. He was wet to the skin.

When his glance fell on Paula it paused. Held, she was instantly aware of a telepathic something passing from him to her. He knew her! Of that she was intuitively certain and the knowledge flattered her. When he bowed shyly she found herself smiling. A doctor! Some disreputable old sawbones who tended the medical needs of a hillbilly clientele. He looked like a bum. If he was a friend of Stone's, he doubtless was a bum.

Stone cried: "Come on, Doc, I'll find you some of Rhyne's clothes. You've got work ahead. Better have something to spray the tonsils, too. A toddy's the thing. Where's your whisky, Rhyne?"

"I daresay you'll find it without directions."

Rhyne's supercilious lift of the eyebrows didn't get over because no one observed it but Paula. She said:

"Who is that high handed joe-blow?"

"I don't know much about him. A mountaineer, I guess. Lives in a hill cabin. If he's washed out I can't say I'm sorry. Maybe he'll go away. I don't like his sort."

"Who does? What does he do?"

"Art Jones down at the store claims he's a writer."

"One of those he-men. I loathe the type. I'm another female. What people!"

Stone came in bearing a tray and toddies. He handed Rosie a drink first.

"We're in luck," he announced. "I found a platterful of steaks. Nothing better than a filet barbecued over hickory logs."

"Civilization," Paula pronounced in her best actressy manner, "is a chain of tiny islands hemmed in by savages. Don't you find it pleasant to be civilized, Mr. Rhyne?"

Stone turned sharply and jabbed at her:

"Where did you crib that from?"

"From a play, if you must know, Mr. Stone."

"It's a lousy line, I never realized before what a lousy line it is. Hogwash."

"It's considered quite a grand line by persons who know about those things. Myself, for example."

"What would you know about it? I say it's lousy and it's got to come out."

Paula could throw condescension into a laugh and did.

"Any one would think," she said, "that you had written it."

"I did, and I'm ashamed of it. How did you learn to parrot it?"

"Parrot? Why, you—you—are you calling me a parrot?"

Rhyne broke in: "Look here, Stone, haven't you taken enough liberties here without insulting a lady who is my guest?"

"Stone! Are you by any chance George Stone?" Paula was looking bewildered.

"Yes, I'm George Stone."

"And my play—'Eyes over Sonora'—you wrote that?"

"Lady," said Stone, "I don't know you from the whiskers on a catfish but that play is certainly mine. What do you mean, your play?"

"This," Rhyne said, "is Miss Paula James in case that means anything to you."

"Holy saint's mackerel!"

"You haven't even seen the play," Paula said. "That's very funny. Imagine an author not seeing his own play. It's unheard of."

"I was in New York once. I damn near starved. I hate it. I wouldn't go there to see Solomon and the Queen of Sheba in 'The Merry Wives of Windsor.'"

"Well, anyway, it's quite a surprise learning who you are. I've always known you must be peculiar. You don't care whether people like you or not, do you?"

"Well, they either do or they don't and what's the difference? I like you. Know why?"

"I'd be interested in hearing."

"Because no one but a damned swell dame could play the part you're playing. No phony could come off with it."

Doc marched in from the kitchen, unobtrusively, in the shadows. Rosie was making uneasy noises. He sat beside her holding one of her moist little hands. He got up and said diffidently:

"If I might have some hot water in a basin, please?"

"Sure, Doc," Stone complied leaping to his feet.

"This girl's got to get away by herself in bed."

"Okay. Come on, Rosie, ride a white hoss to Banbury Cross." He picked her up. "Are you all right?"

"Me? I'm—dammit, somet'ing hurt—I'm hokay."

"Come on, Miss James, get on your two feet and help Doc."

Her eyes met Rhyne's. He said: "I imagine it will be harrowing. I wouldn't do it if I were you. And here's your health. You're too important a person to disregard it. Stay here by the fire."

She said: "No thanks, Mr. Stone, I'll stay right where I am."

"I was wrong," he said. "Well, I hope some day you get in a fix like Rosie's."

"It's hardly likely."

"You never can tell. I know some words that fit you, but they're not nice words and Rhyne would be hurt if I used 'em. We're coming, Doc."

Charlie and Marie had found a rendezvous somewhere. Paula was left alone with Rhyne. She sat before the fire gazing into it, thinking, not looking at him.

Rosie's Plight Starts a Train of Memories

This business of Rosie and her baby had started a train of memories. Things she hadn't thought of for years. Things she had shed as one sheds a useless garment for a mountain climb. For hers had been a mountain climb. She was disturbed, and, much as she refused to admit it to herself, Stone's scorn had disturbed her. Rhyne was there sitting close to her, but it was as if he were in another world so remote was he from her crowding memories.

"These people are obscene," he said. "You did exactly right."

"This all seems unreal. It is unreal. Like a play. That man Stone is utterly repulsing. I despise him!"

"You should. He's a damned insolent cur."

"Yet I've lain awake nights wondering what sort of man he might be. Because his play is really something. It takes hold of you."

"Your play, my dear. After all, what would it be without Paula James?"

"Yes, my play. It is my play. I've made it mine."

"Powerful, rugged human document, one reviewer said. Too much red meat for the screen, but it might be toned down. If I could sell you as the star I'd get a hundred thousand for the rights. I'll have another agent get to Stone. He wouldn't deal with me."

She threw her cigaret into the blaze and sent Rhyne a quick glance. It wasn't a complimentary glance.

"You've got an awfully thick hide, haven't you, Bill?"

"I never let sentiment stand in the way of business, if that's what you mean."

"That man! I could—throw things! . . . Bill, you know I haven't always been a star."

He said: "Only because the world was late discovering you."

"Don't be inconsequential, Bill. Do you know what I did? I climbed out of the chorus. How many girls do that?"

"Darn few."

"When Ziegfeld hired me for the line it wasn't because I was a stunner. But I had style. Brains. And ambition. That's what Ziggy saw in me."

"Class."

"And now I'm a success. I've earned it. It's what I craved more than anything else. I thought it would make me happy. But it doesn't. It's empty and disillusioning. Marie, out mooning and dreaming somewhere with Charlie Pflaum, she's really, honestly happy."

"She's found romance, Paula darling. What a woman wants is love, isn't that right? Marry me, let me take your career in hand, I'll make you the American Bernhardt."

She let him keep her hand when he took it but when he moved closer she pulled away impatiently.

"I'm mixed up. That man Stone is to blame. Maybe some time, Bill, not now."

"Don't get upset over a roughneck even if he did write a play."

"Upset? I could scream!" She got up "I can't stand it."

"Where are you going?"

"To see that girl, Rosie. I wonder if she's had her baby yet? I wonder if they'll let me help? They'll need me."

"Wait a minute before you go. Didn't occur to you that there's likely more to this thing than meets the eye? Why is Stone so concerned about her, calling her pet names and so on?"

"I don't know or care. He may be the baby's father. But a baby's a baby. Bill. Can't you understand that? And babies are terribly important, you've no idea."

She found Stone in the bathroom doing his clumsy best to follow the instructions of Doc transmitted from Rosie's bedside. He had a small, feebly wriggling object in his arms that emitted lusty squeals and flailed the air with its hands.

"For heaven's sake, give me that baby," she ordered him.

"Will I? Take it! I don't know whether I'm dropping it or squeezing too tight."

Paula began rubbing the pink little body with a rough towel.

"And you said you knew nothing about babies. You're an expert."

"So would you be if you were the oldest girl in a family of eight. This young man had better be bundled up warm right away."

"Juan Diego's going to be proud."

"Juan Diego! Isn't he the man that's in jail? Something about a buck and a doe?"

"Who was telling you?"

"Charlie Pflaum was talking to Mr. Rhyne. Bill didn't seem to like it."

"He wouldn't. It was Rhyne that got Juan Diego sent away. He shot the doe himself. It was his word against the Mexican's so what chance did Juan Diego have? Now you know why I'm off Rhyne like a dirty shirt."

"And this Juan Diego, he's Rosie's husband?"

"That's right."

She sent him a direct, level look.

"I'm sorry and I apologize," she said.

"Apologize? What for?"

"For my thoughts. I wonder where Bill keeps his blankets?"

Rosie was 17, a healthy young Yaqui, and having a baby, even a first baby, wasn't too much of an ordeal for her. She was protesting profanely against being compelled to stay in bed when Paula came and stood over her.

"Isn't there something I can do?" Paula said.

Doc was a bit ludicrous wrapped in a sheet, arms bared to the shoulders. He glanced at her out of nearsighted eyes, blinking in the candlelight.

"Why, Miss James, it's you." He fairly beamed. "Thanks, nothing at the moment. If you would keep an eye on Rosie while I tidy up a bit. It was a fine birth, natural as clockwork, just as it should be when nature's allowed to do her share."

She watched him go out. Memory fought to tear away blind spots. She had seen this man before. She associated him with crowds, lights, people, gayety. Bright, brittle people and the hard, glittering lights she knew best. Stone was watching her now with her cool palm on Rosie's brow.

Paula said: "Tell me about Doc. What's his name?"

"I've never asked him," Stone answered shortly.

"Doc, 'e's one fine hombre," Rosie volunteered. "One time'e's save Juan Diego's life when Juan Diego get beeg estomag ache. Doc take beeg knife, cot out Juan Diego's estomag, si. The pipple come looking for Doc and 'e ron away. 'E no want to see pipple. So when Doc ron, Juan Diego, 'e's ron, so they ron to these mountains and Juan Diego marry me."

"Doc and Juan Diego prospected together down in the Cuyamacas," Stone contributed. "They're great pals. By the way, Miss James, you don't mind if I apologize too, do you?"

"You don't need to. I behaved very badly."

"I'm wondering what made you see the light?"

"Why——the baby. The baby, of course. I got to thinking of when I was a little girl. I tried to pretend I knew nothing about babies but I do—lots. I can't resist a baby, ever."

Rosie, gently pulling her son's black hair, murmured:

"'Allo, poquito muchacho, you gonna grow up beeg toro, like your padre, et? I call you Dieguito, si, that's your name."

"Don't worry about his padre; he's only got a few weeks to go."

"Me, I'm madre now; that's something, eh?"

"You'll be madre plenty more time, chica. Why don't you go to sleep?"

"Is fon," Rosie said drowsily and closed her eyes.

Paula picked up the baby, wrapped in flannel pajamas, and deposited him in a deep suitcase that served as an improvised crib. She walked to the window overlooking the sea and exclaimed:

"It's quit raining! I can see stars!"

"About time." Stone was standing next to her. "This has been tough on the hill people. I don't mind because I can rebuild or go somewhere else. Juan Diego will get out of jail and find his little cabin gone. His cow too, and Rosie's pretty flowers. He'll have to start over from scratch."

"You like these people, don't you?"

"I like anybody that's on the level, Doc, too, even if he did get run out of New York for something he never did. Sho! I oughtn't to have made that crack."

"I shan't pry. I like him, too. But I think he's pathetic."

"He's not, don't you believe it. He's having more fun than he ever had in his life. He's a big medicine man among the Indians in the Cuyamacas. One of these days he and Juan Diego will make a gold strike. Doc's trouble is, people won't let him alone. Every once in a while news of him leaks out and the papers set up a hue and cry. Once there was an organized search for him. But he always gets away. The law doesn't want him so why can't people let him alone?"

From below they heard a hoarse cry. Paula said:

"What's that? I hope they don't wake the baby."

The cry was repeated accompanied by a menacing rumble.

"Something's up," Stone said, turning toward the stairway.

Paula was close behind as he rushed into the living room. Charlie Pflaum was looking on helplessly at Doc, clawing ineffectually at a man much larger than himself. She could see a thick shock of black hair and the outline of a broad back.

She wondered where Rhyne was until she saw that he was pinioned under the large man and heard him uttering feeble, gurgling noises. Stone drove his fist clipping the snarling head on the ear so that its owner rolled over on the floor dazed and let go his hold on Rhyne.

"How did Juan Diego get here?" he demanded. "I hope he hasn't killed Rhyne."

"He was trying to," Pflaum said. "I couldn't stop him. He was a wild man. He went to Rhyne like a catamount for a deer."

Paula and Doc bent over Rhyne. He was breathing hard and terror was in his eyes.

"He isn't hurt," Doc said. "But he's lucky."

Juan Diego got up glaring at Rhyne. He brightened when he saw Doc and Stone.

"Doc," he cried, "where's Rosie?"

"She's all right, my boy."

"Gracias a' dios! I go to my cabin, it is nowhere. I no can find Rosie, I think she drown. It is that hombre's fault. If I am here when the rain come I save Rosie anyway."

"Rosie's upstairs asleep," Stone told him. "How'd you get here, Juan Diego?"

"From the prison camp, Señor Stone. We are all out working on the dams and washes. They send us to this part. I am close to home. I think, if I can come home I can see Rosie and when I no find her I go mad to choke that Señor Rhyne who lie me into the jail."

"I'm sorry I had to sock you, amigo," Stone said, "but we don't want you in any more trouble. Better hurry and see Rosie. She's got someone up there she'd like to have you meet."

A Playwright Suddenly Changes His Mind

They were riding thru the valley to the airport. The California sun was shining warmly down on flood-wrought devastation. Stone said:

"I sort of hate to see you go away. I'm just beginning to get acquainted."

"You'd better come to New York. I'd be hailed as a female Frank Buck."

"No, I guess not. I hate uncivilized places and savage people."

"Anyway, thanks for helping me pack. I'm so lost without Marie."

"I thought you took it rather well, her marrying Charlie on the spur of the moment, so to speak. No use being mad at a girl for getting married."

"Heavens, no! I'm not. I bought her trousseau. It was fun standing up for them, wasn't it?"

"Cherry Cove and a honeymoon on a lobster boat. Romance. The woods are full of it, it just seems to go on, doesn't it?"

"It is romantic. I was at Cherry Cove with Bill Rhyne. I ought to know. I almost—might have——"

"Yeah—if it hadn't rained. Tough on Rhyne, wasn't it, all of us orphans of the storm swarming in on him. Funny, too. Now he's signed a confession that he shot the doe and not Juan Diego, so Juan Diego goes free and Rhyne settles with plenty of cash to keep out of jail himself. And Juan Diego gets a new cabin. He'll need it. Rosie's gonna want more babies. She's the type."

Grand Central airport! Sleeper jump to Newark!

"I said I hate to see you go." He was looking down at her with just a faint, wistful ghost of a grin. She had her ticket in her hand.

"Good-by, George," she said, and there was something in her eyes that Rhyne had never seen.

"Three days aren't enough."

"Enough of what?"

"You."

The guard said: "Passengers aboard, please. The ship takes off in five minutes."

"I really ought to have a look at that play," Stone said. "It needs some doctoring."

"It maybe wouldn't hurt."

He searched her eyes, said, "Wait a sec," and rushed off toward the ticket desk. "Hurry up," he told the clerk, "I've got to grab this plane. I've got some unfinished business. Gimme a ticket quick!"

"Where to, mister?"

"I'm nuts. I haven't got any money. Forget it. I'll take the next one."

Paula said:

"I've got some money. I'll trust you. I'm deadly curious about that unfinished business. One more to Newark, please."

"And you said you knew nothing about babies. You're an expert."

'Leave It to Me' Opens Tomorrow Night At the Auditorium

Musical Show to Remain Here Until Dec. 9th

By Cecil Smith.

The book of "Leave It to Me" was written many months before the outbreak of the present fray in Europe. But in the eyes of Vinton Freedley, producer of the big musical comedy, and also of the thousands of eastern customers who have swamped the box office, there is no time like the present to witness Victor Moore grappling piteously with foreign policy in the capacity of American ambassador to Russia. Evidently "Leave It to Me" was full of right thinking attitudes when Bella and Samuel Spewack first wrote it, for only one solitary line has been changed since war broke out.

Beginning tomorrow night the Auditorium theater plays host to this witty and generously staged musical show. Mr. Moore, as the gift of Topeka, Kas., to the diplomatic service, shares top billing with Sophie Tucker as a dominating ambassador's wife and William Gaxton as an omnipresent nuisance of a newspaper man.

Messrs. Moore and Gaxton have enjoyed great popular esteem as a comic pair ever since they did so well by the New York version of "Of Thee I Sing," the memorable Gershwin-Kaufman-Hart dig at national policy. [In the Chicago company Oscar Shaw and Donald Meek played the Gaxton and Moore rôles.] Miss Tucker has never been teamed with the effervescent pair before. But she belongs wholeheartedly to their school of thought when it comes to bold merry-making, and her presence has now transformed a successful duo into an even more successful trio.

The tunesmith of "Leave It to Me" is the slyly inventive Cole Porter, who already has chalked up to his credit the bright scores of such musicals as "Anything Goes," "Red Hot and Blue," and "Gay Divorce." There are no fewer than eighteen musical numbers in "Leave It to Me," the most celebrated of which is "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

The closing date of the new musical will be Dec. 9—and don't expect any extension of the engagement. By coincidence the final day is the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the Auditorium theater.

Preceded by an exotic brochure that restores to the decadent road of 1939 the full flavored promotional methods of an earlier day, "A Night at the Moulin Rouge" descends upon the Grand Opera house next Sunday evening. Let this remarkable teaser sing its own lyric description:

"A Constellation of Transcendent Effulgence Studded with Dazzling Luminaries of Stage, Rendezvous Nuit, Arena, Screen and Radio, Convoked from the Talent Marts of Five Continents in a Cast which for Lavish Expenditure has NEVER BEFORE been approached by an Attraction on Tour in the Western Hemisphere. SPECTACLE MAGNIFIQUE!! Congress of Adorable Girlhood!! A Royal Gorge for the Connoisseur of Feminine Loveliness!!! A Brobdingnagian Beauty Bourse!!!! PRE-EMINENT EXPOSITION OF DELECTABLE WOMANKIND."

Let us continue in the inimitable words of Ned Alvord, the advance agent for the musical:

Ada Leonard.
[Bloom Photo.]

"After a seven day recess the Grand Opera house will relight with the initial showing of 'A Night at the Moulin Rouge,' an extravaganza of Gallic ancestry and American environment. The occasion marks the first time in many years that a major musical show has had its première in Chicago prior to the Broadway debut. Fabricated and rehearsed here, it comes after a brief shakedown junket to the coast and return."

"Since the days of 'The Time, the Place, and the Girl,' 'Stubborn Cinderella,' and other Chicago made opera featuring Chicago maids, production of the girl-song-jape type of entertainment has languished on the banks of the Onion.

"The company is populous and, according to report, for the most part comely. Somewhat over 100 in personnel, the principal players include Helen Morgan, Stan Kavanagh, Buster Shaver with Olive and George, Slate Brothers, Ada Leonard, Sharon De Vries, Grisha and Brona, Staples and Cerny, Zerby and Layton, Natasha, and the Esquire sextette. Thirty-six Dorothy Byron dancers, a troupe of ballerinas, and a score of personable figurantes are not the least of the announced attractions."

Are you going to stay away from the Grand Opera house next Sunday evening? I'm not.

In startling contrast will be the opening of "Outward Bound" at the Harris theater the following Monday night, Nov. 27. Sutton Vane's masterpiece about an oddly assorted group of men and women sailing out to sea on a ship bound toward eternity and an entrance examination for heaven has never been presented on the professional stage in Chicago. The original New York production [1924] did not tour the middle west. Numerous amateur performances have been given here, however.

One of the year's strongest casts participates in the forthcoming revival-première. In addition to Laurette Taylor as little Cockney Mrs. Midget and Florence Reed as the unabashed, snobbish Mrs. Clivenden-Banks, the list of players includes Harry Ellerbe [Prior], Louis Hector [Lingley], Morgan Farley [Scrubby], Diana Barrymore, John's daughter [Ann], Reynolds Denniston [the Examiner], Henry Richards [Henry], and Stephen Courtleigh [the Rev. William Duke]. The engagement is restricted to three weeks. The first two weeks fall within the subscription series of the Theater guild and the American Theater society, for whom "Outward Bound" is the second of this season's six plays.

In response to phenomenal pressure at the Harris theater box office, Katharine Cornell will give an extra Thanksgiving matinée of "No Time for Comedy" Thursday, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday afternoon performances. In the face of prodigious business, the S. N. Behrman comedy, with Francis Lederer and Margalo Gillmore in featured rôles, positively closes Saturday evening, to make way for "Outward Bound."

The Nov. 26 and 27 openings will presumably be the last until the Christmas holidays. The Harris, Selwyn, Grand Opera house, and Erlanger will all be occupied until then. The Auditorium will remain dark after the finish of "Leave It to Me" on Dec. 9 until the Ballet Russe arrives for its Dec. 26 opening. The Harris will house "The Man Who Came to Dinner" beginning Christmas night, and the Grand will welcome "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" on Jan. 8. John Barrymore will stay at the Selwyn indefinitely. A company of Clare Boothe's "Margin for Error" will soon be headed this way, and a revival of Noel Coward's "Easy Virtue," with Constance Bennett as star, is promised for January.

Some days ago, up at the Davidson theater in Milwaukee, I inspected the touring company of "I Married an Angel," largely out of curiosity about Karen Van Ryn, the successor to Vera Zorina in the rôle of Angel. The newcomer is comely of figure and lovely of face. Unlike Zorina, however, she is at her best in the non-angelic portions of the story. She has not Zorina's ethereal aloofness, but she compensates for the lack of it by an agreeable warmth of projection in the passages which allow her to be human. Bobbe Arnst, rather more grotesque than Audrey Christie, has taken over the part of Anna Murphy. Dan Dailey Jr. supplants Charles Walters and Norman Roland replaces Walter Slezak amusingly. Vivienne Segal and Dennis King still lend their strong talents to the production. There is a possibility that "I Married an Angel" may return to Chicago later at popular prices.

Gordon Richards, Edward Everett Horton's sole male companion in the cast of "Springtime for Henry," at the Erlanger theater, has been on the stage since his 15th year, except for an interruption of four years when he served the army of his native England during the world war. His most considerable experience at cross-country touring came during his association with Forbes-Robertson. Some of his New York assignments have been in "Oscar Wilde," "The Great Waltz," "Wings Over Europe," and "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Play 'Life with Father' Boasts Clean Comedy

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—The comedy trend of the season would seem to favor irascible old men. We have already set the town to crowding the theater where "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is playing, and this week we started another rush for the Empire, where a new one called "Life With Father" was unveiled.

This one is a dramatization by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse of the Clarence Day sketches first published in the New Yorker and later put into book form under the title of the play. These sketches, readers may recall, were Mr. Day's tribute to his father and the home life over which father presided in the New York of the 1880s.

Father Day was a man of parts and considerable success. He served at one time as president of the stock exchange and was as upstanding and typical a good citizen as ever kicked about taxes or told the President of the country how he could make a success of his job. At home he was a carrot-topped tyrant with a kind heart [when it could be reached], and fancied himself a just man who was obliged to rule his family with firmness if it were to be ruled at all.

The real man of the house, in the ruling sense, was, of course, mother. But mother never boasted. She just ran things by doing whatever she thought should be done and then letting father roar his head loose. It was too late to do anything about the issue then, and mother really didn't mind the roaring.

Mother's one real concern was father's soul. That, she was convinced, had been placed in jeopardy because father never had been baptized. She worried a good deal about what God might conclude about this oversight and was determined to have it rectified as soon as ever she could. This was much her hardest task, because father thought it would look damned silly for a grown man to present himself to a minister to be sprinkled and mumbled over.

So much of a plot as "Life With Father" has, which certainly isn't much, is concerned with mother's scheming to drag father to the baptismal font. She manages it finally by making an appointment with a suburban minister and then hiring a $2 an hour cab to take them there. The sight of that $2 cab running into money at the curb is more than father can stand, and off he goes to his christening. With father dutifully named, mother can again look her offspring in the face without blushing.

When this comedy was finished last summer it was first tried at the Lakewood theater, near Skowhegan, Me. Mr. Lindsay, who is an actor, and his wife, Dorothy Stickney, played mother and father. So successful were they with the summer audiences that they decided to go on with the parts in New York. The result is all to the good. Mr. Lindsay is pompousness itself without making a cartoon of father. He yells at the maids, scaring one after another out of the house until at the play's end there have been four of them.

Dorothy Stickney.

Father likes relatives so long as they stay at home. When they come visiting at his house he is excited to a murderous mood. He doesn't propose to have his home invaded. He is firm with his four red-headed sons. When mother buys a china pug dog for $15 he roars it out of the house, and when mother sends it back to McCreery's and lets Clarence Jr. apply the credited $15 on a new suit of clothes his explosiveness is apoplectic. Mother simply can't understand that. Surely the clothes didn't cost father anything. She had traded the dog for them. And the dog didn't cost him anything because she had sent it back.

The humor of "Life with Father" is as simple as that, and the crowd loves it. The first audiences have literally roared their approval and the comedy seems set for a season's run. It shares with "Abe Lincoln" the distinction of being the only plays in town that are clean enough in story and dialog to warrant family approval without reservations. And you would be surprised to know the number of playgoers that clean plays attract.

In violent contrast, we are offered this same week the other type of play in a melodrama called "Sea Dogs." In this one they use all the oaths the stage has become heir to these last few years of its sophistication, and the drama that goes with them is equally tough. A bad play, but a holding one in that its realism keeps its audience at close attention.

You couldn't imagine much more horror than the S. S. Bellmead ran into that time she was coming up from Cape Town to New York with a load of cotton. She was afire in No. 2 hold and the fire was spreading. So, also, with the threat of mutiny. The men were going to take the ship over if the captain refused to let the wireless operator send out an SOS call.

The captain, as it happens, was about as bad as they come. Drunk practically all the time, and a sadistic brute besides. There was a boy on board [a fugitive from a reform school] with an infected hand. The boy knew the captain had been a smuggler of narcotics and also a runner of aliens. The captain would like to be rid of the boy, so he planned an operation on the hand to save the boy's life, and during the operation he expected to shuffle the young fellow off with an overdose of anesthetic.

So there you have the second act situation: ship afire, crew ready to mutiny, boy stretched out on the table in the dining salon being readied for the operation, captain drunk. Everything but a storm coming up. And how is the situation saved? Well, the first mate, and he is a two fisted fighting man with a fine record, takes over the operation and sends the captain sprawling with two stiff rights to the jaw. The wireless operator uses his own discretion about the wireless and the crew stands by to keep the fire under control. The Bellmead makes port next act.

Russell Hardie.

The author is Wilson Starbuck. He knows his ships and there is no quarrel with his realism. But he is a good deal of a novice as a playwright. He lays his horror on so thick that no one believes it. As a result the audience, altho it has been interested, leaves the theater laughing in place of being impressed.

The actors in a good cast include Russell Hardie, playing the mate; Joseph MacAuley, the captain; James McCallion, the unhappy boy, and Ben Lackland the leader of the sailors.

HEADS NEW BISMARCK SHOW

Geraldine Ross, whose highly individual acrobatic routines have entertained Bismarck hotel diners many times in the past, is back for her third dancing engagement in the Walnut room, heading the new show that Art Kassel presents nightly.

Vaudeville

Ted Weems and his orchestra are this week's headliners at the Chicago theater. In the stage revue presented with the band are such entertainers as Perry Como, radio singer; Marvell Maxwell, Red Ingle, Elmo Tanner, and Ormand Downes. The Four Ink Spots, radio's popular harmony quartet constitute an added attraction. "Rulers of the Sea," with Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Margaret Lockwood, and Will Fyffe, is the screen feature.

Ted Weems.

This seems to be the week for bands on the local stages as Cab Calloway has brought his orchestra and his "Cotton Club Revue of 1939" to the State-Lake theater. His all-Harlem cast features Sister Tharpe, the Three Chocolateers, Helen Smith, Chu Berry, Cozy Cole, the Four Cab Jivers, and the Rhythm Roustabouts. On the screen is the excellent "Nurse Edith Cavell," starring Anna Neagle.

Lottie Mayer's "Watercade Revue," featuring ten expert and beautiful divers, is the star attraction at the Oriental theater. Besides this show there will be several other acts, among which are Ross and Edwards, Ray Vaughn, Miller and Reading. Verne Buck and his orchestra, and the Oriental Dancing Sweethearts. Because of the long stage show there will be only one motion picture—"Here I Am a Stranger," with Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce.

Once again the demurely lovely June St. Clair is to be seen at the Rialto theater. So are Marion Morgan and such other notable beauties as Jean Kelly, Marion La Mar, Louise Miller, and the dancer, Conchita. The current film is the timely "U-Boat 29," with Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson.

Sophie Tucker Here for Stage and Club Roles

Sophie Tucker opens at the Colony Club tomorrow night after the first performance of "Leave It to Me." She will appear nightly at the Colony at 11:45 p. m. and 2:15 a. m. Cross and Dunn, harmony team, continue three times nightly during her run.

Sunday matinée rhumba dancing has been inaugurated. Fernand Canay's South American orchestra, nightly co-starring on the bandstand with Don Orlando, is featured along with Caesar and Rosita, and Luis and Conseno, rhumba teams.

Dick Gordon, singer in the Royale Frolics show, appeared here with Grace Moore in the opera "Louise." His Frolics hits are "Macushla," "Falling in Love," and "I Hear You Calling Me." Eddie White, comedian; Bee Kalmus, singer; the Duffins, Mark Fisher's orchestra, and Al Turk's band complete the program.

Far from being a stranger to night clubs, Paul Haakon, Chez Paree ballet star, got his start in New York's intimate Russian cafés. Favorable notices led to engagements with Pavlova. Co-starring with Haakon are Joe E. Lewis, Tamara, and Abe Lyman's band.

* *

Headliners of the Edgewater Beach hotel show in the Marine dining room are the dancing Leaches. The Harriet Smith Lovely Ladies feature a "Blue Hawaii" number. Bill Bardo's singing band continues.

Ted Weems' orchestra comes to the Marine room shortly before Christmas.

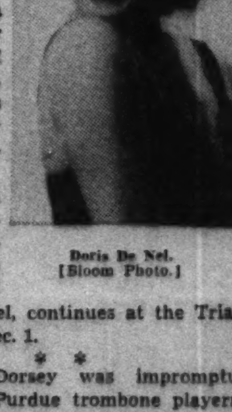
Dancers at the "au revoir" party in the Aragon ballroom Sunday honoring Dick Jurgens will sign a "memory book" for the maestro. Jurgens' orchestra interrupts a long run for a month of touring, Clyde Lucas taking over the bandstand.



Doris De Nel.
[Bloom Photo.]

Anson Weeks' orchestra, featuring the songs of Doris De Nel, continues at the Trianon until Dec. 1.

Tommy Dorsey was impromptu host to 16 Purdue trombone players a week ago in the Palmer House Empire room. They heard the singing of Allan De Witt, Chicago boy, who had just replaced Jack Leonard.

* *

The new floor show in the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room includes Ruth Daye, dancer; the Great Ballentine, comedian; Diane Denise, singer, and the Florios, Latin dancers.

Joe Sanders opens Friday at the Blackhawk. Bob Crosby returns early in January.

Boswelling the Bistros: Avis Kent will appear in the musical version of "Little Women" Nov. 28 at the Civic theater. . . . The Palmer House will present a children's matinée floor show in the Empire room Thanksgiving day. . . . Ardent fan of Ralph [Cookie] Cook is John Barrymore, who frequently stages impromptu dialogs with Cookie at Harry's New Yorker. . . . The singing emcee at Franke's Casino is Dick Schreiber, winner of a Chicagoland Music Festival award. . . . Pliner and Earle [Balinese and Pump rooms] will play in the Colorado Springs Broadmoor hotel. . . . Jimmy Dorsey will be in the loop before Brother Tommy leaves the Empire room. . . . Buddy Rogers is scheduled for the near north side about Dec. 1. . . . A harmony aperitif for the Club Alabam "flaming crater" dinners—songs of Bernard and Henrie. . . . Add odd names: Blois Adair, Omaha beauty at Colosimos. . . . Willie Shore [Hi-Hat] provides a seasonal laugh with his football skit.

Business Men.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra will give its first concert of the season on Sunday night, Dec. 10, in the Goodman theater under the direction of its familiar and able leader, George Dasch. Its program is an ambitious one for a so-called "amateur" organization, including as it does the overture to Weber's "Euryanthe," Mozart's Symphony in G minor, and Brahams' Second Symphony. Concerts have also been scheduled for February and April.

Fourth Week of Opera Will Glitter with Great Names

Martinelli and Swarthout to Try New Roles

By Edward Barry.

This fourth week of the Chicago City Opera company's seven week season fairly glitters with great names. Their owners are scheduled for interesting and, in some cases, even startling things.

Giovanni Martinelli—and this is by far the most startling of the announcements—will sing his first Tristan anywhere next Friday night. The renowned Italian tenor, who time out of mind has been doing Italian and French parts for the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera companies, has been nursing a desire to appear in what is generally regarded as one of the most difficult and one of the most rewarding of all rôles. Martinelli is not to be loosely likened to the bit player who dreams of some day doing Hamlet, for he has already established his ability to cope with some of the noblest parts which the repertoire offers—Otello and Eleazar, for instance. The former, by the way, he is singing here tomorrow night.

Gladys Swarthout—and this, too, is somewhat startling—will sing Carmen at next Saturday's matinée. She did the part once during the Cincinnati zoo's summer opera season, but has yet to essay it in a major house. To see how this gentle American mezzo manages to make herself over into the spitfire of Seville is one of the reasons for going to Saturday's performance. Miss Swarthout has studied the music of the opera intensively and has sought to perfect her grasp of Carmen's character by perusing the Mérimée original. She will introduce certain changes here and there in characterization and in stage action.

Enid Szantho, Hungarian-Irish contralto, will make her Chicago operatic debut as Brangaene in Friday's "Tristan and Isolde." She is the singer who took part last season in three performances of Mahler's "Das Lied von der Erde" with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

This week will see the return to the company, after periods of absence ranging from one to several years, of Kirsten Flagstad, Lily Pons, Edith Mason, and Jan Kiepura.

Mme. Flagstad will sing Isolde Friday night, thus giving Chicago still another opportunity to see and hear and study what has become the most famous Isolde of our era. The nobility of the singer's manner and the breadth and grandeur of her musical style have conspired to make this long German opera a best seller at both the Metropolitan and the Chicago operas. Mme. Flagstad is a Norwegian who had many years of successful but not sensational activity in Europe before she was brought to America by the Metropolitan in 1935.

Lily Pons is the small French soprano who is almost all alone these days on the top coloratura shelf. Every year she brightens the Chicago opera season with a Lakme and a Lucia. Altho no date for the former has yet been announced, there is a "Lucia" definitely scheduled for this coming Saturday night.

Edith Mason has been identified with Chicago opera so long that we think of her as a Chicagoan—which she is now, by residence. However, some of her early work was in Europe and her American debut took place in Boston. When Miss Mason sings Butterfly Wednesday night long memories in the audience will recall her Chicago bow in the same rôle on Nov. 16, 1921. This will be her nineteenth Butterfly with the downtown resident companies.

Jan Kiepura, the Polish tenor who is to sing Don José Saturday afternoon to Miss Swarthout's Carmen, appeared in opera here as early as 1931. However, he has been gone so long that this week's performance should rank as a second debut. This is the tenor who became world famous for his movie work. Mr. Kiepura was in Paris when Poland was invaded last September, and he reported to the Polish embassy there for orders. It was decided, however, that in view of his concert and opera commitments in the United States and Canada he should not enter active military service at that time.

Besides all of these top ranking singers who are making first appearances or essaying new rôles, two artists of equal reputation are continuing this week the series of appearances which they began earlier in the season. Tito Schipa is scheduled to sing Almaviva in the board of education's popular priced "Barber of Seville" Thanksgiving night, and Edgar in Saturday evening's "Lucia di Lammermoor." The first of these will give the school children opportunity to see one of the most fastidious of artists in action.

Helen Jepson will repeat tomorrow night her moving enactment of Desdemona to Mr. Martinelli's Otello.

A novel feature is promised for next Thursday night's audience. The curtains will be drawn back between the first and second scenes to allow a view of the work of the stage hands changing "A Street in Seville" to "The Drawing Room in Dr. Bartolo's House." Count Giovanni Cardelli, director of educational activities for the Chicago City Opera company, will supply a running commentary on the work of the scene shifters as it progresses.

Operas and casts for the week follow:

Monday at 8: Verdi's "Otello," with Helen Jepson, Ada Paggi, Giovanni Martinelli, Giuseppe Cavadore, Kenneth Morrow, Carlo Morelli, Mark Love, Edward Stack; Henry Weber, conductor.

Wednesday at 8: Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," with Edith Mason, Ada Paggi, Lillian Padorr, Joseph Bentonelli, Giuseppe Cavadore, Anthony Marlowe, George Czaplicki, Douglas Beattie; Henry Weber, conductor.

Thursday at 8: Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," with Hilde Reggiani, Ada Paggi, Tito Schipa, Carlo Morelli, Pompilio Malatesta, Virgilio Lazzari; Angelo Canarutto, conductor.

Friday at 8: Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," with Kirsten Flagstad, Enid Szantho, Giovanni Martinelli, Giuseppe Cavadore, George Czaplicki, Reinhold Schmidt; Edwin McArthur, conductor.

Saturday at 2: Bizet's "Carmen," with Gladys Swarthout, Vivian Della Chiesa, Helen Margolyne, Elizabeth Brown, Jan Kiepura, Giuseppe Cavadore, Anthony Marlowe, George Czaplicki, Douglas Beattie, John Daggett Howell; Littlefield ballet; Henry Weber, conductor.

Saturday at 8: Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lily Pons, Louisa Hoe, Tito Schipa, Giuseppe Cavadore, Anthony Marlowe, Carlo Morelli, Virgilio Lazzari; Leo Kopp, conductor.

Dolin Signed.

Anton Dolin, leading dancer with the now disbanded Educational Ballets group, has been engaged by the new Ballet Theater to dance the leading classic rôles in its forthcoming season. He will also choreograph a new ballet for the company to a score by Raymond Scott, the American swing composer.

WILL PLAY WITH SYMPHONY

Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, the brilliant Russian two piano team, will be heard with the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Thursday and Friday of this week in two concerti, one by Bach, the other by Mr. Babin.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Having opened the first Art Institute Members' dance series last year, Katherine Dunham and her group have been chosen to open the second next Wednesday in the Goodman theater. The program will be repeated on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. When Miss Dunham was recently in New York, directing the dances for a new version of "Pins and Needles," she heard a concert in commemoration of Negro composers. Most of the early music, she discovered, had been written by little known or forgotten men. With their tunes as a basis she has created a Negro folk ballet of the gay '90s, calling it "Bre'r Rabbit and de Tah Baby" after the Uncle Remus characters. In it will be found recreations of such dances as the "Pas Mala," "Jennie Coller," "Black Annie," "Palmer House," "Seven Year Itch," "Ballin' the Jack," "Cake Walk," and "Strut." Besides the ballet, Miss Dunham and the group will present several of her former successes—Haitian dances, Cuban rhumbas, and others.

Katherine Dunham.

The Bali and Java dancers, featuring Devi Dja, will bring their engagement at the Civic theater to a close this afternoon. The group, including the musicians in the native orchestra, numbers 30, and offers slightly popularized versions of East Indian dances, ceremonies, and tableaux.

A concert of operatic and light opera music will be presented tonight in the Auditorium recital hall by the Columbia Opera Company, Inc. The group is directed by Augustino Catarsi, baritone, who will take part in the program.

Monday morning the Musicians Club of Women will sponsor a recital by Stanley Fletcher, pianist, in the Arts club. The performer is a faculty member in the University of Illinois music department, and appeared with the Illinois Symphony orchestra as soloist during its first and third seasons. Tomorrow's program is as follows:

"Italian" Concerto .... Bach
Sonata, B-flat minor .... Chopin
"Scenes from Childhood" .... Schumann
Four Concert Etudes .... Toch
"Nightfall" .... Griffes
Danse Russe, from "Petrouchka" .... Stravinsky

Rachmaninoff's "Glorious Forever" and Mendelssohn's "Be Not Afraid" will be sung by the Central Church chorus in Orchestra hall this morning. William Hughes will direct, and Kathleen R. Lane will offer a contralto solo, Dickson's "Thanks Be to God." Archer Lambuth is the organist.

The Trapp Family choir, an unusual concert group that, in spite of critical acclaim, has yet to appear in Chicago, will open the new Elmhurst Civic Concert course on Monday, Nov. 27. They constitute a vocal octet, offering a cappella chorales, madrigals, and folksongs, but they also are versatile enough to play old serenades on Renaissance instruments. Later events on the concert series, sponsored by the Elmhurst Trade and Civic association, will include Alexander Kipnis, bass-baritone of the Metropolitan and Chicago City Opera companies, Jan. 3; Carin Carlsson, contralto, and Orlando Barera, violinist, Feb. 6; Rosalyn Tureck, pianist, Feb. 28, and Jeanette MacDonald, motion picture prima donna, April 3. The York Community High school auditorium of Elmhurst will house the five concerts.

Barrett Spach, organist of the Fourth Presbyterian church, will give a recital in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue, this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. There is no admission charge and the public is cordially invited.

A series of recorded symphony concerts will be started on Wednesday night in the assembly hall of the Auditorium building at 8:15. Their sponsor, Edward H. Elsen, says they are designed to "fill the mid-week lull, to acquaint musical Chicago with works not usually found on local symphony programs, and to acquire a deeper knowledge of and familiarity with outstanding masterpieces." This week MacDowell's Second Piano Concerto and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be played.

Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, the famous Italian composer, made his American debut on Nov. 2, playing his new second piano concerto with the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra in Carnegie hall. He will make his first Chicago appearance with the Saidenberg Symphonietta at its second concert of the season, Nov. 28, in the Goodman theater. At that time he will play a group of his piano solos and appear with the ensemble in a composition for piano and strings. A new work by the resident composer, Leo Sowerby, will receive its première on the same occasion.

On Tuesday night the Chicago Artists association will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a program in Curtiss hall. The artists appearing include Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; Theodora Sturkow-Ryder and Georgia Kober, duo-pianists; Sol Cohen, violinist, and Bertil Hilner, baritone.

N.U. Series Will Star Littlefield Ballet Today

By Cecil Smith.

At the present moment there is no busier group in Chicago than the Littlefield ballet. This afternoon Catherine Littlefield and her company visit the Auditorium theater to present a dance program as one of the features of Northwestern university's "History and Enjoyment of Music" series. After this assignment they will strike out for Minneapolis, where they will spend most of the week preparing and presenting a ballet program with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. On Saturday afternoon they will be back in Chicago to appear in the Chicago City Opera company production of "Carmen" at the Civic Opera house.

Under the auspices of the opera company in the Civic Opera house they will present two additional all ballet programs, on Sunday evening, Nov. 26, and on Sunday afternoon Dec. 10. And a considerable number of operatic assignments are ahead of them, including the extensive divertissements in "Lakmé."

The Littlefield ballet first made its work known to Chicago a year ago, when the troupe came on from Philadelphia to spend its first season here as official ballet of the Chicago City Opera company.

In a series of special ballet programs, and in the diverse variety of styles represented in the ballets of such operas as "Aïda," "La Gioconda," "Carmen," "Lakmé," and a number of others, the company gave Chicago an extensive view of its wares during that first season. Balletomanes learned to admire the cool lightness of blonde Catherine Littlefield, the spicy soubrette quality of her brunette sister, Dorothie Littlefield, and the youthful exuberance of the entire company.

The Littlefield ballet is only four years old. Already, however, the company has ventured to Europe [long before the seas were closed to peaceable travel], danced with the Philadelphia orchestra under Leopold Stokowski and other conductors, and given summer performances at the Lewisohn stadium in New York, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, and the Hollywood bowl.

The répertoire of the company, much of it choreographed by Catherine Littlefield, includes several works of a classical nature, as well as a number of compositions designed to represent and comment upon the contemporary American scene. Perhaps the best known and best liked American pieces are "Barn Dance," an extremely vivid and lively compilation of folk dance themes, and "Café Society," a satiric exposé of metropolitan night life.

"Barn Dance" figures upon this afternoon's Auditorium theater program, along with another American dance from last year's répertoire, "Ladies' Better Dresses." The latter ballet deals with the American woman's unquenchable enthusiasm for the latest styles, and takes place in a fashionable dress establishment. Featured dancers in "Barn Dance" are Dorothie Littlefield and Thomas Cannon; in "Ladies' Better Dresses," Joan McCracken, Carl Cleighton, and Mr. Cannon.

Two ballets in classical vein, both new to Chicago, also will be presented this afternoon. Their titles are "Fête Champêtre" and "Poème."

Next Sunday evening's Civic Opera house program is momentous because it includes the first performance here by any group of Maurice Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloé," an important work never presented here by the Diaghileff Ballet Russe. The list also includes "Moment Romantique" and "Barn Dance."

Lois Bichl, gifted Chicago cellist, appears as soloist in the second concert by the Woman's Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall Tuesday night. Izler Solomon, who has become the orchestra's sole conductor this season, will direct. Miss Bichl will bring to its first Chicago hearing Franz Schubert's Concerto in A minor, originally written for the arpeggione, a small guitar-shaped viola which became obsolete soon after Schubert's death. To preserve the music, Gaspar Cassado, noted Spanish cellist, rearranged the work for modern cello.

Mr. Solomon will conduct the first American performance of "Cotillon," a suite of dance tunes by the contemporary Australian composer, Arthur Benjamin. The suite consists of tunes drawn from "The Dancing Master," a collection of dances published by W. Pearson and John Young in London in 1719. The movements bear such refreshing titles as "Daphne's Delight," "Love's Triumph," "Jigg It E Foot," and "The Tattler."

The complete Woman's Symphony program follows:

Overture to "The Yellow Princess" .... Saint-Saëns
Symphony, B-flat major .... Chausson
Concerto, A minor, for cello .... Schubert
[Arranged for Gaspar Cassado]
Lois Bichl.
Lament, for cello and orchestra .... Irwin Fischer
Lois Bichl.
Cotillon, A Suite of Dance Tunes .... Benjamin
[First time in America.]
Waltz, "Tales from the Vienna Woods" .... Johann Strauss

Two Duke Shows

Vernon Duke is planning to do the scores for two new shows this season. First of these is a Negro fantasy, "Little Joe," to be sponsored by Al Lewis. Georges Balanchine will stage the entire production, including, of course, the dances; Lynn Root will do the book, and John Mercer the lyrics. Possibilities for the cast are Todd Duncan, Cab Calloway and his orchestra, and Eddie Green. Second of Mr. Duke's chores will be a musical version of "Tonight or Never," in which Helen Gahagan once scored a success under the direction of the late David Belasco. In the new version no chorus will be called for, but there will be quite a few songs. Randolph Carter is writing the book, while Harold Adamson is turning out the lyrics. It is hoped to get either Marta Eggerth or Gladys Swarthout for the leading feminine rôle.

Chorus Auditions.

Auditions are being held on Saturdays between 4 and 7 o'clock for those who would like to join the National Opera Guild chorus, 5 West Oak street. This is a chartered nonprofit organization, expecting to broadcast and make public appearances during the season. Miss Eva Marschall is coach and accompanist for the group.

College Rating on 'Who's Who' Basis Is Upheld

By the Rev. John Evans.

Since THE TRIBUNE's booklet "Higher Education," published last year under the authorship of the editor of this column, there has been considerable discussion in college circles as to the value of including statistics founded on "Who's Who in America" in determining the quality of any faculty in an institution of higher learning. In spite of some adverse criticism, however, in this guide to students in the selection of a college or university, this rating was taken into account.

"Doctorates [not honorary] represent the highest formal degrees obtainable in a specialized field," "Higher Education" stated. "Therefore the percentage of the faculty members holding earned doctors' degrees should at least be a weighty discriminating factor."

"Who's Who" listings show that a faculty member has done research to distinguish himself aside from the classroom or the laboratory; that he has written books or articles which are widely recognized; that he has obtained recognition, perhaps even been appointed an officer, in one of the learned societies of his special field of endeavor.

That this "Who's Who" evaluation was justified is now indorsed by Dr. Roy Temple House of the University of Chicago, whose findings, under the title of "Who's Who in Who's Who," have been published in the University of Chicago magazine.

Prefacing his survey with a statement that the only competitive rating on a basis of solid statistics regularly applied to colleges is the standing of their athletic teams; and further admitting that any standard of measurement might still fail to estimate the intangibles of first importance, he concludes: "Altho noisy charlatans sometimes crash the gates of "Who's Who in America" and substantial men are ignored, inclusion in that biographical dictionary does indicate a certain relative merit and importance."

Dr. House's procedure in testing college faculties was to compare the size of the faculty with the size of its "Who's Who" representation. Thus, a faculty of 100, for instance, with a rating of 10 in the red book, received a rating of 10 per cent. The survey, however, was somewhat complicated by variant factors like the inclusion or exclusion of part time teachers, which differed in various institutions, and that many distinguished professors in the larger schools are considerably more distinguished than the "greats" in the little schools. But what was startling were the "appalling differences" between the old-line humanistic colleges and the technical schools.

"At Indiana, for example," says Dr. House, "one member of the faculty in eight and three-fourths is in "Who's Who." At Purdue university, the same state's excellent technological institution, the proportion is not one-fourth as large. Is this rating fair?"

The ratio at the University of Oklahoma is one to nine; at Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical 1 to 35; at the University of Iowa one to seven and one-fourth, and at Iowa State at Ames, 1 to 12. From these figures, Dr. House infers "that in general men engaged in what might be called the cultural activities are more likely to be mentioned in 'Who's Who' than those whose labors are in more 'practical' lines—which is rather a vigorous answer to the Europeans who maintain that Americans care only for money, mechanical gadgets, and silly dissipations."

The reason that the big state universities do not compare favorably with endowed institutions is because the former have so many students whom they have to "grind" thru and their funds are limited by state legislatures so that they are often forced to entrust teaching to young assistants who have not as yet made a reputation. Grouping California, Cornell, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Minnesota, the palm goes to Wisconsin with one teacher in four and two-thirds in "Who's Who." Michigan is second with one to five and two-thirds.

The highest ratings are to be found, according to the survey, in generously endowed institutions since they are able to furnish the best equipment, accumulate first class libraries, pay good salaries, limit student attendance, and because the professors' time is not entirely absorbed by routine duties.

These institutions Dr. House has divided into Class A with an enrollment of four or five figures, and Class B with a three figure enrollment. But he qualifies this by admitting that it is easier to name the six or eight leaders than to determine an exact comparative rating.

"But after much computation and meditation we think," says Dr. House, "that we have established definitely that the honor of having a higher percentage of faculty in "Who's Who in America" than any other educational institution in the country belongs to the remarkable Carleton college of Northfield, Minn."

In the booklet "Higher Education," Swarthmore was given a higher rating than Carleton in the "Who's Who" percentage column, but this is to be explained by having included in that computation those many eminent part-time professors which Swarthmore possesses. The second highest rating Dr. House awards to Wesleyan university of Middleton, Conn.

"This famous little college [Wesleyan]," reports Dr. House, "with only 700 students, has a much larger library than the combined colleges of the two states of Wyoming and Nevada, and has never made the mistake, common among American denominational colleges, of undertaking too big a job with limited equipment."

The grand prize for the two most capably planned and managed institutions in all the history of colleges is awarded to the University of Chicago—"which shows a 'Who's Who' percentage comparing favorably with the best of the little colleges." The second grand prize goes to Princeton.

"We believe the figures warrant us in saluting these two as the highest-grade educational institutions in the country. Which probably amounts to saying; the best in the world," is Dr. House's conclusion.

Current Music News

This afternoon William Sweitzer will give a recital in Kimball hall. Being a versatile performer, he will play one group of compositions on the piano, one on the accordion, and one on the organ.

The final award recital by winners of last season's Society of American Musicians' contest will be given on Tuesday night in Kimball hall by Vivian Louise Martin, organist, and Mildred Catenhusen, cellist. Miss Martin will play works by Handel, Stamitz, Franck, Bach, Widor, Bossi, Lily Moline-Hallam, Rowley, Sowerby, and Vierne. Miss Catenhusen has chosen to perform Henri Eccles' Sonata in G minor, Hindemith's Sonata for cello alone, and shorter pieces by Couperin, Ravel, and Cassadò. Christine Querfeld will be the cellist's accompanist in everything but the slow movement from Dvorak's Concerto in B minor, wherein the organist will assist the soloist.

Mildred Catenhusen.

Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists, will make their first appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week on the Thursday-Friday series in Orchestra hall. This Russian couple already has appeared twice in recital at the Auditorium theater, adding this city's approval to their international reputation. Mr. and Mrs. Babin are natives of Moscow and Kiev, respectively, and the story of their meeting and marriage while they were studying in Berlin with Artur Schnabel is now a familiar one. Besides playing Bach's Concerto in C minor the pair will introduce to local audiences Mr. Babin's own Concerto for two pianos. Hans Lange will conduct the program which follows:

Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" .... Mozart
Symphony No. 100, G Major ["Military"] .... Haydn
Concerto for Two Pianos, No. 1, C Minor .... Bach
Vronsky and Babin.
Concerto for Two Pianos .... Babin
Vronsky and Babin.
[First performance in Chicago.]

When the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra makes its Chicago bow at the Auditorium theater next Sunday afternoon it will play French, German, English, and Czech compositions. These are as follows: Berlioz's Overture, "The Roman Carnival"; Beethoven's Symphony No. 7 in A major; Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for Strings [quartet and orchestra], and Weinberger's Variations on the old English tune, "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree." The concert will be a benefit for the Children's Memorial hospital of Chicago.

The 10 clubs belonging to the Illinois Male Chorus association will get together for their first annual concert in Orchestra hall on Saturday night. This aggregation will total 400 voices, making an impressive single choir. The various societies participating will include the Arion Male chorus, the Borden-Wieland Glee club, the Century Male chorus, the Chicago Welsh Male choir, the Grieg Male chorus, the Railway Express Glee club, the Sterling Male chorus, and the Viking Male chorus, all of Chicago. Out of town representatives will be the West Suburban Glee club of Oak Park, the Orpheus club of Peoria, and the Kewanee Men singers from Kewanee.

By Mae Tinee.

Good morning!

Well, they say everything has to end some time, and there comes a moment when "The Marx Brothers at the Circus" DOES.

Not that the film is really so awfully long. Eighty-seven minutes is, I believe, the running time. It seems long because there's so much of much that's in it. . . . When a scene struck the director as funny he just simply wouldn't let it go, with the result that the observer's patience is sorely tried many times when it shouldn't be. Like diagramming a funny story over and over again for somebody who got the point when it was first told.

The circus in question is about to be owned by handsome Jeff Wilson, whose property it will become when he has repaid a certain loan of $10,000. The man to whom he owes the money is a mean, mean fellow, who, as the picture opens, is demanding that the money be paid practically instanter or else he will take over. [Which he wants to do, Jeff having made the show a going concern. . . .]

"You shall be paid after the performance tonight," says Jeff.

BUT—as he is counting out the money, biff—blow over the head! And when he wakes up the cash is gone. . . . To the rescue, the Marx boys.

Chico and Harpo are variously employed with the show. Groucho, a lawyer, better known to his intimates and himself as "the legal eagle," is summoned to render first and last aid. And the party gets rough!

Final episodes take place at the estate of the wealthy Widow Dukesbury, aunt of Jeff Wilson, who has just disowned him. Hither the "legal eagle" brings the circus to substitute as entertainment for a famous orchestra previously hired by madam to entertain her guests at a ritzy shindig. And now occur more things than I can remember to detail.

Bright spots in the production are provided by Kenny Baker's singing, and the piano and harp playing of Chico and Harpo Marx. Groucho sings, too, be it known, a ditty about a tattooed lady in which he is joined by various members of the circus troupe, who also assist him in an accompanying dance.

Florence Rice is stunning in a white suit and performs prettily with a snowy circus horse. Other players do well with their complicated rôles . . . for practically everything about this picture IS complicated, I'm telling you.

The brothers have a few new gags, and the ending, of course, is a happy one for romantic leads and all deserving screwballs.

See you tomorrow.

Music Too Late

Due to the late arrival of the music from Europe, the Swedish Choral club's performance of Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," in coöperation with the Chicago City Opera company, has been postponed until next year. Harry Carlson, the organization's director, is now busily rehearsing it for the annual Christmas presentation of Handel's "Messiah" on Dec. 17, and the spring concert of new works. Soloists for the "Messiah" will be Esther Hart, soprano; Helen Bartush, alto; Joseph Laderoute, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. The program for the second concert will include Vaughan-Williams' "Benedicite," Haydn's "Missa in tempora belli" ["Mass in time of war"], and a mass by Johan Helmich Roman, an 18th century Swedish composer who studied with Handel.

Opera's Jubilee.

On Saturday, Dec. 9, the Chicago City Opera company will present Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" to celebrate the completion of 50 years of "big time" opera in this city. The Gounod work, starring Adelina Patti, inaugurated this phase of Chicago's cultural activity at the Auditorium theater on Dec. 10, 1889. The coming performance will feature Elen Dosia and Ernest McChesney in the principal rôles.

...x Education ...ust Aspect of All Knowledge

...the first place it would be hu...ly impossible for me to write all ...supplementary material that ...be valuable in connection with ...column and the work of this de...ent. In spite of that, I often ...been on the verge of writing a ...of leaflets for mothers of small ...n, mothers of adolescents, and ...adolescents themselves, giving ...sort of detailed help; but since ...isn't elastic, I have not been ...to do so.

...the second place, if I did write ...thing called "What Every Boy ...Know" or "What Every Girl ...Know" it would be in about ...volumes. Why? Because what ...y boy or girl should know ...s a whole range of knowl...e, some arithmetic, some history, ...to swim, some woodcraft, how to ...when camping, Latin, perhaps; ...to adjust to people, getting ...to earn money, getting along ...the family, taking care of a ...how life begins, the need of in...y and self-discipline, the physical ...of sex, the physical and spir...relationship between the sexes. ...every young boy and girl ...know really concerns all sorts ...knowledge that lie between the ...of books, that has to do with ...and people, and himself or her...as a human being. Yet, to most ...what every young person ...know has just one echo—sex. ...object to the title. It's too much "facts of life," meaning only ...of sex. If a book or booklet is ...ed to give to young people cer...definite information about the ...structure and functions of ...bodies, about the so-called "so...diseases," about premarital re...ionships, about the physical and ...aspects of marriage, then ...book should be called by a ...ific title.

The reason I am making so much ...this point is because I object so ...ngly to the use of the expression, "what every girl should know," with ...connotation. It does two things ...are harmful. It hides a very ...basic discussion behind an "in...t," or rather, an innocuous title, ...polite cover-up. Hiding, mystery, ...pers, these create an unwhole...attitude toward sex.

The second thing I object to about ...ing all this information "what ...very young person should know" is ...: It sets apart from the whole ...of life's knowledge, of one's ex...istence as a human being, everything ...pertains to sex. And this is a ...in. It is unwise. It is wrong ...use it departs from truth.

Sex isn't a thing apart from the ...of life. Physically, it isn't. Any ...who has any knowledge of the ...an body, who has any imagina...added to that knowledge, knows ...the parts of which it is made ...are interdependent. Our bodies ...a whole, each part contributing ...that whole.

Psychologically, sex isn't a thing .... Emotionally, spiritually, it ...a thing apart. Here [in sex] is ...great basic urge, part of the im...to live ourselves and to go on ...in our children. It ties up ..., or results in, many things, the ...to work and earn a living, the ...toward physical fitness and ...y, the attempt to raise ourselves ...culture or to supply it for our ...dren, the self-discipline that is ...sacrifice, or the self-control and ...that make young people re...from promiscuous or pre...al sex relationships. In this ...sex is responsible for much ...ement in the world, for much ...in music, in painting, in sculp..., in literature, and in character. ..., whether mental or physical, ...divided into neat and very separate compartments. It is all of one piece, a fabric of many threads, among which some of the richest and most colorful are the creation of life and the relationship between the sexes.

So knowledge about their bodies, about birth and sex in the broad sense that we have been speaking of today, should become part of the whole pattern of life in young people's minds, assimilated as is other knowledge. All that is needed is that, from the earliest years, the simple wonderings and questionings be met with naturalness just as they are when they relate to a steam engine, a clock, the stars in the sky. Then, on thru later childhood, gradually the more specific questions should be answered, and during adolescence a more mature knowledge and viewpoint developed with the help of a wise mother and father.

This is the ideal of sex education at home. The reading which I have planned, and about which I sent information to the mother mentioned, is aimed at this whole panorama, to help parents who are at sea, puzzled, ignorant themselves of certain facts, and embarrassed to clear the air for their children by informing themselves on this subject.

So the mother whose letter I quoted at the beginning of this article could have found in my reply to her the name, address of publisher, and price of a leaflet or full sized book to meet her children's needs. But I hoped she would do more. She would have been a wiser woman if she had gotten one or two of the books I described and read them herself. In that way she would have been fitting herself to guide her children at first hand. She would have brought frankness into the picture, and opened the way for her son and daughter to come to her with the many doubts and questions that assail teen age children as they ponder over their own thoughts and feelings, or over what they see and hear outside.

To give your child who has no sex information a book is much better than nothing, but infinitely better is it to give him this kind of education all along the way, from the time when your small daughter or son raises wondering eyes and asks: "Mommie, where did I come from?"

Our "Sex Education" booklet covers all ranges of reading. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson
[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Tho bridge writers devote a large portion of their time and efforts to the analysis of squeeze plays, elimination and throw-ins, grand and Vienna coups, as well as to a host of other high sounding titles—they make no bones about admitting that the average player's greatest fault seems to be an inability to count. Bridge demands counting of many types: Counting to thirteen, counting winners and losers; counting honor tricks and supporting winners, even counting the cost of a premeditated sacrifice bid.

Frank K. Perkins, writing in the Bridge World magazine, makes a suggestion which is almost as sound as it is whimsical: "Some time ago, we told Ely Culbertson that he ought to forget about his two-way three bid and devote some attention to an abacus for bridge players." And Mr. Perkins goes on to prove his point with the following disquisition and pertinent examples:

"No matter how much is written and said on the subject," Mr. Perkins writes, "the fact remains that many of the bridge table tragedies occur because declarer does not count his winners and losers. Possibly a novice cannot analyze the trick taking factors, but there is no excuse for the old war horse. Too many times he considers a count 'old stuff'—too elementary to engage his time. So here are a few horrible examples of experienced players who refused to analyze the count.

"West held the first diamond trick and continued the jack of diamonds, which South ruffed. The ace and king of trumps left West with the jack, and declarer shifted to the ace and king of hearts because he had to ruff off two losers.

"A third round of hearts was ruffed in dummy, and the ace of clubs put South in the lead again. The last heart was played and West refused to ruff because it would have allowed dummy to discard a losing club. Instead, West discarded the queen of diamonds, leaving this situation:

"Declarer had lost one trick and dummy had the lead. A club was won by East's king and the ace of diamonds was played. Declarer ruffed, but West overruffed and cashed a club trick to set the contract.

"Declarer had played in a routine manner, but a simple count would have shown that he had to win three tricks in top cards of side suits, plus two trumps by dummy's ruffs, and five trump tricks in his own hand. He made one slip. On winning with the ace of hearts in dummy, a third round of diamonds should have been ruffed with South's seven of spades before West could get rid of a diamond. This would have allowed South to make his five trump tricks, and the general plan used would have produced the other tricks.

"West led the spade five.

"The declarer held up on the first trick when East played the king, but of course had to win the second spade. Five clubs were cashed and the heart finesse was tried and lost. East shifted to diamonds, and declarer was unable to make anything but five club tricks, plus the three side aces.

"A count would have shown declarer that he needed one trick more than the obvious winners, and a count and analysis of the adverse suit would have shown that spades should yield two tricks. If the spade suit was a four carder, it was probable that game would depend on the heart finesse. But if West had started with five spades, it was another story.

"By the Rule of Eleven, East had two spades higher than the five spot, if the opening lead was as 'honest' as it appeared. The king was one of these, and the other must be either the nine or ten spot, for if West had started with five spades to the Q-10-9, he probably would have opened the ten spot, a standard lead. Therefore, declarer should have taken the first spade and returned the jack of spades. This would have dropped the queen and nine spot, and dummy's eight could then force out the ten and set up the game-going trick in spades.

"The declarer did not even seem to bother about the next deal. We do not know yet whether he failed to realize that he was almost surely going to be set, or tried to coax the enemy into trump suicide. In any case, he overlooked a fine play.

"West led the diamond four.

"South won East's king of diamonds on the first trick and played a low trump. It might have been a trap for West to put up the king in order to catch his partner's ace, but West was an experienced old horse and ducked, and East won with the ace. Then the king of trumps, queen of diamonds, and ace of clubs set the contract.

"Declarer had had a fair chance, if he had looked around for a way to avoid his four losers. He needed a little luck in the adverse distribution, but it was worth trying, for it was the only real chance.

"On winning the first diamond, declarer should have run off his four good hearts, and the defense would have been helpless. If West discarded on the fourth heart, or even if he ruffed low, dummy would discard a diamond. Either East's ace would have to ruff the trick or West would win with a low trump; in any case the ace and king would later drop on the same trick. One club and two trumps were the only losers."

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

South's contract is seven diamonds. West leads the spade jack. Can the grand slam be made if South knows the position of every card—in other words, if he plays double dummy?

Answer: Yes, thirteen tricks can be taken as follows: Dummy plays low on the opening lead; South wins with the ace. Three rounds of trumps are taken, ending in dummy. Hearts are then played three times East's king being picked up. Declarer now cashes two more trumps, discarding the club queen from dummy. When declarer is reduced to a low heart, one diamond and two clubs, dummy has the Q-8 of spades, a high heart, and the club ace. At this point West should have the 10-9 of spades and the 10-8 of clubs; East, the K-7 of spades and the K-J of clubs. Now, when declarer leads a heart to dummy, West must discard a club because a spade discard would let declarer push the spade queen through East, thereby establishing the eight spot. On the heart play, East also must let go a club, since otherwise declarer would merely ruff the spade eight and establish the queen. Now that both defenders have come down to one club, declarer simply cashes the club ace, ruffs a spade, and claims the club six as the final trick.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

One of the most famous community houses in the city has asked my assistance in providing for its newly established boys' club.

It is situated in one of the poorest districts in Chicago, teeming, as such districts generally are, with underprivileged children. The poverty stricken homes of these youngsters are, as a rule, most inadequate for proper living, much less for recreation or relaxation, and such children are driven to the streets in search of fun. From grimy pavements, unsavory alleys, and bad company this community house affords an escape. Here boys may have freedom and opportunity to develop along chosen lines; may have unobtrusive guidance and help. Tendencies which develop into future delinquency are directed into proper channels.

This center now has a large building which has been turned over to the neighborhood boys for a clubhouse. There are workshops in which they can learn to make many useful things. On the upper floors are game rooms where youngsters can spend their energies in basketball or handball rather than in alley fights and petty thievery.

The organization is anxious to find discarded bicycles for boys who have never owned bicycles. Many of these lads live at some distance from the center; many more never have had an opportunity to get away from the city or to see much of the outdoors.

Instruction in photography is available, but here again lack of equipment prevents the progress of the boys. Unused cameras or other supplies would be welcome.

The majority of the boys are naturally musical, and the director has requested recordings of classical music of all kinds or discarded instruments.

Surely many of the homes of the city harbor unused records, bicycles, cameras, or musical instruments that could be made available to these boys.

Sponsors of the organization will make arrangements to have items called for if readers will notify me what is available.

Bed Socks and Dwarf Cap

By Jean Macdonald.

The old-fashioned bed sock is assuming a new rôle these days as a sport sock worn with ski or skating outfits. When it is knitted of light weight vicuna, it is a bed sock. When it is knitted of cashmere or stocking wool, it is for outdoor wear. The instructions include directions for men's and women's socks, and they may be knitted in two or three days. The little dwarf style cap is knitted in Germantown to match the sport socks.

For instructions in knitting the bed socks and dwarf style cap, No. X-385, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Two-Toned Crocheted Gloves

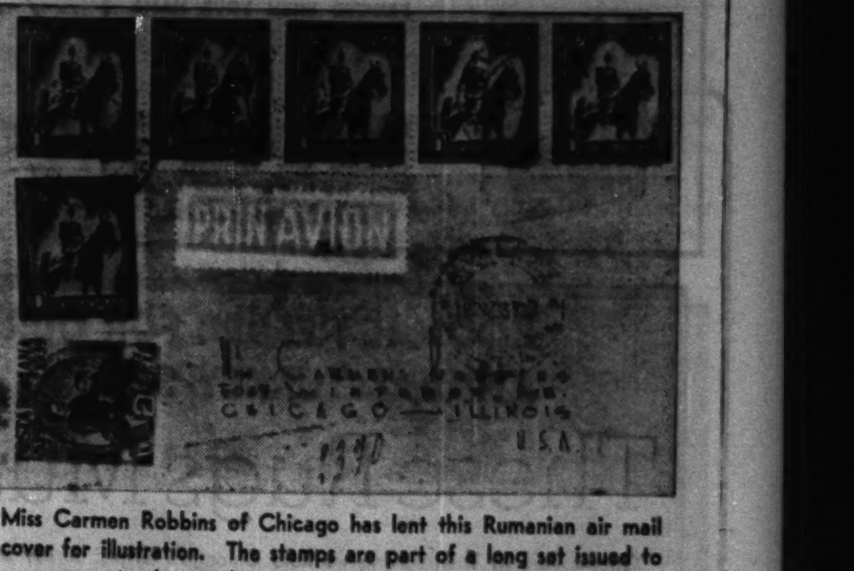
By Ellen Bruce.

Crocheted gloves are pleasant and easy to make, especially when they are created with soft, light weight wool. Crocheted with a rather fine hook, these black and white gloves are as warm as toast. Two balls of yarn will make one pair of gloves, and double crochet is the stitch employed.

For instructions in crocheting the two-toned gloves, No. X-384, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen.



Miss Carmen Robbins of Chicago has lent this Rumanian air mail cover for illustration. The stamps are part of a long set issued to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Carol I. The stamp at the lower left corner shows Prince Carol and Carmen Sylvia (Queen Elizabeth) in 1869.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

As a wartime measure the rate of postage on the domestic postal card was changed to two cents by an act approved on Oct. 3, 1917, and a new card with paid reply, bearing postage stamps of that value, was issued on Aug. 2, 1918. Each portion of the new card was of the usual size, measuring 5½ by 3¼ inches, and the printing was in red ink on buff colored cardboard. All cards which have been examined were rouletted to assist in separating the halves.

The stamp designs for the message and reply halves of this card are identical except that the former shows the portrait of George Washington and the latter the portrait of Martha Washington. The portrait of George Washington is a profile portrait facing the left and adapted from the Houdon statue, while that of Martha Washington is a full face portrait after a painting by Gilbert Stuart. Each portrait is surrounded by a background of solid color and framed by an irregular panel which has vertical sides, and an arched top, and which spreads out at the base to inclose the inscriptions and numerals. At the top a ribbon panel with flowing ends bears the inscription, "U. S. Postal Card," in colored Roman capitals, while at the bottom a very narrow ribbon carries the caption, "Washington," or "Martha Washington," as the case may be, in minute Gothic capitals, and below this in colorless Roman letters is the word "Cents" flanked by a large colorless "2" at either side. The lower part of the design is enclosed with foliate scrolls which terminate just below the ends of the ribbon label.

At the left of, and in line with the base of the stamp is the inscription, "This side of card is for address." This stands alone upon the message card and is surrounded with a single line frame with concave corners. The other half of the card shows the title, "Reply Card," which is included with the last mentioned inscription within a frame similar to that described above, but with an arched top.

This two cent domestic card with paid reply lost its entire utility when the postage rate was reduced to one cent on July 1, 1919, but the cards were salvaged, as in the case of the two cent single postal card, by surcharging them with the new value. The surcharge consisted of a large numeral "1" above the word "Cent." Uncut sheets of cards were surcharged in printing presses while the cut and folder cards were surcharged with special dies fitting the International and Universal canceling machines in use at larger offices. There is one variety of press printed surcharge and 17 varieties of the canceling machine types.

The listed printing errors of surcharge include double surcharge on the message card, double surcharge on the reply card, and omitted surcharge on the reply card.

The postoffice department is proceeding rapidly with the development of the "famous Americans" series of stamps. It has assigned the values to the 35 persons to be honored and has selected the places of first day sale. Each of the seven groups of five persons will have a series of stamps consisting of 1, 2, 3, 5, and 10 cent values. To avoid criticism, the values have been assigned to the group in the order of the date of birth of the five notables. The particular cities for first day sales have been selected for a variety of reasons, as will be briefly noted below. The persons, values, and places of sale are listed by groups.

Artists—One cent, Gilbert C. Stuart [1755], Narragansett, R. I., his birthplace; 2 cent, James A. MacNeill Whistler [1834], Lowell, Mass., his birthplace; 3 cent, Augustus Saint-Gaudens [1848], New York City, the scene of his labors; 5 cent, Daniel Chester French [1850], Stockbridge, Mass., his summer home, and 10 cent, Frederic Remington [1861], Canton, N. Y., his birthplace.

Authors — One cent, Washington Irving [1783], Tarrytown, N. J., near his home "Sunnyside" on the Hudson; 2 cent, James Fenimore Cooper [1789], Cooperstown, N. Y., his home; 3 cent, Ralph Waldo Emerson [1803], Boston, where he was born and spent much of his life; 5 cent, Louise May Alcott [1832], Concord, Mass., her home after the age of two years, and 10 cent, Samuel L. Clemens [1935], Hannibal, Mo., where he began his writings.

Composers—One cent, Stephen Collins Foster [1826], Bardstown, Ky., where it is claimed he received the inspiration for "Old Kentucky Home"; 2 cent, John Philip Sousa [1854], Washington, birthplace and home; 3 cent, Victor Herbert [1859], New York City, his home after coming to America; 5 cent, Edward A. MacDowell [1861], New York City, his birthplace and home, and 10 cent, Charles Ethelbert Nevin [1862], Pittsburgh, Pa., birthplace and home.

Educators—One cent, Horace Mann [1796], Boston, where he perfected the free public school system; 2 cent, Mark Hopkins [1802], Williamstown, Mass., where he was president of Williamstown college, and later died; 3 cent, Charles W. Eliot [1834], Cambridge, Mass., where he was president of Harvard university; 5 cent, Frances E. Willard [1839], Evanston, where she lived many years as a teacher and dean of women at Northwestern university, and 10 cent, Booker T. Washington [1858], Tuskegee institute, Ala., which he founded.

Inventors—One cent, Eli Whitney [1765], Savannah, Ga., on a plantation near which he invented the cotton gin; 2 cent, Samuel F. B. Morse [1791], New York City, where he invented the telegraph; 3 cent, Cyrus H. McCormick [1809], Lexington, Va., near the farm where he was born; 5 cent, Elias Howe [1819], Spencer, Mass., where he was born, and 10 cent, Alexander Graham Bell [1847], Boston, where he invented the telephone while a professor at Boston university.

Poets—One cent, Henry W. Longfellow [1807], Portland, Me., where he was born; 2 cent, John G. Whittier [1807]; 3 cent, James Russell [1819], Cambridge, Mass., where he was born and died; 5 cent, Walt Whitman [1819], Camden, N. J., where he lived and wrote much of his poetry, and 10 cent, James Whitcomb Riley [1853], Greenfield, Ind., his birthplace.

Scientists—One cent, John James Audubon [1780], St. Francisville, La., where he spent much time making bird studies; 2 cent, Crawford W. Long [1815], Jefferson, Ga., where he performed the first successful surgical operation with the aid of ether anasthesia; 3 cent, Luther Burbank [1849], Santa Rosa, Cal., where he experimented on plants; 5 cent, Walter Reed [1851], Washington, D. C., the city most closely connected with his life, and 10 cent, Jane Addams [1860], Chicago, where she founded Hull house, the headquarters for her social work.

Neither the dates for first day sales nor the colors of the various values have been selected, and these matters will be the subject of future announcements by the postoffice department.

Dr. E. L. Cornell of Chicago is exhibiting his collection of British Colonial stamps at the Chicago Historical Society building in Lincoln park. This exhibit displays all of the George VI. stamps issued up to the beginning of June, 1939, including the coronation issues. The exhibit will be on view for an indefinite period, and collectors should take advantage of the opportunity to see these stamps in the near future.

The Monroe County [Ind.] Anti-Tuberculosis association will sponsor its annual first day Christmas Seal cover on Dec. 1. This cover will be mailed upon that date to any one sending 10 cents, together with name and address. Direct your letters to Earl T. MacMillan, chairman, 720 East University street, Bloomington, Ind. All proceeds from the sale of these covers accrues to the anti-tuberculosis society.

Grand Idea for Supper on Frosty Sunday Night

Here is something new for supper on a frosty night or for a Sunday tea: Add a cup of chopped cooked ham to your regular waffle recipe, then cook the waffles as usual. Serve them topped with scrambled eggs and accompanied by plenty of hot coffee. Or add some grated cheese to the waffle batter and serve the minced ham in the scrambled eggs.

Toast Animals Added to Soup Appeal to Children

The youngsters will enjoy soup when they have tiny toast animals on top. Cut out small animals from thinly-cut bread slices. Toast and pass or place on top of each soup serving.

Double Turkey?

By Eleanor Jewett

Two roasted turkeys this year
And two big pumpkin pies—
Who will decree my appetite
To be of double size?

A week between but what tell
Are seven little days?
This year I'm being happy
In a vast Thanksgiving maze.

The only doubt that gnaws me,
The single questioning fear,
Is can we ever duplicate
This two Thanksgiving year?

Brilliant Opera Audience Hears Andre Burdino

By Cousin Eve.

Monday night's opera, with Grace Moore in "Louise" came near being brilliant as to audience. And certainly it was good musically. André Burdino just escaped out of Europe, sang a hot blooded Julien, and Mme. Moore was an authentic picture of what my neighbor called very justly "tormented youth," as Louise. Looking down upon the boxes from an upper loge, it was nice to see that the University of Chicago sector was well represented among them. Dr. and Mrs. William Nitze and the Tod Hortons both had parties, and Mrs. Nitze's gray tulle frock was one of the prettiest. Mrs. Charles Goodspeed's costume was distinctly Matisse, a polonaise of red and black satin stripes over a black skirt.

Upstairs, Miss Elizabeth McCormick has No. 1 box for the season, sitting where her cousin Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick made operatic history for so many years. Among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley, Archduke Felix of Austria, and Baron Etienne de Hedry of Budapest, aide to the young Austrian prince, who is the second son of the late Emperor Karl and Empress Zita. Archduke Otto is his elder brother. Baron de Hedry was lately Hungarian minister at Brussels.

Archduke Felix came to Canada in September to hunt big game in the Rockies with his uncle, the grand duke of Luxemburg, but that excursion was off when the war broke out. So the young man is on a lecture tour with timely topics, "Reconstruction of Central Europe" and "What Next in the Balkans?" He was just one jump ahead of Hitler's invasion of Austria, having had warnings the day before of what was due to happen, and escaped over the frontier with two of his brothers. The archduke is tall and slim and with no sentimental ideas whatever about the present European trade scrimmage, and I for one should like to hear his lecture. Miss McCormick had a small Sunday tea at the Casino for Felix, and two charming girls to meet him, Pauline Palmer and Adair Orr, both interesting and unalike American types.

Its always amusing to sit next to Herbert Bradley at dinner. We never talk about disagreeable subjects like war and national politics, but usually about the Brookfield zoo, which I think is one of the world's great achievements. So one hears all the dope about Mei-Mei the giant panda at the zoo, and her new mate, and naturally inquired whether it was going to be a boy or girl panda. "Well," said Herbert, "we really don't know whether he's a girl or she's a boy, but are taking a chance, seeing it's a gift panda." Then one heard about the pair of Indian rhinos upon order given by a patriotic Chicagoan whenever discovered. They come from Burma and none is on the market now, being exceedingly rare. Neither have we any African okapis, a beautiful giraffelike creature with zebra stripes, found only in the Belgian Congo. They can be had, a beautiful pair, and the permits to take them out of the Congo are ready and waiting. But alas! My dinner partner said wistfully, no sponsor is at hand to pay $8,000 for the ravishing okapis. Such a good salesman is Herbert Bradley that one felt like writing a check at once to buy a Christmas present of okapis for the Brookfield zoo.

I would rather listen to Percy Boynton, professor of English at the University of Chicago, than eat. And it was fortunate that one felt that way, for it looked as if many of us were not going to eat at all, at the Drama league luncheon in the Blackstone ballroom on Monday. Percy Boynton was toastmaster, and Hamlet in the person of Maurice Evans with Ophelia and other members of his company were guests of honor. And also Catharine Littlefield, première of the beautiful ballet of our Chicago City Opera that bears her name. Presiding over the brilliant crowded meeting was Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, a handsome alert chairman, with Lewis Bernays at the left, Hamlet on the right.

Did you ever hear of starving in the midst of plenty? That was our plight at this gala. Finally word came from the front line trenches that the chefs had sent for more chops and were cooking them, and that soon the canteen would be working again.

Mr. Boynton's topic was "Cakes and Ale" which he said meant exactly nothing, having neither wit nor depth, nor length, nor breadth. Just the epitome of nothing, like "a society woman" added the noted pedagog wickedly. I wonder where he finds them, these "society women"? Surely not in Chicago where ladies of so-called "leisure" drudge harder than do salaried dames.

The résumé of theater in America from 1714 [shortly before his birth, said the speaker] was a scholarly epic studded with epigram and beautifully chosen words. Just fancy, they gave Othello in 1662, in Newport, R. I., the "bad boy" of New England states. Theater was taboo in Boston then, as being immoral. We all sighed when this talk was over, for it was learned, yet made a picture for us. Maurice Evans was a brisk Hamlet with crisp enunciation, who told of the four speeches he might make: the one he had framed up that morning in the bath tub, the brilliant affair studded with witticisms which was expected by the Drama league, the perfect peroration which would come to his mind when leaving in the taxi, and fourthly, the entirely strange one in the morning's paper. So being forewarned that Hamlet will deny everything, we pass on to Consul General Bernays, and his two minutes of gayety pointed by the tale of the old lady who knitted while he spoke, "in order not to waste her time."

Dr. Duncan Brown began his sermon on Armistice Sunday at St. James with another old lady up in Scotland, who wished that "Hitler would get married and settle down." Dr. Brown felt the same. It was supposed to be a solemn occasion at St. James, with white flowers on the altar, the Star Spangled Banner and Union Jack drooping together in the chancel, and much gold lace in the front pews. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley Ford sat on the left side of the main aisle with aids and adjutants filling other seats. And on the right were the Bernays family and consular force backed by the American navy with officers from Great Lakes.

There were also the full choir—men, boys, women marching in white surplices and black caps. It is a wonderful choir, gorgeously effective, even militant as they swing along keeping pace with their song. There are girls in it with red hair and Burne-Jonesey faces, and young men born to sing in choirs, their rich voices mingling in the high nave. I always love the parts where the choir chants off-stage, as it were, and one hears the faint distant chorals coming and going. Just as I care for off-stage singing at the opera, it is so illusive, so plaintive.

I keep getting pleasant news from Paris. They say that people are all seeping back again from their châteaux and the Ritz is full up with officers in uniform and ladies in smart toilettes de guerre. The weather is perfectly charming and the very piquancy of the situation lends it indefinable allure.

The news from Herman Gade is most amusing. This Norwegian diplomate en disponibilité, who has a big 15th century house with double moats and drawbridges at Mesnil-St. Denis, has acquired a wartime clientèle of friends with children and nurses, and the usual fascinating American widow. The proximity of Arthur Moulton in his country house, the handsome plutocratic New Yorker who registers from Paris, adds color and excitement to the scene.

From England comes almost the same story. The weather is perfect and flowers are blooming still in London gardens. My London letters say that society is more than ever exciting. Claridges is crammed at luncheon, and so at night are the Berkeley and Savoy grill. And one meets interesting people without end who flow in from neighboring country houses. English friends who have refuged at Bermuda are now returning to England the best way they can, but returning.

Among French residents detained here by loss of passports is Mrs. Dudley Root, chic and lovely Ellen, who knows no way of getting back to her villa on the Mediterranean at Cap Guy. But parties, one after the other, are being given for her, luncheons and dinners of the liveliest. Denyse Root is staying the winter in Chicago. After all she was born here, and young girls have a rather thin time in France anyway, specially in wartime.

Among other strangers within our gates last week was William Vett of Copenhagen who sailed in to New York on a Norwegian ship. Mr. Vett is a cousin of Ove Vett, well known Chicago bachelor, and a handsome, blond, sailorly man who usually at this season navigates his yacht in the Mediterranean. He came over with his brother, Carl Vett, and the two men sailed yesterday for South America to be gone until late February. They go straight to Rio and expect to lose no time finding American Ambassador and Mrs. Caffery, who are friends.

To go rolling down to Rio is even more stylish this year than last. Already routed for Brazil are the Forsythe Sherfesees, who have been at "Ringwood," the old Ryerson place at Cooperstown, N. Y., where lives Jack Ryerson, Mrs. Sherfesee's son, during golfless intervals.

Mrs. Sherfesee has built herself at Cap Ferat, this side of Monte Carlo, one of the loveliest small houses that ever I expect to see. The floors are black, there is much chinoiserie, and the whole plant is perched on the side of rocky Cap Ferat like an aviary. Somerset Maugham is an habitué of "Bontoc" and Mrs. Sherfesee's tales of her amusing life on the French Riviera would keep one entertained for 1,000 and one nights.

Also in South America, but up high in the mountains of Columbia are the Stephen Tappan Tyngs. Our Lila Hotz of charming memory is now Lila Tyng of New York. The Tyngs are looking up gold mines, which sounds good to me, for a unique vacation.

Things of interest in the week to come are the concert of the Russian Trio Tuesday at the Arts club at half after 11, and on Sunday the great New York Philharmonic concert at the Auditorium for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital of Chicago. Last week 200 good seats were left. They sell the worst first. And today only a mere handful are to be had of nice fauteuils d'orchestre for November's most chic event.

COLORADO HONEYMOON

Mrs. George Robert Wilson was formerly Miss Gladys Wendt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wendt of 1033 Loyola avenue. Her marriage to the son of Mrs. J. D. Fisher of 4858 Hermitage avenue took place on Oct. 7. After a wedding trip to Colorado, Mr. Wilson and his bride are at home in Chicago.

Thanksgiving Key to Many Benefit Events

This Thanksgiving week traditionally is crowded with holiday events that manifest also a spirit of generosity toward others less fortunate than the merrymakers. Each year the woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital chooses this time to raise funds for the social service department of the hospital.

A Thanksgiving tea which the hospital group of the Fourth Presbyterian church will give tomorrow always is among the largest of these fund raising ventures. Mrs. Arthur M. Wirtz will open her home at 942 Lake Shore drive for the party, and Mrs. John Timothy Stone, Mrs. Harrison Ray Anderson, Mrs. Alva A. Knight, and Mrs. Allen A. Zaun will be assisting hostesses. Mrs. Charles S. Reed is chairman of the tea, with Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, and Mrs. H. H. Kittleman among other board members assisting with arrangements.

On Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 28, Mrs. James W. McCulloh, at her home at 4847 Kimbark avenue, will be hostess at another tea for the benefit of the hospital. Board members belonging to the United Church of Hyde Park, whose chairman is Miss Harriet F. Gilchrist, will sponsor this tea. Mrs. George L. Swift is in charge and Mrs. John P. Mentzer, Mrs. Edward L. Beattie, Mrs. George A. Blair, Mrs. George Gibson, Mrs. George G. Olmsted, and Mrs. James R. Webster are assisting with preparations.

The hospital circle of the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park already has given a tea, and groups of board members in other churches are receiving contributions at regular meetings this month. Thanksgiving donations also are being sought by individual board members. Mrs. W. B. McKeand of Hinsdale is chairman of the Thanksgiving offering committee of the woman's board, and Mrs. Kellogg Speed of Highland Park is vice chairman.

A Thanksgiving dance to be held by the Chicago Alumnæ club of Alpha Gamma Delta next Saturday evening will raise money for the summer camps maintained for underprivileged children by the sorority. The party will be held at the Graemere hotel, with Mrs. Dale G. Malone, president of the club, and Miss Dorothy Schwartz in general charge, and Miss Harriet Fox and Miss Lois Addington heading committees on arrangements.

Mrs. Dale G. Malone.
[Couper Photo.]

Some 800 underprivileged children each summer enjoy vacations at the sorority's summer camps at Jackson, Mich., and Welland, Ont. The camps are supervised by sorority members, and are supported by undergraduate chapters and alumnæ groups all over the country.

Miss Carol Wilson and Miss Yolande Sinascalchi will be awarded scholarships at the annual Thanksgiving luncheon of the Phi Beta Delta club of the University of Chicago, Saturday, at the Chicago Woman's club.

This event will mark the 41st anniversary of the club, which has members on every continent. Mrs. Charles Perrine will speak on "Early Days"; Miss Lillian Condit, on "Surprise in Asia"; Miss Alma Bauman, on "As We Did Not Like It," and Miss Anita Archer, on "Plans for an Active Season." Mrs. Ormond Julian and Mrs. Samuel Arthur jointly will discuss "Events of a European Season."

• • •

The annual pound party to replenish the larders of the St. Joseph Home for the Friendless will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home, 739 East 35th street. The guild of the home, headed by Mrs. Joseph F. Herrmann, is sponsoring the event, and has set a quota of 10,000 pounds of food. A program will be presented by Richard Keating and Miss Catherine Moran, with soloists of the St. Laurence church choir assisting. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Joseph F. Herrmann.
[Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Among the gay parties planned for Thanksgiving eve will be the annual semiformal dance of the Chicago Round Table group, Order of DeMolay, in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. Chicago, Woodlawn, Ravenswood, J. Frank Foster, Maywood, Waukegan, Austin, and Henry C. Klassey chapters are participating. Williams Schlosser of Austin chapter heads the committee on arrangements.

Alpha Kappa Omega Phi sorority will hold its annual Thanksgiving eve dance in the Tropical room of the Chicago Towers club. Miss Dorothy Knopf is general chairman, with all chapter presidents, including Miss Dorothy Lindgren, Miss June Johnson, Miss Ethel Pease, Miss Mary Jones, Miss Dagmar Johnson, Miss Mary Johns, and Miss Dorothy Cunliffe assisting. Miss Irma Fritz of Chicago is grand president.

Alpha Delta Pis in Chicago for the holiday are invited to a Thanksgiving supper-dance which the five Chicago alumnæ groups will give Friday evening at the Stevens hotel. Miss Peggy Humes of Oak Park is chairman of the party, with Miss Jean Schiffner of River Forest assisting.

Mrs. Howard R. Peterson heads the Chicago Alumnæ association of Alpha Delta Pi and Mrs. Harry W. Pearce, Mrs. N. F. Fischer, Mrs. H. D. Whitney, Miss Sara Jane Bannister, and Miss Dorothea Landry the five alumnæ chapters in the association.

The ninth annual concert and ball of the Club Oasis will be held this evening at the Hotel Sherman. A program will be presented by Stanley Rimkus, bass baritone of the Kaunas, Lithuania, Grand Opera company; Miss Helen Golden, opera singer; Miss Cecelia Hyman, pianist; Reo and Reta, dancers, and the Bit of Moscow quartet.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, August 2, 1891.

Dear Julia: Yesterday Will and I were witnesses of a strange sight, only a few blocks from our Rush street house. We had been driving and Will suggested that we get a glimpse of the lake before turning homeward. As we neared the shore, we saw people gathering about the cluster of frame houses which make up "Streeter's colony." Capt. Streeter is a familiar figure on the north side, where along the lake shore, he has put up several shanties, looking like Noah's arks. On this spot his ship was wrecked years ago, and he lived in the wreck for a time, until he was forced by the wear and tear of time to move on shore. Because the sand, as he claims, has drifted around this site, he feels that the land belongs to him, tho N. K. Fairbank and others who own land in the vicinity claim riparian rights antedating his. The block Streeter claims is bounded on the north by Superior street, on the south by an alley; on the west by St. Clair street; and on the east by the lake.

N. K. Fairbank.

Noisy and numerous inhabitants were emerging from the shacks as we drove up. Near by were the boathouses of Messrs. Avery, Corbin, and Slade, successful businessmen of Chicago. These men dislike to have the Streeter colony so near them, so they got permission of Mr. Fairbank to build a high fence to shut off the objectionable neighbors from their view. Will was so eager to see what was going on, he told Thomas our coachman, to drive near. I remained in the carriage while Will mingled with the crowd. Funny, isn't it, that crowds are masculine, tho ours is supposed to be the curious sex. I tell Will that what in women is "curiosity," in men is "the spirit of investigation."

"Looks as if they're going to have a row," he chuckled, as he got out of the victoria. "I'll bet the Cap'n won't let 'em put up a fence there."

Emerged then from the captain's shack his spouse and stanch defender Mrs. Maria Streeter. She demanded to know why all these wagons and workmen were trespassing on her husband's property, and when Mr. Morrison, attorney for the fence-builders, told her their permission came from Mr. Fairbank, she flew to get her husband.

Now my sympathies are always for the underdog, but here they were divided, for I know the Fairbanks and felt Mr. Fairbank wouldn't do anything unfair. The crowd increased till there were a thousand people standing around. As we watched, the captain himself appeared on the scene. Singling out the attorney as his chief enemy, he advanced with the look of a stage hero. On his head was a high hat of the civil war period. Once sleek, this headgear had seen so much hard wear that it looked like a disturbed cat with its fur on end. A Prince Albert coat, baggy trousers and a soft shirt completed his outfit. O no! I have omitted a crimson necktie.

"'Vast there!" roared the captain. "I forbid you to lay another board. You're trespassing." The attorney replied: "I understand Mr. Fairbank is the owner and he has given permission to build a fence here."

"Fairbanks nothin'," shouted Capt. Streeter. "I own the entire shore to St. Clair street, and I hold it at $750,000. Pay me that and you kin build all the fences you want to."

"What about Judge Tuley's ruling?" asked Mr. Morrison. The Capt. spat.

"Jedge Tuley don't know anything. My knowledge of riparian rights don't come from books and I know more about 'em than any one else in America."

Well, the fence was built. A policewagon came, the Sergeant threatening to arrest any disturbers of the peace, and this held the Capt. in check. He and Maria looked dejected, as they saw the crowd melting away, and the eight-foot fence standing on what he calls his property. Will says Judge Tuley's ruling establishes the claim of Mr. Fairbank, so I suppose the skirmishes will soon end and the Capt. be evicted. You will think Chicago a wild, lawless frontier town when you read this letter. But it is a dear old place.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

On the land claimed by George Wellington Streeter, great buildings now stand, including the Northwestern university group. But the "Cap'n" was to battle many years before he abandoned his "claim." His name persists in the appellation "Streeterville," applied to the land along the shore near Chicago avenue.

The school is in session all day Tuesday and Friday each week, with a Thursday evening meeting for business and professional women.

Pumpkin Pie Hint.

Here's a tip for pumpkin pie: when the pie is nearly done, carefully draw it to the edge of the oven and then sprinkle lightly with grated yellow cheese mixed with shredded nut meats. Return to the oven and when the pie is done it will have a delicate flavored crusty top.

National Head of D.A.R. Will Visit Chicago

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr., president general of the National Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, will be a guest of the Illinois society at a luncheon Monday, Nov. 27, at the Stevens hotel.

As the 50th anniversary of this patriotic organization approaches, Mrs. Robert is making a 13,000 mile tour in order to emphasize to every one of the 130,000 Daughters the growing importance of their citizenship work among the youth of the country and the foreign born.

In recent years more than 120,000 boys and girls have been organized into groups with civic and patriotic activities. Hundreds of students have been awarded scholarships enabling them to complete their education. Hundreds of others have been educated at schools maintained by the society.

The purpose of these and other projects of the Daughters of the American Revolution is to bring home to Americans, native born and foreign born alike, the value of the liberties won for them by the nation's founders.

Miss Helen McMackin of Salem, Ill., state regent, members of the state board and of chapters thruout the state, will attend the luncheon Nov. 27. Mrs. Vinton Earle Sisson of Winnetka, who is librarian general of the national society, also will be a special guest.

Mrs. J. De Forest Richards.

Mrs. Robert will broadcast over station WGES before the luncheon. She is the daughter-in-law of Henry M. Robert, the authority on parliamentary law, and herself has lectured on parliamentary law at Columbia university and the University of Maryland. Mrs. Robert's late husband was a professor at the United States Naval academy and her home is at Annapolis, but during her term of office Mrs. Robert is living in Washington, D. C., where the society has national headquarters. Mrs. J. De Forest Richards, regent of Chicago chapter, is making arrangements for Mrs. Robert's Chicago visit.

The Daughters' Chicago chapter will sponsor a benefit bridge tea and fashion show at 1:30 o'clock Saturday at the Stevens hotel, with Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Herbert Maass, program chairman, in charge. Proceeds will be divided among various educational and patriotic projects, among them the Americanism committee's activities at the Burnside settlement in Chicago's steel mill district.

Form Society to Aid Kin of French Airmen

By May Birkhead.

PARIS. Whatsoever the war is likely to offer in the way of spectacular events of movement, as contrasted with the comparative immobility of the trenches, is expected to come from the aviators. And when they are not engaged in the more striking feats they have a hard round of patrol duties and stern vigils that make the service a severe mental and physical strain. Feeling that they will undertake this routine service with more heart if they know that their wives and children are receiving adequate care, the I. P. S. A. has been created.

The I. P. S. A., an abbreviation for l'Amicale des Infirmières Pilotes et Secouristes de l'Air [the Society for the Care of Aviators' Families] was organized under the general ægis of the French Red Cross, and the Marquis de Lillers, president general of the Red Cross in France, is one of its founders. Other founders are M. Laurent Eynac, former air minister, and Baron de la Grange, president of the Aero Club de France. The active head is Mme. Jean Schneider.

An American committee is being formed in Paris to solicit money and gifts in kind in the United States. The honorary president is the widow of Marshal Lyautey, Mme. Jean Schneider is the active president, the secretary is Mrs. Charles Grey, wife of an aviator who was a member of the Lafayette escadrille in the world war and is now engaged in civilian refugee aid; Theodore Rousseau is the treasurer, and the chairman is Baronne de la Grance, the former Emily Sloane of New York.

The committee has already organized a dispensary at Le Bourget, and Mrs. Grey has presented it with a trailer that has full installation for surgical and medical relief, and has aroused great interest because it is so practical.

Also on the American committee are Herman Gade, an old-time Chicagoan, who has been staying on at his Château du Mesnil St. Denis, where Mr. and Mrs. Grey and their children passed several weeks in September and October.

Deb of Chicago to Be Pasadena Holiday Visitor

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Holiday festivities in Pasadena will be enhanced by the presence of one of Chicago's fall debutantes, Miss Josephine Zeiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Zeiss of Winnetka, who will arrive about Dec. 10 to spend two months with her aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond, in Bellmore Way. Her brother, Henry, Princeton junior, will be here a bit later for his Christmas vacation.

Mrs. Hammond has been in her new home here since April and is a permanent addition to the local Chicago colony — she and her two juniors, Robert and Barbara. They live next door to the young William Wilsons Jr.

Miss Georgia Clifford, Pasadena bride-elect of Kenneth Hempstead Hess of Wayne, Ill., leaves Pasadena today for a month's visit with her fiancé and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Miner Hess. She will return in time for Christmas. A few days after her arrival in Chicago Miss Clifford's grandmother, Mrs. Harry Montgomery of Evanston, will leave for her usual winter visit in Pasadena.

To bid Georgia farewell, Miss Anne Miller and her stepbrother, Hall Bradley of South Hill avenue, gave a cocktail party yesterday and among those who were there to give the attractive traveler a sendoff were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buckingham Sturges, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harris MacLeod, Bernice Banks, Judy Ridgway, Bessie Keith, and Harold Keith.

Back at the Huntington hotel from the Wianno club on Cape Cod, where he is manager during the summer, is Vincent T. Burns and his attractive young wife, together with young Vincent T. Jr. and 6 months old Michael. Mr. Burns will be on hand to welcome Chicagoans who spend their summers at Wianno and their winters in California. Edward C. Crossett, president of the club, Mrs Crossett, and their daughter, Carolyn, have taken a house this year in Holladay road for five months and will arrive in mid-December. The Seymour Wheelers assured him they probably will be out before the winter is over and Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks of Indianapolis, who now makes her home in Chicago, expects to come out, as does Mrs. George Jaeger. The T. G. Geraghtys are also probable visitors.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. William Onderdonk are two of Pasadena society's newest acquisitions. They have just arrived from Winnetka, lured by the move here of Mr. Onderdonk's sister and her husband, the Edwin Prices Jr. Joining the foursome for Christmas will be Mr. Price's sister, Miss Frances Price of Winnetka.

Special honors at the fall flower show went to the Stanley McCormick estate at Santa Barbara which literally "moved in" with two immense vans full of chrysanthemum plants and still another van of cut flowers.

Mrs. C. H. Matthiessen Jr. and Mrs. Ralph F. Burnham were first prize winners for mums and foliage displays among the Chicagoans who entered the show.

NEWLYWED

Mrs. Arthur Edwin Corydon is the former Miss Ruth Eveline Freeman of Oak Park. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Corydon of Oak Park took place on Sept. 18 in Sparta, Wis., where the bride's aunts, Mrs. Milton Carter Lewis and Miss Della Yotti, live. Mr. and Mrs. Corydon, who were married on the anniversary of the marriage of his parents, are at home at the Bryn Mawr hotel in Chicago. Their plans for a wedding trip to Italy were changed because of the war.

WEDDINGS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

Leah Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Bolotin, 3564 Lyndale avenue, to Solomon Lev, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lev, 3564 Lyndale avenue. The wedding will take place at 6:45 o'clock on Dec. 3 in the Grand ballroom of the Hotel Knickerbocker. The ceremony will be followed by dinner and dancing. Mr. Lev and his bride will motor to Florida on their wedding trip.

Julie Rosenthal, daughter of Mrs. Jack Rosenthal, 5110 Kenwood avenue, to Milton A. Huebsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius J. Huebsch, 5242 Hyde Park boulevard, to take place today at the home of the bride's mother.

Helene Lennette, to Arthur L. Neyens of Oak Park, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson of River Forest. The wedding took place on Oct. 31 at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Mr. Neyens and his bride are at home in Oak Park.

Clarice Newman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newman, 7016 Chappel avenue, to Marvin Perlman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Perlman of Plainfield, N. J. The wedding will take place Nov. 23 at the Windermere East hotel.

Essie Aliber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Aliber of Des Moines, Ia., to Jack Halevy, son of Mrs. Pessie Halevy of Chicago. The wedding will take place Nov. 23 at the home of the bride's parents.

Jean Harriss Rackley of Greensboro, N. C., to Frank J. Zipperer Jr., 6430 South Karlov avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zipperer of Greensboro. The wedding will take place on Dec. 7.

Linen Packs Help Solve the Gift Problem

What do you know about china? The booklet, "Learn About China Before You Buy," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decoration, gives brief histories of the most important potters and their works. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.

There's something so universally convenient and charming about place mats for the dining table that we sometimes wonder how we ever got along without them. For it wasn't so many years ago that tablecloths and only tablecloths were used.

Of course, handsome damask cloths and napkins will always be part of the equipment of your linen closet. But you'll find that for everyday wear and for many formal occasions, too, you will use place mats. You can pay almost any price for them. There are ones of thin cork with gay, painted decorations, ideal for the breakfast nook in the kitchen, or for the dinette. There are others of transparent sheets of plastic, hand decorated in stunning flower designs, for the luncheon party. They are fairly expensive because of the hand work and their newness.

And then there are all the countless varieties of place mats in linen, in silky damask, and in lace. These last are truly elegant and can be used on even a most formal occasion. With silver candelabra and low silver bowls of cut flowers on a mellow old mahogany table they create a beautiful picture.

And now an Evanston woman, Mrs. Virginia D. Graham, has designed a clever holder for keeping place mats in perfect condition months on end. No more wrinkling or curling of edges. You simply lay them between attractive composition boards covered in washable white leatherette, snap a wide silk elastic band over the boards, and there you are! Your place mats will be kept wrinkle-free and immaculate always.

There are smaller sized sets for napkins, for cocktail napkins, and for doilies. And you can have them monogrammed, if you wish. What grand Christmas gifts they will make!

Get them in sets, for a really handsome present. And treat your linen shelves to these packs, too.

Because they have been so convenient for table linens, they are now made in the correct sizes for women's gloves, veils, and neckwear. They are ideal gadgets to have when you go traveling, for you can pack your crushable small things in them and then forget about them, knowing they'll be fresh and in perfect condition when you take them out of your bags.

These sets, too, would make unusual and welcome Christmas gifts. And they're so easy to keep clean, being washable.

For men's white dress vests and ties there are more of these packs, made just the right sizes. They'll fit neatly in bureau drawers, and for the man who travels a lot they're indispensable conveniences, slipping easily into a Gladstone bag. Nice suggestions for Christmas presents for the man who is hard to get things for. He'll wonder how he ever kept his dress vests and ties unmussed without them.

Miss Harriet E. Zoline Marries Chester Zelenka

Miss Harriet E. Zoline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Zoline of Oak Park, will become the bride of Chester M. Zelenka on Dec. 3. The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock at the Drake hotel, and will be followed by a dinner in the Gold Coast room. Mr. Zelenka is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Zelenka of Chicago. He and his bride will go to Florida and the Bahama Islands on their wedding trip.

Miss Anne Gruner and David Wilson Wed Yesterday

Announcement is made of the marriage yesterday in St. Louis, Mo., of Miss Anne Gruner to David M. Wilson, son of Francis S. Wilson, chief justice of the Supreme court of Illinois, and Mrs. Wilson of Chicago. The wedding took place at the Church of St. Michael's and St. George, with a reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Philip Gruner, 3 Aberdeen place, St. Louis. After a short trip, Mr. Wilson and his bride will be at home in Chicago.

Indians Start Holidays with Pagan Rites

By Frederic Babcock.

Just as they have been doing for hundreds of years, the Zuni Indians of southwestern New Mexico will open the Christmas season with a pagan celebration that hasn't the slightest connection with Christmas.

The festival is always held either late in November or early in December. It marks the arrival of the Shalakos—the messengers of the gods—to bless the new homes.

Zuni women work over their outdoor adobe ovens, cooking large quantities of corn bread and meat in preparation for the coming of the Shalakos from the realm of the gods across the river. Gayly dressed Navajos and other tribesmen pour into the pueblo.

The crowds, milling and pushing, respectfully avoid the homes marked by feathers as a sign that they are awaiting the blessing. The six messengers appear on the opposite bank of the river and go thru a ceremonial there before dancing into Zuni.

Nine foot masks worn by the Shalakos make them appear like fabulous birds. Underneath are Indians who have been trained since childhood for the honor of stepping along under the cumbersome finery. At each new home weirdly daubed clowns prance around outside while the messengers preside in the living room. There are dancing and feasting. Everybody gorges himself. The housewarming lasts thru the night and until noon of the following day.

Experts say this custom dates back for perhaps 15 centuries. In another New Mexico town—Madrid, perched high in a mountain gorge in the north central section—there is an observance only 15 years old, but almost as interesting to the tourist. At that time the grimy coal mining camp becomes bedazzled with 40,000 multicolored Christmas lights.

Started by a few of the 400 miners living in the camp, the celebration has become a community affair. The work is done after the mine shift is over at the end of each day. Every home is provided with a tree and lights. The decorative features include a miniature town of Bethlehem and life size figures of the holy family, all outlined by flood and search lights. This year a 33 foot wooden figure of Christ will overlook the spectacle.

Last year some 75,000 persons visited the coal camp to view the lighting. They found the observance to be strictly noncommercial. The miners had nothing to sell the visitors.

Many of the Indian and native festivals of New Mexico are focused on the Christmas season. Guadalupe day is celebrated Dec. 12 at Santa Fe and in several of the Rio Grande pueblos. Christmas eve and Christmas day dances in the pueblos and quaint plays in the Spanish American communities for years have been attracting throngs of travelers.

Yellowstone to Stay Open for Winter Sports

Big game spectacles and trips thru portions of the park by automobile or on skis will be the leading features on Yellowstone's winter program.

Fifty-two miles of highway in the northern section will be kept open thruout the winter. Accommodations are to be available at Gardiner and Livingston, Mont.

Approximately 65,000 persons entered the park from Oct. 1, 1938, to June 20, 1939, the first season in which a definite winter program was planned.

A buffalo round-up will be held in December. In January and February visitors will be invited to view the wild life show of elk, deer, antelope, mountain sheep, and buffalo. Most of the skiing hills lie near the road in the Tower Falls locality.

THEY SWIM—NOT SING—FOR THEIR SUPPER

When the dinner gong sounds, these girls are ready to respond. The "pool buffet" is an innovation at one of Miami Beach's hotels.

NATURE'S WONDERS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—To the Travel Editor: I've just finished reading a book compiled by Harlean James, "Romance of the National Parks." My pleasure, bot hin the reading and in the fact that such a book is available to every one at our public libraries, is indescribable.

You who wish to find a place to go vacationing, or to recuperate and regain your health, can find just what you are looking for in our own country. And at the same time you can learn about some of Nature's greatest wonders.

Those of you who, in pre-war days, spent your time and money visiting moldy ruins and other ancient scenes will be thankful that at last you can see your own country and still retain your claim to having been to a fashionable place of recreation.

There may be places a bit too remote or hard to get to, but there also are many that can be reached by motor, train, bus, and even airplane, with little or no difficulty.

Let's go see America! A. H.

THE MARINE STUDIOS.

Maywood, Ill., Nov. 12.—To the Travel Editor: I wonder if your readers would not like to read this letter, written by my son, Walter, when he was in Florida last spring:

"Yesterday we visited St. Augustine, the oldest city in the United States. There were many interesting things to see. Among them were the oldest schoolhouse, about the size of our garage, with sleeping quarters upstairs, and old Fort Marion, started in 1672, and taking 84 years to complete. The old dungeon inside was a swell place to keep out of.

"In an Indian burial ground, several hundred years old, were skeletons lying side by side and preserved with a lacquer coating.

"Then we drank from the Fountain of Youth, but it tasted no better than any other water.

"We went to Marineland. It is called Marine Studios, and is the largest aquarium in the world. In it is every species of fish found in the Atlantic. There are three of the largest sharks, and many smaller ones weighing between 200 and 300 pounds. Then the porpoise, friendly to man but a deadly enemy of the shark.

"The stinger fish looks something like a large turtle. When its stinger is rammed into you it cannot be withdrawn without ripping your flesh to pieces. It is about as poisonous as a rattlesnake. Then there are fish that looked as if they are wearing convicts' suits. When a large fish attacks them they blow themselves up and become as wide as they are long.

"You see these specimens thru glass windows under the surface of the water. A man goes to the bottom of the pool, which is very deep, in a regular diving equipment. The large fish must have 50 pounds of food each day.

"We have seen enormous orange, grapefruit and pecan groves. The orange blossom is so sweet you'd think you were in a perfume factory.

"It is 1,207 miles from Oak Park to Indian River City, and 98 per cent of the way is farm land or unused property. But it is grand here, and we surely are enjoying our trip."

MRS. J. L. GALLOND.

SOUTHWARD BOUND.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 15.—To the Travel Editor: I plan to drive to Mexico City in March and would like to correspond with some one who has taken the same trip.

EARLY ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—To the Travel Editor: I am gathering all available material on the history of early Illinois and surrounding territory for a novel. I would very much appreciate cards and letters from travelers and readers who can give me information which they have compiled and which never has been released.

Would also like to hear from those who enjoy corresponding and are interested in history. I have recently completed a book about the Hussite movement of old Bohemia.

My address is 2516 S. Trumbull avenue.

Miami's Fishing Tourney Heads Sport Program

Miami, Fla., Nov. 18.—Miami's fifth annual $10,000 fishing tournament will begin Jan. 7.

Last year 124,000 persons entered the meet and caught more than 400,000 fish. This year 200,000 are expected. Half of them will be women. The contest is to last 99 days. More than 75 individuals, firms, and associations will donate prizes.

With Seminole Indian guides reporting an abundance of wild turkey in the Everglades, visiting sportsmen are primed for the hunting season, which starts Monday. The open season for deer and dove lasts thru Jan. 31; for duck, geese, coot, and snipe, thru Dec. 29. Unrestricted warfare has been declared by the state game commission against hawks, owls, bobcat, rabbit, weasel, and fox. Hunters also will gun for bear, panther, coon, civet cat, mink, and opossum.

The curtain will be rung up next Saturday on the opening golf tourney, the Thanksgiving week men's amateur at the Miami Biltmore Country club.

A bridge party in Civic center Dec. 4, the national Jitter-Congo contest in Bayfront park Dec. 12 and 13, and a Negro music festival Dec. 7 are activities planned by the city recreation department. The bridge party which will see more than 2,000 players in action at one time. The Jitter-Congo, featuring 30 bands from greater Miami's night clubs, is to be held for the benefit of the Empty Stocking fund. Headlining the Negro musical will be a chorus of 800 voices, singing spirituals.

Hollywood's 80 night dog racing season opens Dec. 1 and runs thru March 2. Racing dates for West Flagler, Biscayne, and Miami Beach Kennel clubs are Dec. 28 thru March 29.

The University of Miami will begin its symphony concerts Dec. 11 under the baton of Dr. Arnold Volpe, with Alexander Kipnis, Metropolitan opera basso, as soloist.

With tourist travel restricted abroad, Pan American Airways has launched a $6,000,000 expansion program to improve flying to Latin American countries out of Miami. Most of this sum will be spent on new planes. Airport facilities are to be enlarged and schedules speeded up.

Evanston Man Plans Southern Show Place

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 18.—Charles Speed, retired public utility executive of Evanston, Ill., is developing the estate of the late Dr. Foster A. Sondley, near Asheville, into what is expected to become one of the show places of this section of the south. The 450 acre estate is situated on the slope of Elk mountain. Mr. Speed, a lover of flowers, plans extensive floral plantings there. Thousands of gladioli will be included.

Travelogue.

"Where the Deer and the Antelope Play" is the title of the travel talk to be given at the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. The natural color movie is of Yellowstone park and the Teton mountains. The talk will be by Sam Campbell, "the philosopher of the forest."

Old Italian ... Show Highli... of Exhibit...

Old Italian Art Show Highlight of Exhibitions

By Eleanor Jewett.

The most exciting news of the moment is the exhibition of the magnificent old Italian paintings now hanging in the Art institute. They will remain there until Jan. 10. Numerous letters have poured in asking the dates of the exhibit and what exactly are the works which are included in the show. The dates we have just given and as to what there is in the exhibition, first there is the eternally beautiful "Birth of Venus," by Botticelli, from the Uffizi gallery in Florence, and, second, there is the familiar and greatly loved "Madonna della Sedia," by Raphael, which comes from the Pitti gallery in Florence.

"The Christening of St. John," by Fra Angelico, from the Royal Museum of San Marco, Florence; "Madonna and Child with St. John and Catherine," by Giovanni Bellini, from the Royal Gallery of the Academy, Venice; the "Portrait of a Lady," by Bronzino [Royal gallery, Turin]; "Madonna and Child," by Correggio [Royal Estense gallery, Modena]; "Portrait of Pope Paul III.," by Titian [National museum, Naples]; "St. Augustine Healing the Plague Stricken," by Tintoretto [Royal Uffizi gallery, Florence]; "Portrait of a Young Man," by Lorenzo Lotto, from Milan; the "St. George," by Mantegna, from the Royal Gallery of the Academy, Venice, which also sends Palma Vecchio's "Virgin and Child with Three Saints"; "The Crucifixion," by Massaccio, from the Royal gallery, Naples, and Parmigianino's "Portrait of a Lady" from the same gallery; the "A Council of the Knights of Malta," by Tiepolo, from the Municipal museum, Udine, and "Portrait of a Lady" [called "La Fornarina"], by Sebastiano del Piombo [Royal Uffizi gallery, Florence], complete the distinguished list.

There are seven pieces of sculpture in the exhibit. For the first time in history an original sculpture by Michelangelo is on display in Chicago. It is the beautiful marble from the Bargello in Florence, "Madonna and Child with the Young St. John." The other sculptors bear familiar names, too. You will find an exquisite terra cotta by Andrea della Robbia, "The Annunciation"; Verrocchio's "David"; Donatello's "Bust of Young Man" and Lorenzo Bernini's "Portrait of Costanza Buonarelli" in marble. The "Hercules and Antaeus," by Pollaiuolo is a bronze; the "Portrait of Eleanora of Aragon," by Francesco Laurana, a marble.

The exhibition has been beautifully installed. It is of such interest and historical importance no one should miss it, but, beyond that, it is so significant of the enduring quality of fine craftsmanship, intelligent painting, beauty, and appeal of subject that, again, no one should miss it. The exhibit is chiefly religious in theme and deeply inspirational. It has all the qualifications of an astoundingly brilliant exhibit, a rare exhibit, one that can never be repeated. To see Botticelli and Raphael in the original in Chicago! And their greatest paintings. The incredible is the truth. No one should miss the opportunity the Art institute has brought to the middle west; no one should fail to see these long to be remembered, greatly to be talked of Italian masterpieces.

The annual international exhibition of lithographs and wood engravings is on view in the print galleries of the Art institute. Prints are here from foreign countries which were shipped before the war. Twenty-one countries are represented. The jury of selection was made up of Peggy Bacon, Asa Cheffetz, and Todros Geller.

• • •

Tom Wilder of Ravinia is taking time by the forelock and announcing a one man show of his recent pictures yesterday, today, and tomorrow in his Ravinia studio. This makes his eleventh annual show. This year's work for him includes fifty Mexican sketches, the results of a very pleasant stay he made in Mexico last winter. The exhibit is sparkling, gay, vivacious, and so enjoyable it would be a pity to miss it.

The second important event at the Art institute just now is the "Half a Century of American Art" exhibition in the east wing galleries. In the first gallery are beautiful examples of the craft of George Inness, Wyant, Eastman Johnson, Hunt, La Farge, Childe Hassam, and Twachtman. From these artists, whose value is generally recognized, the exhibit brings us to the present day.

An interesting side light on Chicago painters is the showing of work by three artists in a single family, all of whom have made names for themselves. They are Adam Emory Albright and his twin sons, Ivan Le Lorraine and Malvin Marr, the latter better known now in painting circles for his self-given nom de plume of Zsisley.

A stunning show has been placed on view thru Nov. 25 at the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue. In the first room is a glittering group of impressions of Mexico by Susan Ricker Knox, a gay and comprehensive show with paintings so sparkling and true that the sight of them is nearly as good as a trip to Mexico itself. Her little Mexican children are not a bit overdone; the children in the flesh are exactly as angelic and lovely as these. I do not remember any country where the street children are as beautiful as are the Mexican peasant children. The beauty of the youngsters, boys as well as girls, is a feature of Mexico. Mrs. Knox has made the most of her pretty models and their faithful friend, the little, willing, gray Mexican burro.

In the larger gallery is hanging a comprehensive exhibit of landscapes by Frank C. Peyraud and portraits and flower decorations by Mrs. Peyraud. There are many splendid pictures in this room. One of the finest of the landscapes shows the Skokie valley spread out like a gorgeous carpet of varicolored fields, cut by a shallow stream whose green banks make an intriguing motif thru the browns and darker greens of the meadow and farm lands, under a sky of white clouds, thru which the sun strikes. The light and shadows on the fields are beautiful and the sky, with its varied ranges of white, gray, and blue, is equally beautiful. It is one of the greatest paintings Mr. Peyraud has done.

The Peyraud landscapes are not confined to Illinois nor to one season of the year. They are alike in the solidity of their painting and the fine, sound note they strike of experienced craftsmanship.

Mrs. Peyraud supplements her husband's exhibit in gracious manner. Several of her portraits are particularly well handled, all are interesting. Her flower studies are serious and dignified. The gallery is one of those all lovers of good painting should visit before the exhibition closes.

"VIRGIN AND CHILD WITH THREE SAINTS"

This beautiful example of Palma Vecchio is one of the masterpieces of Italian art, an exhibition which opened yesterday at the Art institute and will remain on view to Jan. 9.

Former YWCA Official Will Lecture Here

Miss Anne Guthrie, former executive secretary of the Chicago Young Women's Christian association, will draw on years of varied experience in many parts of the world when she lectures in Chicago this week and next on "Women's Part in World Affairs." Her first talk will be given Tuesday evening at Ida Noyes hall, 1212 East 59th street, under the joint auspices of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. and the University of Chicago student Y. W. C. A. During her stay in Chicago Miss Guthrie will be a guest at the McCormick Memorial residence, 1001 North Dearborn street.

Miss Anne Guthrie. [Delar Photo.]

For the last five years Miss Guthrie has been advisory secretary to the Y. W. C. A. in the Philippines, and in recent months she has traveled in China, Manchukuo, Corea, Japan, Indo-China, Siam, Bali, and Malaya. She has been working with foreign Y. W. C. A.'s since she left Chicago in 1929 to go to South America. For three years Miss Guthrie was metropolitan executive secretary in Chicago and also has worked with the organization on the west coast. She is a graduate of Leland Stanford university and at one time was dean of girls there. During the war she was in charge of the Y. W. C. A. hostess house at Bremerton, Wash.

"Another point of view on women in this country and abroad will be expressed by Faith Hunter Dodge in a talk before the Chicago Altrusa club at a dinner meeting tomorrow at the Chicago Woman's club. Miss Dodge was the official delegate from this country to the second inter-American conference on education at Santiago, Chile. She will speak on "Inter-American Relations of Business and Professional Women." Mrs. Stella Ford Walker has arranged the program.

Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, considered an outstanding leader of world Protestantism, will speak at the opening luncheon of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews tomorrow noon at Adelard's restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. Dr. Leiper will discuss "Democracy's Foundations." He is secretary of the department of relations with churches abroad for the Federal Council of Churches of Christ and is secretary of the American section of the World Council of Churches. Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai temple, will preside.

The woman's committee of the Round Table has arranged this program for the organization's entire membership. Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell is chairman and will be a hostess. Others will be Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, president of the Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. William S. Hefferan, member of the board of education; Mrs. Arthur Manheimer, Mrs. James M. Yard, Mrs. Irving Florsheim, Mrs. Richard M. Hallinan, and Miss Lilace Reid Barnes.

Of particular interest to those with a literary bent should be Theodore Maynard's lecture on "My Literary World" at 3:30 o'clock today before the Charles Carroll forum at the Palmer House. This India born novelist, critic, and poet will discuss authors of his acquaintance, among them Edwin Arlington Robinson, Robert Frost, Padraic Colum, Van Wyck Brooks, Edna St. Vincent Millay, and Henry L. Mencken.

Another unusual program will be that of the Women's Overseas Service league tomorrow evening, when Chicago members will describe their own experiences in the world war. The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock at 410 South Michigan avenue.

The University of Wisconsin Alumnæ club will sponsor a tea and program from 4 until 6 o'clock today at the Georgian hotel in Evanston in order to raise money for its scholarship fund.

• • •

The only amateur moving pictures said to have been taken of the excavations at Persepolis will be shown by Dr. Samuel J. Burrows following a dinner given for him and Mrs. Burrows Friday evening at the Chicago College club, 30 North Michigan avenue. Dr. Burrows will speak on "Bagdad and Beyond" and will show colored moving pictures of Persia, Turkey, Syria, Palestine, Iraq, and Egypt.

Two Contests for Composers Are Announced

Of interest to composers of Illinois is the announcement of two contests, one sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs and the other by the Lake View Musical society.

The federation's contest, which is a preliminary to a nation-wide contest under the auspices of the National Federation of Music Clubs, is open to all native or naturalized Americans who have lived in this state a year prior to the closing date of the contest next March.

Cash awards, guaranteed publication of the prize winning choral entry, and presentation at the spring convention of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs are in store for the winning entries, which also will be eligible for competition in the national contest.

There are three classifications for the contest: compositions for voice, piano, or any solo instrument; composition for stringed ensembles, and choral numbers in three or four part arrangements.

Student composers will receive special attention, in line with the policy of the National and State Federations of Music Clubs to encourage young musicians.

Mrs. Marjorie Elliott, composer and pianist, 563 Oakdal avenue, Glencoe, is chairman of this contest, and also of the contest sponsored by the Lake View Musical society. Mrs. Elliott won the federation composers' contest last year. Women composers of Chicago and its suburbs are invited to enter their compositions in three categories, choral compositions, chamber music, and solos, for the Lake View contest. Cash awards will be given to the winners in each classification of the contest. Feb. 15, 1940, is the closing date. The prize winning choral compositions will be published.

The Lake View Musical society, now in its 44th season, is headed by Mrs. Hiram B. Kadish. Its membership includes 318 musicians and music lovers.

The guild will present Count Giovanni Cardelli, authority on opera, in a lecture, "Verdi and His Operas," tomorrow morning at the Georgian hotel in Evanston. Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy of Evanston, recording secretary of the guild, has planned the program. A number of luncheons will follow.

Tuesday afternoon Howard Talley of the University of Chicago department of music will talk on "Madame Butterfly" under the auspices of the guild at the Reynolds club, 57th street and University avenue. These lectures are two of a series sponsored by the guild, and are free to guild members. Tickets may be obtained at the guild office, 20 North Wacker drive. Mrs. James G. McMillan heads the organization.

The Musicians Club of Women will sponsor a concert by Stanley Fletcher, pianist, tomorrow morning at the Arts club.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs will open her home at 1336 North State parkway for a recital of American songs and compositions by Richard Gordon of the Chicago City Opera company and Alice Landgraf, pianist. Tea will be served. Mrs. Ralph T. Winston is president.

A lecture recital on "Modern Music and Symbolism" will be presented by Mary Wickerham, soprano and commentator, before the Chicago Musical Arts club at 4 o'clock today at the Fine Arts building. Eulalia Kober Stade, pianist, also will appear on the program. A tea and reception will follow. Mrs. Charles Pardee is president.

The Chicago Artists association will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a program Tuesday evening at Curtiss hall, 410 South Michigan avenue. Founded in 1914 by a small group of professional artists to further music and allied arts, the club now includes in its membership, besides professional artists, associate members who are art lovers, and young student artists.

A $100 scholarship will be awarded by the association at the close of this season.

Many former presidents and charter members will be guests at the program Tuesday. Mrs. Rosalie B. Didier will speak on the early history of the club. Paula Doering heads the committee which has arranged the program. Amy Leslie Toskey is president.

Viennese Waltz IN CHAMPAGNE COLORS

Winter's "champagne-nights" will see the revival of one of the most heavenly and romantic of waltzes—the Viennese Waltz. And to match its immortal grace, you must waltz in a whirling, billowing-skirted gown from Carson's new collection of Viennese Waltz Gowns. Choose the rustling taffeta above. Or the drifting foam of ruffled net we sketch below, and then when the lights go up and the violins begin to shimmer with Strauss, you'll know it's the most glorious night you've ever known and people will talk for weeks about how lovely you looked.

Hide Convent from Officials for 84 Years

By Anson Brown.

PUEBLA, MEXICO. Mexico is such a storehouse of fascinating information that it is hard to know where to begin or stop. Down here in Puebla, for example, is a convent that until five years ago had been hidden from the authorities since 1857.

Reposing in a bottle near the main altar is the human heart of the founder, Archbishop Manuel Fernandez de Sahagun. He built the Convent of Santa Monica in 1688.

In 1857 the reform laws under Benito Juarez closed all monasteries in Mexico, yet for some unknown reason this one, out of many in Puebla, was overlooked.

Today the convent is open to the public so that visitors may wander around the place and marvel at the ancient tapestries and the hidden dungeons.

After an easy drive from Mexico City I picked up a guide in Puebla and was driven down a narrow street lined with two story buildings. At length we stopped in front of a doorway which looked no different from any of the others. Here I paid 12 cents [this included the guide's admission fee!] and was led upstairs into a small dining room. My guide closed the door, the only apparent exit.

I noticed a table, two chairs, and a cupboard with three shelves. On the floor was an earthen jug, and behind the jug was a small electric push button. Friend guide pressed the button. A bell could be heard in the distance. He pulled the shelves from the cupboard and pushed against the back. It swung inward, revealing a room beyond.

I stepped gingerly thru the opening and found myself in the mother superior's office—a strange place littered with books and a statue of John the Baptist. The darkness was pierced by a dim electric light. As the guide began his story I whiffed a bit of Sherlock Holmes.

The convent was in the middle of a square block surrounded by connecting homes whose families had protected and secreted the institution for the last 82 years. It was self-supporting, with the nuns slipping their embroidery work out to the local market, where it would be sold.

In 1934, I was told, a Mexican girl who knew of the existence of the convent went to the mother superior in an attempt to gain admittance. She wanted to become a nun, but had no references, and so was refused. Seeking revenge, she told her story to the Mexico City authorities.

A few days later detectives descended on the house and spent a full day searching before they discovered the secret. They pressed the button, and the cupboard door swung slowly open, revealing the mother superior in her robes. When she saw them, so the story goes, she screamed "Police!" and promptly fainted.

The sisters had been warned. Thirty-two escaped in street clothes thru another exit, and altho 18 were caught they were later freed, since the present government had no real grievance against them.

As the story unveiled I was led into the office bathroom. The light was so dim that I could scarcely make out the tub and hot water heater. I was told that all the plumbing was installed by the nuns themselves, since no man was ever allowed there. But where from here?

The guide said: "Watch!" He moved the firewood box, disclosing an opening two feet square at the base of the wall behind it. On hands and knees we crawled thru the tunnel into a room faced by a balcony and a beautiful patio.

All the rooms here, the cells, and the patio with its fruit trees formerly were occupied by the novices. Here they lived for three years until admitted to the main convent.

Along the walls of the balcony were large oil paintings, done by the nuns and depicting how each of the disciples had died. Gruesome pictures they were, some with spears thru their bodies, another with his head almost severed, and still another with his body cut in halves longitudinally. As the guide talked he often turned his back, and out would come the camera for some forbidden pictures—pictures which I wanted desperately, for the government has put a ban on all cameras inside the convent.

Our trail led us on into a small chapel in the interior of the rambling building. On either side was a row of chairs, backed by crowns of thorns.

The government has wisely preserved all of this, even to the embroidery work, exhibited in the various cells; delicate handkerchiefs, children's clothes, large beautiful cloaks of solid gold thread, and religious gowns of embroidered gold. Some of these, tho not the work of the nuns, are priceless treasures dating back to the time of Cortez.

Deep in a dungeon-like tomb under one of the larger buildings is a sizeable cell where we were entrenched in darkness. Of a sudden a small spotlight went on. I was amazed. In front of us was the scene of "The Last Supper," life size figures carved from wood, and so realistic that I felt we could sit down and eat with them. There was the Christ and the 12 disciples—even to Judas, dressed in a blue cloak, with the bag of money dangling from his hand at the side of his chair.

How the nuns had even been able to do anything so artistic and real was beyond me. I felt I had dropped back thru the centuries and was out of place in my slacks and polo shirt. Even the guide ceased his incessant chatter for a moment. Then once more we climbed hidden stairs, traveled hidden hallways, until an unseen door brought us out into the warmth and brilliance of the Puebla streets again.

But I can't forget the scene of "The Last Supper" in the depths of that strange place. It is one of those rare, unexpected scenes that will never be forgotten.

Every Night Is Carnival Night in New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Nov. 18.—Nearly 40 balls will be included in the forthcoming carnival season in New Orleans.

The season opens officially on Jan. 6, with the ball of the Twelfth Night Revelers, but actually on Dec. 26, with the ball of Les Pierettes.

Beginning Jan. 5, there will be one or more carnival balls each night, excluding Sunday, until Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 6.

The carnival season in New Orleans is separate from the Mardi gras period, in that the former is of a private and the latter of a public nature. The Mardi gras period will begin on Jan. 31 and end on Feb. 6, and will be marked by parades and widespread masking on the final day.

Carnival balls in New Orleans are elaborate social affairs, involving the expenditure of thousands of dollars. Admittance is by invitation.

More of the Sun.

Commonest mistake about Finland is that, because it is a northern country, it must be cold. Actually it is as warm as the south of England or northern France. And there is more of the sun because the days are longer.

New Mexico to Tell the World

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 18.—To focus the attention of the traveling public on New Mexico during the Coronado Cuarto centennial in 1940—a celebration commemorating the 400th anniversary of the exploration of the state by Francisco Vasquez Coronado in 1540—the greatest advertising campaign in the state's history is being planned.

The New Mexico tourist bureau's advertising budget for 1940 totals $135,000, an increase from $60,000 for the present year.

Approximately $27,000 has been set aside for newspaper advertising, an increase of nearly 400 per cent over the largest previous sum the bureau has invested in this form of promotion.

Gondolas Returning to Venetian Canals

VENICE, Italy, Nov. 11.—The gondola, historic craft of Venice, is coming back again to the lagoons and canals, from which it had been driven by the more easily operated motor boat. Restricted use of gasoline driven vehicles is the reason.

When the Doges ruled the Adriatic, Venice boasted thousands of gondolas. Today there are little more than 500.

LAST MAN HANGED!

THE LAST MAN hanged in Illinois walked to the gallows with a faltering step. It was dawn on Oct. 10, 1928. His face was tense as he struggled to appear calm. Two guards held his arms.

His name was Charles Shader, and he was known to have committed eight murders. As his small figure mounted the scaffold steps the 125 witnesses could see in the dim light that he was smoking a cigaret. A minute later he stood silently clutching himself as the grim loop of hemp was tightened in place about his neck.

A few hours before he had said with characteristic bravado: "What's the difference? I'd rather be strung up than go back to the penitentiary. The public don't owe me sympathy, and I don't care if I don't get it. Just let everybody remember that I never squawked."

This youthful killer had not at first accepted his final capture so philosophically. Immediately after his arrest by a daring police officer who had got the drop on him by a clever ruse he muttered to his captor: "I just wisht I'd thought you were the law. You'd have been drilled quick!"

Those bitter words require the telling of a story.

The man in the white overalls wiped the sweat off his neck with his left hand. With his right he kept on painting the house, making quick, even strokes. The long shadows of the porch posts on the lawn inched toward the steps.

It was just 8:30 of a July morning in South Chicago in the year 1928, but already the man felt the heat of the day, and his face was dirty with sweat and paint. He was a big man with keen brown eyes and a determined mouth. He did not look like a typical house painter. Something about the way he moved his 230 pounds reminded one of a panther.

A Three-Gun-Man Meets a Brave Cop!

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

Walter G. Storms was a sergeant of the Chicago detective bureau on vacation, taking advantage of his leisure to brighten up the house. As he applied the wet bristles to the boards Storms' eyes were on his work. He felt no inkling of approaching drama. Bullets and danger and man-hunts were in another world. He was a family man doing a chore with a paint brush.

And then he heard a familiar voice: "Hello, Walter!"

Storms was not pleased by the grinning face of the man approaching from the driveway. It was an old acquaintance who had lately developed a habit of coming to him for advice. His mind groped for a defensive reply.

"I've got news for you, Walter," said the man. "Shader's in town. I just saw him."

Storms opened his eyes at this unexpected statement. This was news indeed, if true. Charles Shader was the most notorious criminal of the day. Having escaped after being sentenced to be hanged, he could commit murder as often as he wanted without fear of added punishment. He would be a highly dangerous customer in an arrest, but if he were in the neighborhood—well, Walter Storms knew his duty. Vacation or no vacation, he must arrest Shader or die in the attempt.

To give some idea of what this daring police officer was up against, let us review Charles Shader's career as it stood at that time. He was a thin youth of 25 with a boyish face, long hair, a downy little mustache, and the droopy lips of a degenerate. He was known to have killed eight persons.

When he was 18 he killed his father. A jury acquitted him on the plea that he was defending his mother. A few months later he was sentenced to six months in the house of correction for two burglaries.

At 19 he was charged with the murder of his 16-year-old sister in a barn behind his mother's home at 2906 Wentworth avenue. His mother saved him by offering an alibi.

A few weeks after that Shader started his career of robbery in a big way. He worked with a 16-year-old Negro companion named Frank Lee. On Jan. 26, 1922, Harry J. Busse, a policeman, was killed at Garfield boulevard and Dearborn street during an attempted robbery by Shader and Lee. The two boys were arrested and identified as Busse's murderers. And then witnesses began to connect Shader with other crimes. In all he was charged with eleven robberies, a burglary, and a sex crime, besides the murder.

After the two youths pleaded guilty to Busse's murder they were sentenced to life imprisonment in Joliet. Shader remained there for four years.

On May 5, 1926, seven notorious "lifers" shot their way out of the new "escapeproof" prison at Stateville, near Joliet, killing Deputy Warden Peter N. Klein and kidnaping the chief of the guards and a trusty.

These seven desperadoes were Bernardo Roa, James B. Price, Shader, and four others. A wide hunt was immediately launched, and within three days six of them had been recaptured. Price escaped. Shader was found unarmed in a freight car at La Salle, Ill.

On Nov. 7, 1926, all seven, including the missing Price, were sentenced to be hanged Feb. 11, 1927, for the murder of Warden Klein. Execution was later stayed until July 15, and the killers were put in the Will county jail.

On March 11 all six men made their second attempt to break out. Shader and two others were herded back to their cells, while Roa and the two remaining got away. But these three were captured shortly afterward in South Chicago, where they had killed a policeman, and were returned to the Will county jail.

Weeks passed, and the July 15 execution date drew nearer. Knowing they would be hanged if they remained in jail, the six desperate men tried to escape for the third time on June 13. One of them was shot to death by a guard. Three were captured and hanged. The other two—Roa and Shader—got clean away.

From end to end of the country Roa and Shader were hunted. People read about them in the papers, and they were reported seen at widely different spots every day. The most credible reports indicated that they were on the way to Mexico, Roa's birthplace. Witnesses of two murders in attempted robberies of Arizona gas stations identified their pictures. The police did everything possible to catch up with them, but after three months they seemed to disappear altogether. (Continued on page four.)

"The Guilty Bystanders"

A Novel in Pictures by RUPERT HUGHES

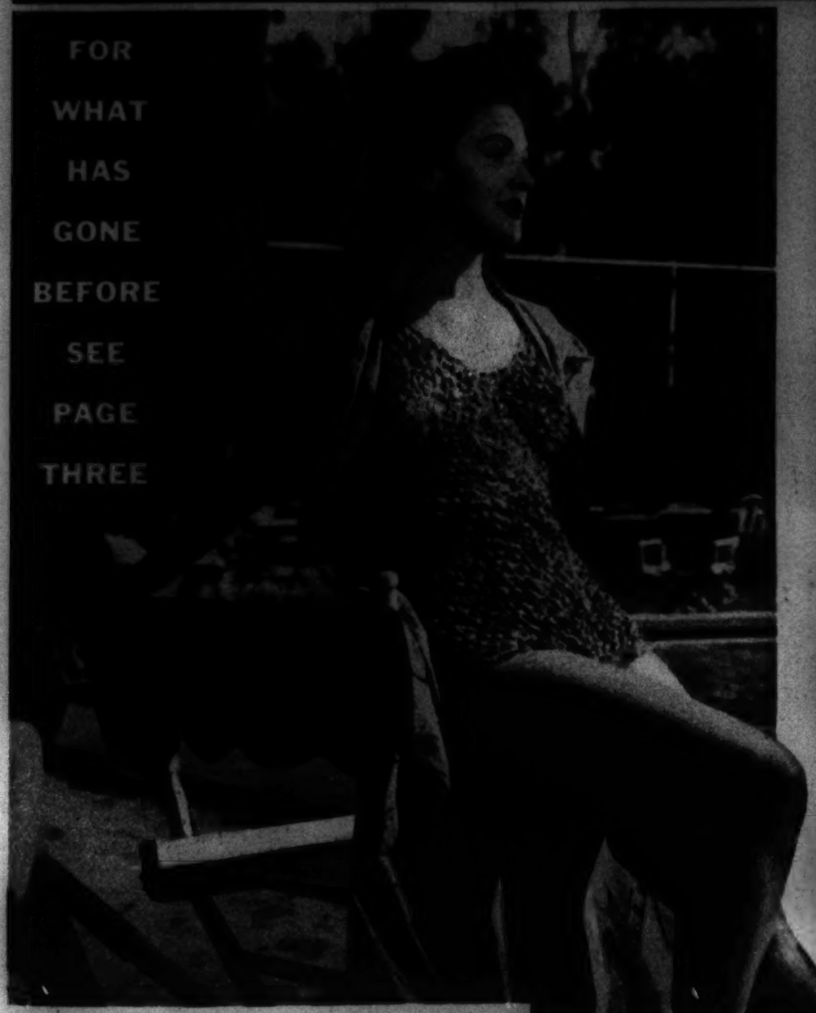
FOR WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE SEE PAGE THREE



1 Among innocent "guilty bystanders" at the murder of Martin Yorke, one of the hardest hit is Phoebe Lockwood. Item: An old photograph of Phoebe in revealing bathing suit is resurrected. "I look like something out of a nudist colony," groans Phoebe. "I'm hopelessly caught in the mess . . ."

2 ". . . . In any restaurant, any other public place, I'm stared at as if I were a Borgia. I'm human; but I've tried to keep decent, body and soul. Now everybody will call me a cheap little rat . . ."

3 "Phoebe," admits State's Attorney McKeel as he surveys accounts of her presence at the scene of the crime, "one thing is certain now. I must give up all hope of keeping you out of the case. Public opinion will demand that you appear—and talk . . ."

4 At last arrives the day when court convenes and Hugo Ryder is brought forward for arraignment.

5 Before the bar the opposing attorneys confer with the court—State's Attorney McKeel, at the left, ardent swordsman of justice; and Murray Bentle, criminal lawyer, sympathetic defender of humanity in distress.

6 Bentle, standing at Hugo's elbow, already has instructed his client to select two pleas. And so when the clerk asks, "How do you plead?" Ryder mumbles, "Not guilty, and not guilty by reason of insanity!"

7 In the courtroom following the hearing Phoebe warns Bentle: "If I'm called to the stand I'll turn your pretty fable into the flop of all time!" "Tsk! tsk!" chides Murray. "What a little prig we are! Maybe I'd better keep you off the stand altogether." "You'd better," Phoebe agrees. "If you can!"

8 Flocks of old members have resigned from Lakemeadow club, scene of the murder, a venerable place of beauty and of happiness. The place slides toward bankruptcy. Few come there any more, and among these gayety is hollow. Among those who still do dance there is . . .

9 Dick Bentle, with his new love, Doris Cade, in his arms and with fear in his heart—fear that he may lose this sister-in-law of Martin Yorke's, fear for life itself if Joe Creasy carries out his threats . . .

Pull the Trigger on CONSTIPATION and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. For a Free trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative-Senna with Syrup Pepsin, send your name and address on a penny postcard to Box C, Monticello, Ill.

Private Lives of Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

CHARLES BOYER

Dunne and Boyer—a Team Broken Up by War

Hollywood.

WHEN Adolf Hitler sent his mechanized legions into Poland the immediate effect out here in Hollywood was to break up the sensational new flicker team of Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, because Hitler set in motion a train of incidents that eventually was to clothe Boyer in a poilu uniform of the French army and send him up to the Maginot line, or at least engage him in propaganda work.

At a party the other night I was discussing Boyer with Irene Dunne. "I don't know of any one who so little reminds me of a soldier as Charles," said Irene. "He just isn't the type. He's charming, gracious, not at all aggressive. I just can't picture him killing other men." Her husband, Dr. Francis Griffin, objected: "That is the type of man who makes the finest soldier, my dear." Irene shook her head. "Yes, yes, I know what you mean, but it doesn't hold true with Charles. He just wasn't intended to be a soldier."

It is a trifle difficult, at that, to picture Boyer being aroused to the fury of a professional killer. He told me once that the only time he'd ever experienced deep resentment was in France when he was on the stage, and then his bitterness of feeling was caused by his continuous losses at roulette. "Year after year I planned to take a summer vacation," he explained, "but year after year I'd lose my year's salary playing chemin de fer or roulette, and so in the summer I would have to take a job with a touring theatrical company. To protect me from my own weakness I'd beg the company manager never to pay me off until we were about to leave the town in which we had played our engagement. Having made these elaborate precautions, however, I would then become so fevered that I'd beg the company manager to lend me money in advance so I could play roulette. He would turn me down, naturally, but then I would reproach him so fearfully for his niggardly behavior that he would finally let me have the money, and I would just as promptly lose it. Not only did I lose all of my money, but I lost my sleep, and the strain of staying up all night at a gaming table and smoking several hundred cigarets gave me a nervous stomach. I got so that I actually resented the audiences before whom we played, because they kept me from the gambling casinos."

For his own sake he gave up

gambling and only indulged his passion for it mildly while he was out here. I used to see him at the Clover club occasionally, a stack of chips before him at a roulette table. His favorite number was 17, and infrequently the ball spun into that pocket. His wife, Pat Paterson, used to watch him unobserved, and when he'd win she'd mosey over and ask him if he didn't think it was time to go home. "Just one more play, dear," he'd plead, proving that even a Boyer is a typical husband.

If he was unlucky at gambling, he also was unlucky in the foul blow dealt his career as a movie star. He was at the very peak of his success when the French army ordered him to take up arms. And it had not been an easy road to success, because when he first came to Hollywood, in 1931, to make a French version of "The Big House" for M-G-M, he made hardly any impression, principally because of his limited English vocabulary. He returned to France, studied diligently to learn English, and then returned again to launch a new career. He had just become enormously successful and had gone abroad with his wife and Norma Shearer to spend a vacation on the Riviera and make two French pictures when hell broke loose.

While her partner in "Love Affair" is under arms Irene Dunne continues to lead a very fruitful and happy life in southern California. It started back in 1929 when Irene was playing in Ziegfeld's "Showboat" at the Illinois theater in Chicago. Bill Le Baron and Joe Schnitzer went backstage and signed her to an RKO contract, and her first picture was the hugely successful "Cimarron."

IRENE DUNNE

In the nine years that have intervened Miss Dunne has become one of the top stars of her profession because she had the good sense and the good fortune to alter her approach. She arrived in Hollywood as a singer; she became one of the "big ten" stars of the industry by changing over to a light comedienne, and has progressed from one triumph to another. It was Director Leo McCarey, I think, who was most responsible for this transition, for his direction of "The Awful Truth" established her as one of the abler purveyors of domestic slapstick. Yet I fancy that the talent for comedy always had been present; in "Showboat" you will recall that she did a "truckin'" number that was elegant comedy, and there is a gleam in her eye that indicates the demure Kentuckian has a lively sense of humor.

In those words did Murray Bentle, brilliant young criminal lawyer, launch his defense of Hugo Ryder and his attack on those witnesses of a crime whom Rupert Hughes in creating this exciting novel has chosen to call "The Guilty Bystanders."

Bentle is the author's personification of those forces in society which operate to thwart justice by means of society's own humanitarian rules designed to protect the rights of all men. His client, Hugo Ryder, is not what is called the criminal type. He is a drink-loving man, neglectful of home and family, who under the influence of liquor murdered the man to whom his wife Edith had turned for sympathy. Hugo found Martin

Yorke and Edith Ryder together at a gay party at the Lakemeadow Country club. Before the party makers he killed Yorke, wounded Edith, and escaped, only to give himself up. On hand as a guest was Kirke McKeel, young district attorney. On hand also was Murray Bentle. And nearest eyewitness of the crime was the woman they both loved, Phoebe Lockwood.

The machinery of the murder trial starts rolling. In its path are many persons. Not only Hugo and Phoebe and Edith, but Hugo's parents and Martin Yorke's family—yes, and, somewhat on the sidelines, Dick Bentle, Murray's young brother.

Dick has been having a fling with a married woman, and, heedless of the consequences of Martin Yorke's mild affair with Edith Ryder, continues to see Peg Cressy. Until, that is, he finds a new love—Doris Cade. The fates must have smiled a twisted smile when they thought up that friendship, for Doris Cade is Martin Yorke's sister-in-law! Dick attempts to end his affair with Peg, only to be caught by Joe Cressy in a farewell embrace! A sordid fist fight ends with a threat against Dick, and Murray Bentle finds he has two worries—building a defense for a confessed killer and getting a harebrained kid brother out of a mess.

Startling Half-Head Tests Prove New Shampoo Glorifies Hair 4 Ways

ABOVE—Illustrates soap-washed side of head. Hair dulled by cloudy film.

Clearly Prove These 4 Amazing Advantages:

1 Reveals hair's hidden luster.

2 Leaves hair silkier, smoother.

3 Safeguards hair's elasticity.

4 Helps make permanent waving faster, safer.

No other shampoo tested beautified hair so thrillingly—yet left it so easy to handle. Proved safe for hair and scalp

DON'T wait another day to try this thrilling new shampoo discovery. Scientists have proved its glorifying results by one of the most conclusive tests anyone has ever dared to make on a shampoo. Many leading hair stylists endorse it. Like countless thousands of women, you'll thrill to see how it beautifies hair, perhaps more than you ever dreamed possible . . . And helps leave it easy to handle right after washing.

In unique half-head tests carefully supervised in our experimental beauty shop—women had one side of their hair washed with this sensational new Special Drene Shampoo, the other side with a fine soap. And in every case: (1) The new Special Drene-washed hair was far more lustrous and shining. (2) Felt smoother, and silkier. (3) Hair retained far more elasticity—so important for a more natural looking curl. (4) Took successful permanent waves faster. (With new Special Drene-washed hair, the operator could use a weaker waving solution—or less steaming time under the permanent wave machine.) New Special Drene's safety was conclusively proved. The hair and scalp of every woman remained in excellent condition.

Special Drene's revolutionary new detergent is not just a soap, not an oil. Yet changes in a flash to rich, mild lather. Washes away grease, dirt and loose dandruff with thrilling speed—without any scalp irritation. Most amazing, Special Drene does not leave drab, dulling film (bathtub ring) on hair as soaps do, nor the greasy, dust-catching film that oils do. Lemon or vinegar rinses are unnecessary. That's why so many leading beauty shops recommend this new special shampoo for dull, dry-looking hair!

Germany's Dive Bombers

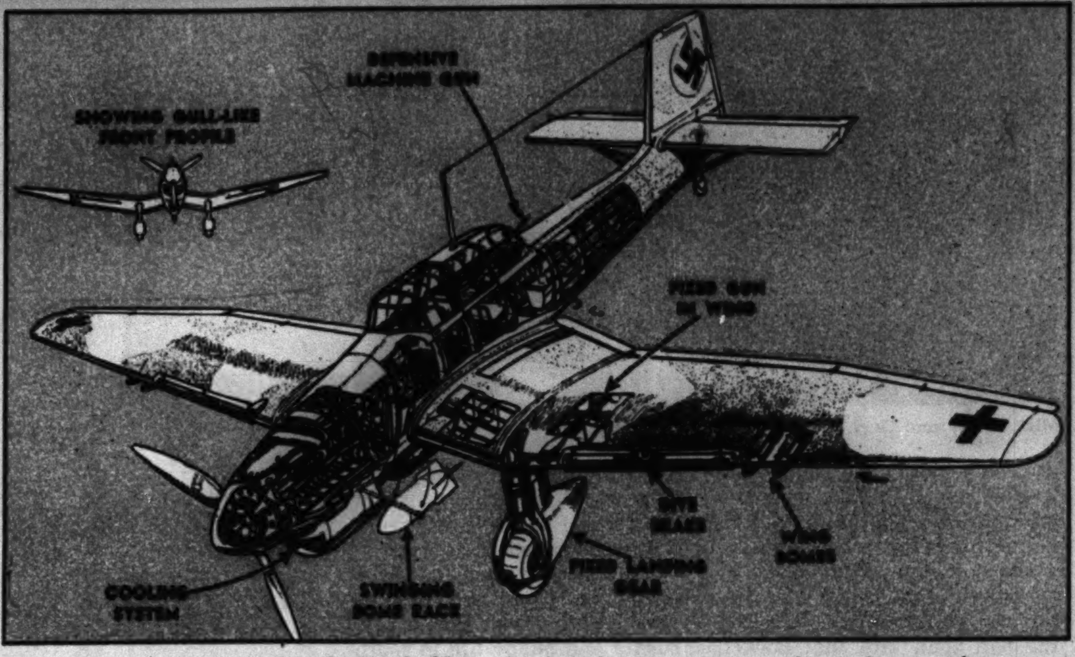
Planes That Attacked Poland

By WAYNE THOMIS

ALTHOUGH dive bombing has virtually been abandoned by air forces of the United States it is a popular technique in the Luftwaffe, or united air forces of the German reich. The Germans believe that this method of releasing bombs gives a greater degree of accuracy than high altitude precision bombing.

Consequently they have developed several types of dive bombing airplanes and have equipped a large number of squadrons with these machines. Most of these dive bomber squadrons saw action in Poland, where they were used against all manner of targets, including small moving targets, individual buildings, crossroads and junctions, pillboxes, tanks, ships, and even, occasionally, against entrenched forces.

The term "dive bombing" is almost self-explanatory. In ordinary horizontal precision bombing the crew of a plane release their projectiles while the machine is flying level. But in dive bombing the bombs are released while the airplane is in a vertical or near-vertical dive. Just as a single-seat fighting pilot aims his airplane in order to aim his fixed machine guns at a target, the dive bombing pilot aims his airplane at his target.



Detailed cut-away drawing of the Junkers Ju 87 dive bomber, showing structure and main features of armament.

As a matter of strict accuracy it should be explained that a dive bomber "unloads" its projectiles just as the pilot pulls out of his dive. This is necessary because bombs never travel in a straight line after their release. The dive bomber sights are set to compensate for this and it is not a difficult trick to learn the operation of the machine, according to German reports.

enormous stresses that wrack any aircraft that maneuvers at great speeds. Diving speeds of the latest bombers are limited by these devices to 200 miles an hour or thereabouts. This reduction in diving speeds also permits a much closer approach to the target than could be possible were the speed doubled.

The plane most widely used by the Germans for their dive bombing is the Junkers Stuka—or Ju 87. This is a monoplane with a gulled wing and fixed landing gear. It has places for a pilot and gunner and is powered by

Modern dive bombers are usually monoplanes of clean design. The speeds that these machines may attain in a dive are extremely high — somewhat over 400 miles an hour if the dive is prolonged. Recovery from dives in which such speeds are achieved has been found to be dangerous for pilots, and furthermore bomb aiming at these speeds is difficult.

Therefore most of the dive bombers are fitted with special types of flaps or air brakes to prevent development of great speeds and injury to pilot, to make aiming easier, and to relieve the airplane itself of the a variety of motors ranging from the Junkers Jumo 210 inverted V-12 liquid cooled motor of 600 horsepower, thru the Jumo 211, with injection carburation and 1,200 horsepower, to the Daimler-Benz inverted V-12 with 1,380 horsepower.

The drawing shows the construction of the machine and the placing of its bombs and defensive armament. The pilot controls the bomb releases, both for the four 110 pound bombs that are carried out under the wings and the 1,100 pound bomb that is carried beneath the fuselage immediately behind the motor. He also controls the two fixed machine guns or automatic cannon that are buried in the wings. The gunner seated facing the tail has one or two movable machine guns.

The airplane is constructed entirely of metal with metal skin and flush riveting used thruout. The cantilever wing has the usual Junkers "double-wing" along its trailing edge. The outer sections of this double-wing form the ailerons, the remainder camber-changing flaps that are used for take-off and for trimming the machine in flight. The tail has trimming tabs also on both elevators and rudder.

Diving brakes take the form of floating slats mounted just beneath the leading edge of the wing inside the ailerons. When not in use these slats are "feathered" by being turned edgewise to the wind-stream. In a dive they are turned at a 90 degree angle to the wing skin and effectively prevent diving speeds from rising beyond 210 m. p. h. even in a vertical descent.

In a recent issue of the Junkers company magazine it was stated, in a description of the Ju 87, that: "This means for limitation (the diving brakes) is not incorporated as a protection against structural failure, as requisite possibly in other designs of dive bomber, but solely in thoro appreciation of tactical requirements for effective employment of dive bombers. The Ju 87 can be pulled out of the fastest dive with full load and with the diving brakes off in safety."

The gross weight of the Ju 87 is 9,350 pounds. The span is 51 feet, length 42 feet. Terminal velocity speed without diving brakes is said to be 430 miles an hour. Maximum level speed 245 miles an hour. Range 600 miles. The earliest Ju 87s had full trousers covering the oleo legs of the undercarriage. Later models are spatted as shown in the drawing.

Because the 1,100 pound bomb is carried just behind the engine against the bottom of the fuselage provision had to be made so that the projectile, when released, would clear the radiator and propeller blades. The drawing shows the forked and hinged member that swings the released bomb clear of the airplane.

There are two other types of dive bombers that were developed simultaneously with the Ju 87, but both have been subordinated to the Junkers model. One of these is the Henschel 123. It is a biplane with a BMW radial motor of 960 horsepower and fixed undercarriage. It is 30 miles an hour slower than the Junkers and weighs 5,000 pounds less than the Ju 87, and has a tendency to dive faster, so that it is not liked by the pilots.

The other machine is the Blohm and Voss Ha 137. This is a single seater with the same gulled type of wing used in the Ju 87. The motor variations follow the Junkers machine also. The wing in this plane is built around a single tubular steel spar, part of which is used as the fuel tank. The Ha 137 is a small machine with a span of only 41 feet and length of 38 feet. Its top speed is said to be 211 miles an hour with the smallest Jumo motor and its range 500 miles.

THANKSGIVING—

Dinner Can Be a Feast Without Being an Extravagant Meal

By MARY MEADE

THANKSGIVING dinner can be a feast without being an extravagant meal which requires long, laborious hours in the kitchen beforehand. Many families who aren't having turkey will find that roast chicken or ribs of beef fill in beautifully on the Thanksgiving table.

Frozen vegetables save time and assure good quality. The salad can be a simple combination of fresh fruits or crisp vegetables, and the dessert may be pie, baked ahead of time, or ice cream, ordered from your dealer.

I think the inexperienced cook as well as the extremely busy woman and the woman who watches her food budget quite carefully will appreciate menus and recipes for Thanksgiving which, while bounteous and festive, still are easy to prepare and moderate in cost.

Here are menus for two very nice, inexpensive Thanksgiving dinners which a woman might easily prepare with no help at all, and a menu for a supper

The Last Man Hanged!

A year passed. The police were busy with other things, and the public forgot them. It was at this point on a hot July morning that Sergt. Walter Storms got wind of the long-lost Charles Shader.

Storms realized that it was probably another false alarm—the police had been tracking down large numbers of false alarms concerning both Roa and Shader since their escape, tho in decreasing numbers with succeeding months. However, he knew he must not leave any stone unturned in the search. And so, still wearing his spattered white overalls, Sergeant Storms hurried upstairs in his house to get his gun. It was an accepted idea with the police that such a desperate man as Shader would never be taken alive. Capture being death to him, he would rather shoot it out at any odds, and he was a fearless, deadly man with a gun.

With his own gun safe in his overalls pocket, Storms jumped into an automobile and dashed to the detective bureau to look at Shader's pictures and note his marks of identification. He could afford to make no mistake. Then he hastened to the tire shop where he had been told Shader was hanging out. It was near the corner of 59th and State streets. As he approached he saw a man carrying an armful of automobile parts into the shop. The man might have been Shader, but he couldn't be sure. However, the man had on a coat. In such hot weather a coat on such a man suggested just one thing to Storms—guns. The outlaw's favorite shoulder holster depends on a coat for concealment.

Storms stopped his car in front of the shop, got out, and began tinkering with his engine—thinking hard as to his best course of action. He was aware that it was probable suicide to walk into that shop holding a gun. Shader would not hesitate to shoot him, and Shader had plenty of opportunity for ambush in a shop with which he was familiar but which was strange to Storms. Also, if Shader were in there, Roa would likely be there, too—and what hope would a lone copper have against two such desperadoes in their own lair?

But Storms could not hesitate for long. Shader, if it were Shader, might get wise. He might leave by a rear door and get away. He might even start shooting.

Storms suddenly got a bright idea. He would wrap his gun, which was a .45-caliber revolver, in paper and carry it like a bundle of greasy tools. That way it would be concealed, and yet it would be in his hands ready for instant use. A piece of newspaper lay in the gutter. He grabbed it and folded it around his revolver in a rectangular shape so as to conceal the weapon's outline. He took a last look at his face in the car's mirror and saw to his satisfaction that it was dirty and spattered with paint. He glanced at his overalls, which were also a perfect disguise. Then he started walking into the shop, intending to act the part of a workman returning some faulty tools he had bought there—at least until he could get into a position to get the drop on Shader.

As Sergeant Storms remembered that crucial moment afterward, he had a string of terrifying thoughts: "What if Shader recognized my face? He had seen me at the Stockyards police station five years before. What if Roa was inside the shop with Shader? I couldn't hope to get the drop on both of them. What if Shader recognized my package as a gun?"

Storms reached the shop door. He walked in. The counter was at the rear of the room, but there was no one in the room. Then he heard male voices from the room in back.

Storms walked heavily across the floor to the counter. As he did so a man came out of the back room. It was a clerk.

"You sold me this wrench last winter," began Storms in an irritated tone. "It has given me trouble ever since I got it, and yesterday it broke completely. I demand a new wrench."

"Yes, sir, I'll see," said the clerk.

"You'll see? Whataya mean, you'll see? I said I demanded a new wrench, didn't I?"

As he talked Storms kept his eye on the rear door to see if Shader were going to enter. He felt pretty certain Shader was there, but his problem was how to draw him out. He must stall for time with the clerk and at the same time attract Shader's attention and curiosity. He determined to feign violent anger.

"I don't remember you buying no wrench here," he heard the clerk say.

"What's that, you dirty —? You know damned well you sold me this wrench. What kind of a joint is this? For two cents I'd kick the life out of you!"

The clerk, a mild little individual, stared at Storms in horror. He tried to calm him by offering to do anything he asked. But the wild-eyed man with the overalls and dirty face refused to be reasonable. He shook his fist under the clerk's nose and roared at him. The clerk didn't notice that he kept one eye on the rear door the whole time. All he knew was that his rage and the words he used seemed to grow in violence with every second.

At last, just as Storms was yelling at the clerk that he would tear down the whole store if he didn't get double his money back immediately, a thin young man with a boy's face and a rat's eyes sauntered into the room. He was smoking a cigaret and half smiling at the tantrum the strange customer was in. Storms took one quick glance at him and felt sure he was Shader. But he couldn't safely pull his gun on Shader at that distance. He wanted Shader within four feet. So he kept on shouting, raising his tirade to heights of frenzy that amazed even himself and probably would have won him a fat contract if a movie scout had been present.

Gradually the unsuspecting Shader drew closer, his expression one of wonder mixed with amusement. When he was only arm's length away Storms shook his package in the clerk's face with a fresh burst of abuse. Then he paused just long enough for the trembling man to say,

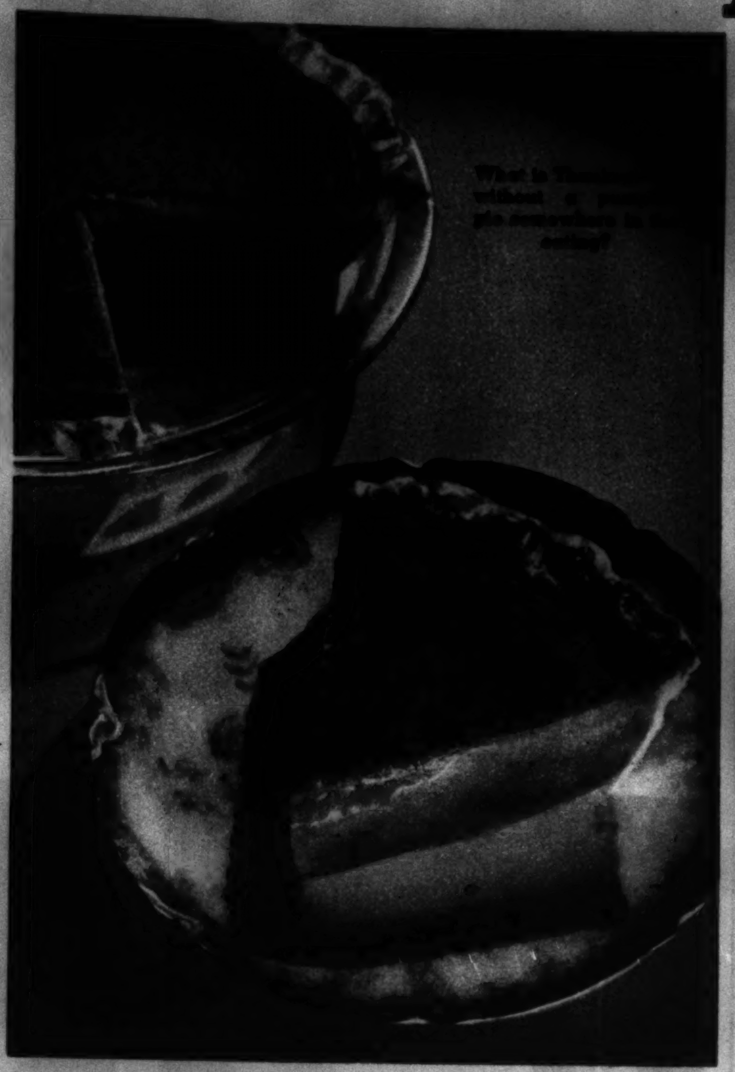
If pumpkin pie is served at the dinner, the supper dessert had best be fruit and cookies rather than more pie.

Chicken and beef require the same oven temperature, 325 degrees. Neither should be covered during cooking. The beef should be placed fat side up on a rack in the roaster. The chicken, stuffed and trussed, should be brushed over with melted butter, and the breast should be buttered several times during roasting so that it will not dry out. The chicken may be glazed by brushing it with a tart jelly during the last fifteen minutes in the oven. Cook the chicken about 25 minutes to the pound, the beef 18 to 20 minutes per pound if you like it rare, 30 minutes if well done.

Frozen chickens save time and work, and their quality as a rule is excellent. Standing beef ribs or a rolled rib roast would be a good choice of beef.



PUMPKIN PIE

2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup boiling water
1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
1 tall can evaporated milk (1 2/3 cups)
Pastry for one crust

Mix salt and spices, add boiling water, and blend. Beat eggs. Add sugar, spice mixture, pumpkin, and milk. Pour into an unbaked pie shell, bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes, then at 350 degrees until set, about 40 minutes.

A beautiful beef roast like this one might grace the Thanksgiving table.

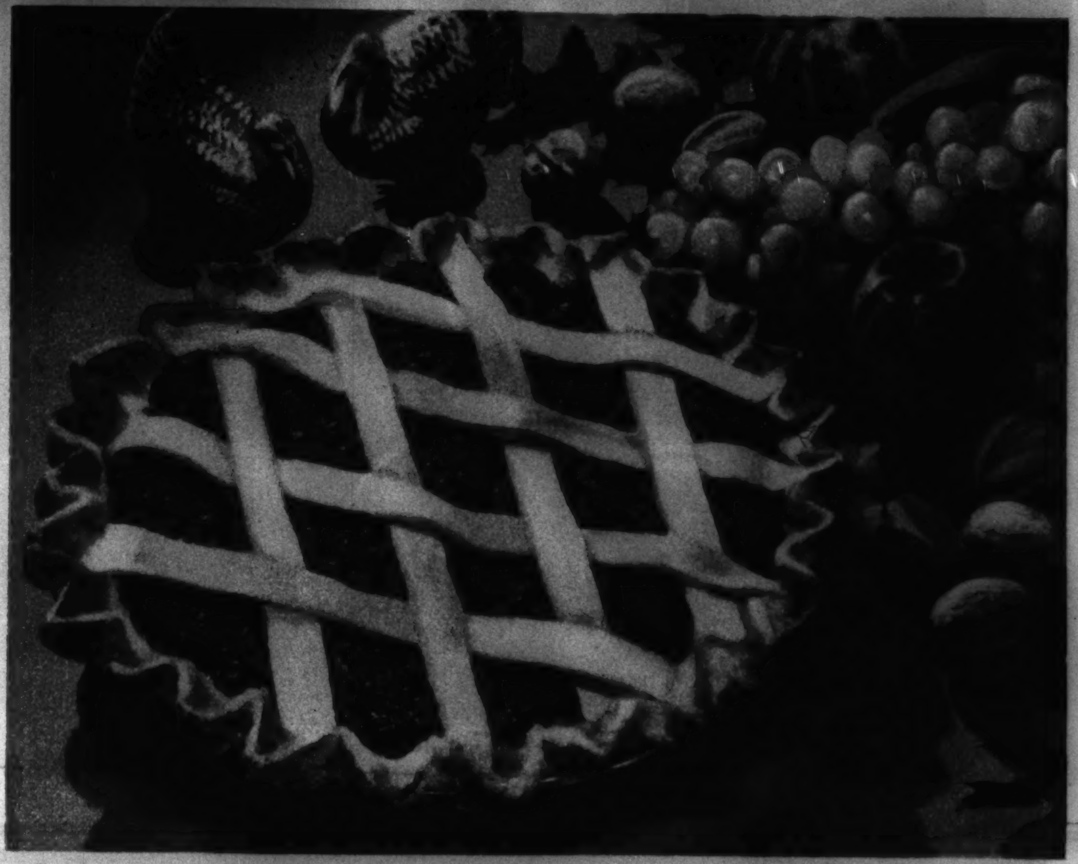
Pumpkin pie spices, ready mixed and packaged, may be used to flavor this pie. One and one-half teaspoonfuls of the mixed spice will be sufficient. Some pie makers like a dash of orange in pumpkin pie. Orange juice may be used instead of the boiling water, and a teaspoon of grated rind may be added to the mixture along with the spices. An extra egg will do the pie no harm when there are plenty of eggs in the refrigerator.

HOT WINE PUNCH
(Serves eight)

2 oranges
3 dozen whole cloves
Juice of 2 oranges
1/4 cup sugar
1 bottle California claret or burgundy

Stick cloves into the whole oranges and place in hot oven until slightly browned. Cut into eighths. Place orange juice, sugar, orange sections, and wine in double boiler over hot water and heat thoroly for 15 minutes. Serve in warmed glasses. Top each serving with a dash of nutmeg.

Hot wine punch may be served to guests who drop in during the afternoon, or for Thanksgiving supper.



And mince pie is indispensable. Canned and packaged mincemeat make it a quick and easy dessert.

Three-Gun Man Meets Brave Cop!

"Will you let me take a look at the wrench?"

"You bet I will!" screamed Storms.

At that instant the man in the dirty overalls became a policeman. Deftly feeling for the butt of his gun thru the newspaper, he suddenly tore the wrapping away and whirled on the young man with the cigaret, jabbing the revolver against his belly.

"Up with your hands, Shader! Up with 'em!"

The youth put his hands in the air.

"I ain't Shader," he said coolly.

"O, yes, you are," shouted Storms, "and keep 'em up!"

"I'm not Shader," he repeated, still calmly. "I'll prove to you I'm not."

With that he began to put his right hand into the left side of his coat.

"No, you don't!" said Storms. "Another move like that and you're dead, Shader! Your pocket's on the right side of your coat, not the left."

All this time Storms had to keep watching the rear door of the room for fear Roa might appear. He also had to think of the front door, because the canny Roa might sneak around to the front to surprise him. And yet he couldn't relax his attention from his prisoner for an instant.

With his gun still against his belly, Storms pulled the youth's left sleeve to the elbow. He soon found what he was looking for: a tattooed Indian's head on the inside of the arm near the elbow—a part of Shader's description at the identification bureau.

Storms then ordered the astounded clerk to search Shader and to take away his guns. But the clerk, who was holding his own hands in the air and was literally pale from fright, was too nervous to be of any assistance, and fled. Keeping Shader covered with his right hand, Storms started to seach him with his left, watching both doors carefully.

"Remember, Shader—one move and you're dead. And I'll get $300 extra compensation for killing you."

Shader evidently was impressed with the last statement, because he didn't move as Storms removed a .45 automatic from his shoulder holster—that being the "credential" Shader had reached for to prove he wasn't Shader. Then the policeman turned him around and, with his revolver pressed against the back of his neck at the top of the spine, forced him to the floor. From a holster on Shader's left hip he took a .45 army pistol. Later he found a third gun under the seat of Shader's truck.

• • •

For several minutes Storms stood guard over Shader in the shop, watching both front and rear doors, expecting every second to see Roa's arm with a pistol in it come around the corner. At last footsteps at the front door—slow steps. A man appeared. It was a Negro customer.

"Go call the police—quick!" shouted Storms.

The man didn't need urging.

After Shader was safely behind bars he admitted he had last seen Roa only fifteen minutes before Storms entered the tire shop. But Roa was never caught—and to this day he is the only one of Warden Klein's seven killers who is still at large. He may be in Chicago, or he may be in Mexico. But if he is in Storms' territory—it's Deputy Chief of Detectives Storms now—he probably doesn't feel too comfortable.

Shader was hanged shortly after he was captured, being the last man to die on the gallows in the state of Illinois. Before he went to his death he muttered to Walter Storms: "I just wisht I'd thought you were the law. You'd have been drilled quick!"

A Modern-Day Treasury of Ancient Scientific Lore

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

CHICAGO is a city of many nations. But of all the tongues and races represented among Chicago's 3,400,000 people, not one has a more gallant champion than has that rocky isle of the North Atlantic—Iceland.

Iceland's prime emissary in Chicago is a spirited man of seventy-two who has long since made his mark as an electrical inventor, a successful manufacturer, and a book collector of rare perspicacity. He is Chester H. Thordarson.

To meet him you must go to the factory district north of the Chicago river where, at 500 West Huron street, you will find a large and unpretentious brick structure known as the Thordarson Electric Manufacturing company's plant. More than fifteen hundred persons work there. In a spacious room near the middle of the factory and adjoining the general offices the chief's numerous inventions are arrayed. Models of a gigantic spark gap machine displayed at the St. Louis World's Fair and of other electrical marvels that can be fathomed only by the esoteric are there. Thordarson does not value them very highly, however. His real treasure he keeps in his private inner office which can be entered only by a small door.

Once in, you find yourself surrounded by steel framed bookcases containing a collection of about 25,000 rare books, a collection forty years in the making. It contains all books which strike Thordarson as most worth preserving because of their beauty, their clarity in answering his questions, their historical significance, and their technical excellence. Audubon's bird paintings are there in elephant folio, with large numbers of other books on bird and animal life, most of them illustrated. Plant life is extremely well represented both in illustration and description. So are subjects relating to health and popular medicine, and folk lore and humor have been awarded large attention by the well balanced mind of the Icelander.

But literary significance is also part of Thordarson's measure of worth, and the cornerstones of his collection might be said to be such volumes as Shakespeare's Poems (1640), Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler" (first edition, 1653), Thomas Wilson's "The Art of Rhetoric" (1585), Thomas Tusser's "Five Hundred Pointes of Good Husbandrie" (1580), Roger Ascham's "The Schole-Master" (1570), "The Great Herbal" (1526), Hugh Platt's "The Jewell House of Art and Nature" (1594), and Thomas Elyot's "The Castell of Health" (1541). Each one of these books is the historical starting point of a phase of Anglo-Saxon knowledge or philosophy.

Chester H. Thordarson at his desk in the book-lined office.

Before the last two or three thousand years almost all human beings on earth were forced to move about constantly in order to live. They were either hunters or herdsmen, knew little about the soil, and because they could not settle together they could not become civilized.

A general view of the cases containing Thordarson's valuable collection.

Then the art and science of cultivating the soil began to spread rapidly. Men were enabled to settle in towns and cities, to exchange ideas, to develop civilization. Thus the history of agriculture is the backbone of the story of civilized man.

With a clear appreciation of all this, Thordarson will explain to you the great significance of Thomas Tusser, who published in 1557 his work, "A Hundred Good Pointes of Husbandrie." It contains only 13 small pages, but each breathes the accumulated wisdom of centuries, and a farmer could profitably use them for a guide today. After 1570 the title of the new editions was changed to "Five Hundred Pointes of Good Husbandrie," and the text expanded a little. Thordarson owns the 1580 edition, probably the last one revised by the author's own hand. He will quote a few verses to illustrate Tusser's manner:

"Still crop upon crop many farmers do take
And reap little profit, for greediness' sake.

Good land that is severall, crops may have three,
In champion country it may not so be.

Some useth at first a good fallow to make,
To sow thereon barley, the better to take,

Next that to sow pease, and of that to sow wheat,
Then fallow again, or lie lay for thy neat.

Where barley ye sow after rye or else wheat,
If land be unlusty, the crop is not great:

So lose ye your cost, to your corsie and smart,
And land overburdened is clean out of heart."

How more eloquently could be explained the four-field system: Fallow, barley, peas, and wheat?

Other significant agricultural books in the Thordarson collection, and which played their part in stimulating the farmers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, include "God Speede the Plough," "Designe for Plentie by a Universal Planting of Fruit Trees," "The Schole of Skil," "The Spirituall Use of an Orchard," and "A New System of Agriculture, or a Plain, Easy, and Demonstrative Method of Speedily Growing Rich." The last-mentioned advocates the prevention of soil erosion by surrounding the darkest, richest earth with stone walls so that it won't be washed away, and carting it from river banks to higher, safer places.

"The Great Herbal," published and printed by Peter Treueris in 1526, rivals Shakespeare's Poems as the grand piece of Thordarson's whole collection. It is the father of all medical books, and his is the only first edition copy in America.

A sample of the wave of books on strictly practical subjects that came out in the centuries immediately after the invention of printing is G. Markham's (1623) "Countrey Contentments, or the English Housewife—containing the inward and outward vertues which ought to be in a compleate woman—as her skill in Physicke, Surgerie, Extraction of Oyles, ordering of great feasts, conceited secrets, distillations, perfumes, making cloth, their excellent uses in a family, brewing, etc."

Thomas Elyot's "The Castell of Health" is just one of Thordarson's remarkable early medical books which cover a multitude of methods of curing disease.

The treatment of illness by sympathy and by various mechanical and mathematical principles is discussed, as well as a system of public hygiene in which houses must be built at a distance from one another to prevent epidemics. Wars have repeatedly advanced medical research, and one of the earliest literary fruits in this field is in the collection: "A Most Excellent Method of Curing Wounds in the Head" (1588).

In exact sciences the Thordarson collection is less well stocked, but contains several thousand volumes. The first edition of "The Wellspring of Sciences" was published in 1562. It treats of the beginning of mathematics—arithmetic. This excellent textbook was so thoroly read that all the earlier copies have been worn out or lost. The British Museum possesses no copy dated earlier than 1574, yet Thordarson has a copy of the second edition dated 1564, the earliest copy known. After reading a little of it, a modern arithmetic book seems a very sketchy affair.

Thordarson naturally acquired the most exhaustive set of early works on magnetism and electricity that years of search could unearth, and one of the most remarkable items in his scientific section is a complete set of the "Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London" from its beginning in 1665 to the present day. As the centuries have gone by, every important scientific experiment, theory, or enlightenment in the world has been communicated to the Royal Society, so a study of its "transactions" raises the curtain on the complete evolution of modern science.

Thordarson's library has several hundred volumes on the alluring art of alchemy, one of which, dated 1639, describes a method of extracting pure gold from common soil without even "the use of an elixir." A book which sounds the keynote to modern science, however, is a remarkable philosophy of knowledge entitled "Physico-mechanical Experiments on Various Subjects," published in London in 1709. In it Thordarson has found the prophetic words: "The learned world is now almost generally convinced that instead of amusing themselves with vain hypotheses, which seem to differ little from romances, there is no other way of improving natural philosophy than by demonstrations and conclusions founded on experiments judiciously and accurately made."

In the realm of illustrated books on flora and fauna Thordarson's collection can hardly be surpassed in the world, for these color plate books of all ages are the object of his special interest and comprise the most voluminous part of his treasure. Among the works of Audubon is a large original painting, considered Audubon's greatest masterpiece in oils and perhaps the world's greatest bird painting. Altho it was painted especially for King George IV., a member of parliament advised the artist that it was "too good for any one." A copy now hangs in the Museum of Natural History in New York, and the original hangs in Thordarson's factory on the bank of the Chicago river.

The remainder of the Thordarson collection includes a large assortment of books about Iceland, with numerous maps and charts, some Icelandic wood carvings, books of folklore, ancient cook books, and a very revealing accumulation of humorous volumes of the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries. The guiding thought in the Thordarson library is "the development of a valid view of life." Thordarson knows that his creation of new machinery continues the work of the ages before him, but he craves to know much more than that about his place and part in the common cause of mankind.

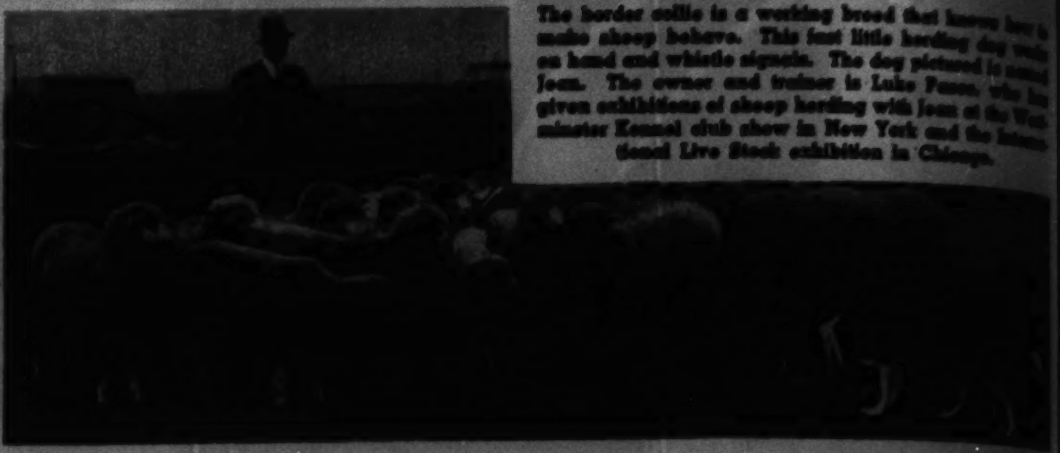
Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER



The border collie is a working breed that knows how to make sheep behave. This fast little herding dog works on hand and whistle signals. The dog pictured is named Jean. The owner and trainer is Luke Fauss, who has given exhibitions of sheep herding with Jean at the Westminster Kennel club show in New York and the International Live Stock exhibition in Chicago.

Distemper Is Dog's Worst Enemy

OF ALL the diseases that dogs may have in the course of their all too brief lives, distemper undoubtedly ranks as the one that owners fear the most. Caused by a disease producing organism so small that it can pass thru the pores of the finest filters, distemper and its serious complications present a problem to the dog owner that he cannot afford to ignore.

Puppies are especially susceptible to distemper. The trouble is that most owners do not recognize the seemingly harmless symptoms that it reveals. All too frequently the owner believes that the pet has worms and then he does about the worst thing he can do to the dog. He gives it a worm capsule or two, which may prove fatal.

If any puppy or rather young dog is listless, won't eat, or has a chill, there is only one sensible and economical thing to do: Take the animal to a veterinarian at once! It's sensible because only proper administration of distemper serum and other medical attention will help the puppy fight the infection, and it's cheap because the quicker you start to fight the infection the better chance you have of saving the pup. Home diagnosis and home doctoring often do more harm than good.

Owners sometimes report to us that their pets seem to have a "little cold." They add that apparently it's nothing serious, but what should they do? It's more than likely that the dog is coming down with distemper because coughing, infected eyes, and other symptoms may be present in distemper.

This pair of northern sled dogs, that live on the shore of Lake Kluane, Yukon Territory, carry small packs for their owner when on the trail in the summer time.

Any technical discussion of distemper and its many complications is outside the scope of a mere layman's ability or knowledge. Every dog owner should talk to his veterinarian about this disease, its symptoms, and how to prevent it by inoculation. But many a pup could be kept from distemper or the combination of bacterial infections commonly called distemper, and countless others could be saved if dog owners would remember even a layman's simple advice about watching for the danger signals of the disease.

Thousands of owners of young dogs rely on distemper vaccination to build up a defense against the disease in their pets. Although this treatment does not guarantee that the animal so treated never will develop distemper, the chances are that the pup will have immunity. It's a case of playing the percentages and they're much in the dog's favor. And if the pup should come down with the disease he's quite apt to have only a light case due to the protection given him by the treatment.

DOG NOTES

There are many erroneous beliefs about distemper. One is that if a dog dies of this disease in a home, any dog which comes into that home within a year also will contract the ailment. Veterinarians say, however, that distemper cannot survive in clean, warm rooms in a home.

A survey of 400 blind graduates of the Seeing Eye shows that 75 per cent of these men and women, who are guided wherever they go by the famous educated dogs, are either attending college, running a household, or employed in full-time jobs. Graduates of the Seeing Eye now using trained dogs are working successfully as lawyers, newspaper men, ministers, lecturers, social workers, musicians, teachers, farmers, librarians, and salesmen.

CURRIER AND IVES PRINTS

TO CURRIER and Ives must go the thanks of modern Americans for perhaps the most complete pictorial record of growing America between 1835 and 1907. When Nathaniel Currier was commissioned in 1840 to produce a half-page lithograph illustrating the burning of the steamship Lexington his firm received the break that was to make it famous as a producer of prints. Among the 6,700 lithographs published by the firm, which became Currier and Ives in 1857, are illustrations of almost every conceivable phase of the country's development, from the farm scene reproduced today to the Chicago fire. Original prints now command a high price and are recognized as both artistic and historical documents.

● On page one of today's Picture Section appears a full color reproduction of the Currier and Ives print "Home to Thanksgiving."

The print reproduced today, "Home to Thanksgiving," by George H. Durrie, is one of the most popular of Currier and Ives prints, having commanded a record price of $1,450 at a sale ten years ago. Currier and Ives prints were all in black and white, hand-colored after printing. Unlike engraving, lithography requires no cutting of the printing medium. A porous type of stone is used and the drawing made in greasy crayon. The stone is then watered. When ink is applied it is repelled by the wet surface and retained only by the greasy parts of the drawing. Prints are made by a press from this inked stone.

HOW TO TELL THE SITTERS

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1939, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.

The sprawlers. Showing three of the most virulent types of this species of sitter.

The fidgety man. Squirms in his chair, fans the air with his leg and does a lot of unnecessary scratching. Denotes what is known as a bundle of nerves.

The lap sitter. A sure sign of chronic cuteness. The kind of girl who says "Ess" for "Yes," and "lil" for "little." Considers a lap just something to be climbed onto.

The vain girl sitting pretty for the boys to admire and the girls to swoon over with envy.

You can tell an extrovert (or hyperthyroid if you're that medical) by his tendency to sit on everything that's not meant to be sat upon. Housewives see red when he comes in.

The timid man. Or maybe just shy. Sits on the edge of the chair ready to hide, or run, if necessary.

The slumper. Subject to self-pity and depression. Caused by the war news, the stock market, falling hair, or the wife being unreasonable.

An elderly girl sitting up straight and stiff as a poker betokens either outraged womanhood or hurt, slighted or shocked feelings.

The stylish stout selfish. Sits at the end of the row and is about as yielding as cement when some one has to struggle past her. Just stays spread out and won't even inhale to widen the passageway.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

The Choice of Film Is Important

WHAT FILM to use? is a question which every amateur photographer asks time and again and which becomes more difficult to answer with every new film that makes its appearance. The shelves of photo dealers are stocked with a bewildering array of different films, and unless you have a fair conception of what kind of film you need you are apt to pick up something that does not suit your requirements.

It's not just a matter of selecting a "good" film; practically all films on the market are good—for certain types of pnotography. The problem facing the amateur is to find the right kind of film for the type of picture he intends to take.

Many amateurs are inclined to use the fastest film available. This is a grave mistake unless they plan to shoot fast action under adverse light conditions, or specialize in "candid" photography in poorly lighted interiors. Films have become so fast that under normal light conditions the fastest types easily lead to overexposure or force you to use shutter speeds which are not available on cheaper cameras.

But this is only one of the reasons for not using faster films than the job requires. The other is that fast films produce a grainier image than films of medium or slow speeds. And this in turn leads to a final print of relatively poor quality. If you use a miniature or small-sized hand camera the question of grain is of great importance to you whenever you plan to enlarge your pictures. Enlarging magnifies the grain in your negative and may prevent you from getting presentable enlargements. Therefore the users of small cameras should give preference to films of fine or medium grain.

Besides speed and grain you must consider the color rendition of the film you use. Films for general use fall into the two great classes of orthochromatic and panchromatic emulsions. Orthochromatic films are not sensitive to red (that's why they can be developed in red light), and consequently they don't record color values as the eye sees them. Red—for instance, the red of lips—appears black in a picture taken on orthochromatic film.

Panchromatic films, on the other hand, give a more nearly correct color balance. "Pan" means "all," and panchromatic films are sensitive to all colors. They must be processed in complete darkness, because light of any color would be recorded on the film. This is a great drawback from the point of view of the amateur who would like to inspect his film during development.

In many types of photography it is not essential to get an absolutely true rendition of color values. In these cases it is preferable to use orthochromatic film, because you can develop it in red safelight, because it has finer grain than most panchromatic films, and because it is cheaper.

If you find that you must have relatively great speed or true colors, use a panchromatic film, but get as slow a film as the job will bear. Always remember that increased speed is usually coupled with increasing graininess.

A further consideration is the amount of contrast a film gives. Some films are capable of giving a long range of gray tones leading from absolute white to deep black. These are called soft, while others with a short range of tones are contrasty.

Every film has a tendency to give a certain type of contrast, but the ultimate result—as well as the amount of grain in the picture—is greatly influenced by the method of developing the film. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for developing until you have become completely familiar with a given film. After that you can try for new effects by varying exposure time and development.

Find out the speed rating of the film you are using. If you use a photoelectric exposure meter, follow the latest film speed ratings published by the manufacturer of the meter. If you don't use a meter, watch the exposure charts which come with the film.

Generally speaking, select your film with a definite purpose in mind. No single film is perfectly adapted to all photographic requirements. If you feel that it is too difficult for you to work with several types of film at the same time, ask your dealer to recommend to you a film of medium speed and fine grain. Then stick to this one film for all kinds of pictures until you have learned what it can and what it cannot do.

"Guiding Eyes," by Dale Rooks of Muskegon, Mich., won the first prize of $500 in the recent Popular Photography picture contest. Rooks got the prize because he could capture the genuine expression of deep concentration on a great number of faces without a single disturbing element, and because of his excellent lighting technique. He used one flash bulb above the group and another in the flash gun attached to his camera.

(Photos courtesy Popular Photography.)

Awarded a prize for its humorous note, this picture earned recognition for Phil Pryor of Council Bluffs, Ia., because he was alert enough to make an unusual shot when the opportunity offered itself. Both the bride and the yawn are real. The picture, of good photographic quality, was made with a 35-mm. camera, lighting furnished by two photofloods in reflectors.

"Cathedral Steps," by Joseph J. Steinmetz of Philadelphia, Pa., was awarded second prize for its excellent composition, unusual depth, and its atmosphere. Steinmetz stopped his lens to f:16 and used a medium yellow filter. The smoke in the background is incense the Guatemalan Indians are burning on the steps of El Calvario in Chichicastenango.

QUESTIONS

Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered here. No individual replies, other than those published, can be promised.

Please give the f system equivalents for U. S. aperture numbers.—E. D. M.

ANSWER: The following list contains those U. S. numbers which are most generally used, together with their f system equivalents:

U. S.	1	2	4	8	16	32	64	128
f	4	5.6	8	11	16	22	32	45

What sort of negative is best adapted to enlarging? That is, should it be dense, medium, or thin?—B. L.

ANSWER: Most authorities consider the best type to be a negative which is of slightly less than normal density. With careful exposure and long development a good enlargement can be made from a thin negative also. Dense negatives generally are considered better for the making of contact prints, since they tend to lose some degree of detail in the highlights. Also, a dense negative is either overdeveloped or overexposed, or both, which causes an increase in grain size. And grain is to be kept at a minimum when enlargements are to be made.

Taking Sting Out of Wasp Waists

How's your waistline, my pretty maid? For the hourglass gown try the new hourglass treatment which makes inches vanish.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

GOING—going—gone!

If charts could talk that's what they'd shout about the unwanted inches and ounces of flesh that surround the waistlines of women who have discovered the brand new, marvelously efficient "hourglass" treatment designed by one of the truly great beauty specialists! We've seen the charts, we've seen the changes effected in the silhouette, we've done some waistline remodeling on our own frame. And we think that the woman who wants a slimmer torso—whether or not she means to encase it in a wasp-waist gown—should discover how swiftly it now can be achieved.

The treatment combines exercise, massage, and special breathing maneuvers simultaneously. First you'll probably have to limber up a bit. That's easy. You work out under the watchful eyes of the salon's exercise director. The treatment itself is given on a massage table, but if you think it's just lying back and letting the masseuse do all the work you're mistaken. This massage is given with certain muscles contracted.

The extra inches, the fatty spots like the pads on the upper thighs, the spare tire, the little roll that mars your bust line—these are quickly, quickly reduced. You can take flesh off the upper arms, the calves, and even the ankles by this same treatment.

It's the treatment for the woman who wants to change her measurements quickly, and, unlike most methods which make a claim to speed, this method can make an unassailable claim to safety!

The treatments must, at least in the beginning, be taken close together. You'll see measurements change almost immediately—and you'll see posture and pep improved.

Exercise, massage, and breathing maneuvers combine in the new kind of reducing treatment to change measurements swiftly and safely.

A mild workout on the bars limbers you up before the treatment, which remodels waist, bust, and hip line.

Hollywood Private Lives

you are struck by her sedateness. She is gracious but reserved. At a dinner table, if she's not seated next to her husband, she's forever looking down the table at him to see if he is eating his food and having a good time. Yet underneath this exterior is a gay and spirited girl with a sense of humor that ocasionally bubbles to the top, and you always get the impression that she's having a hard time restraining the lighter side. I may be wrong, of course, but that's the impression I'm always conscious of when I see her.

She and Dr. Griffin, her husband, get along splendidly. He idolizes her and watches out for her zealously. It was he who decided that she should take up golf as a form of exercise, and you see the two of them often on a Sunday afternoon playing at the Bel-Air course. Her golf and her adopted youngster are her chief interests away from the studio.

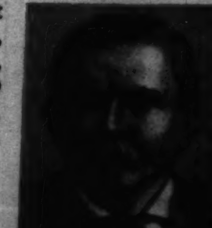
When she arrived out here she may have been naive about business matters, but in nine years she has become as able a business woman as there is in this community. It is told that in her last picture, "When Tomorrow Comes," at Universal, she was very anxious to finish in time to get a month's vacation. Having worked previously with Director John Stahl, who megaphoned "Magnificent Obsession," she knew his penchant for dawdling, and she told him frankly that she didn't believe he'd finish the picture in the allotted time. To force him to work faster, she demanded that the contract carry a heavy cash penalty for each day over the shooting schedule. The legend is that the penalty ran over $100,000.

Because every young actor in town wants to play in a picture with her, to capitalize on her prestige, Miss Dunne's agents also insist that in such an event part of the young actor's contract be awarded to her. It is a hard bargain, but stars work hard to get to the top, and, once up there, they demand protection. Miss Dunne actually doesn't want part of any young actor's contracts; she would much prefer that the youngsters be cast in some other star's picture. She didn't object to Robert Taylor in "Magnificent Obsession," because she'd seen him in "Society Doctor" and knew that he had something on the ball. She didn't object to Cary Grant in "The Awful Truth." She was confident of his skill.

She's traveled a long way from Louisville, Ky., has Irene Dunne, and no star out here has traveled so charmingly.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the [illegible] of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being [illegible] in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of [illegible] speeches is important both historically and politically. [illegible] boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful [illegible] Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying [illegible] style. This is the twenty-fourth of the series.



G. G. VEST

IN THE Circuit court at Warrensburg, Mo., in October, 1870, a suit for $50 damages was heard. The case had grown out of the killing of a farmer's dog, and soon would have been forgotten but for the closing plea of one of the attorneys for the plaintiff. This lawyer was George Graham Vest, who later, from 1879 to 1903, served Missouri in the United States senate. Following is his famous tribute to the dog, as delivered in a Missouri courtroom sixty-nine years ago:

"Gentlemen of the jury:

"The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps, when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads.

"The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and poverty, in health and sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey thru the heavens.

"If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him, to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

This famous plea for a [illegible] has become something of a classic because of one thing—its truthfulness. Its author knew and used most of the tricks of oratory. He lapsed into trite phraseology at times, bordered on sentimentality at others. But because he spoke what all men know to be true, and because his cause, unimportant as it might have seemed at the time, was sincere, his speech had great effect. Whatever the validity of the defendant's plea, this speech offered a powerful argument in opposition because it voiced sentiments that nearly every man has felt at some time.

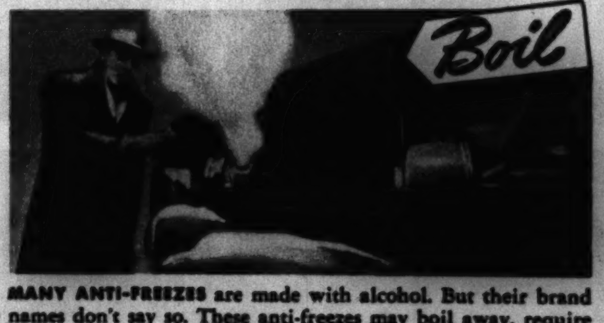
THERE'S NO OTHER product like "Prestone" anti-freeze. It contains NO alcohol . . . NO glycerine. It's made with highly refined and purified ethylene glycol. But it took far more than ethylene glycol to make "Prestone" brand anti-freeze the world's finest winter protection!

In "Prestone" anti-freeze, ethylene glycol is fortified with exclusive ingredients developed after years of laboratory research and millions of miles of the toughest test driving an anti-freeze can undergo. These ingredients curb leaking, foaming, rust-clogging. It takes years of experience to make a great anti-freeze. Beware of new and untried preparations.

And think twice before you spend a dollar for a gallon of alcohol base anti-freeze. (Regardless of brand name dollar-a-gallon anti-freezes usually contain alcohol.) Alcohol boils away ...has to be replaced. "Prestone" anti-freeze will not boil away. One filling lasts all winter long. Guaranteed in writing.

Remember: "Prestone" anti-freeze has proved itself in more cars than any other brand of anti-freeze ever made. See your dealer today.



MANY ANTI-FREEZES are made with alcohol. But their brand names don't say so. These anti-freezes may boil away, require replacing. "Prestone" anti-freeze is not made with alcohol—does not boil off or evaporate.

"PRESTONE" ANTI-FREEZE protects your car from rust-clogging. It cannot harm metal or rubber in your cooling system. There's no danger from fumes... no fire hazard. Absolutely odorless!

AROUND THE TOWN WITH VIRGINIA ROUNDS

Eyes look up when a smoker pulls out a package of Virginia Rounds. Minds think, "Here is an individual—one who chooses for himself—a person of taste and the will to enjoy it." For Virginia Rounds are as different as straight Virginia tobaccos can make them. Exclusively corn-tipped for sensitive lips; or plain ends. Next time, say Virginia Rounds."

HOW TO CLEANSE AND SOOTHE

TIRED STRAINED* EYES

Why suffer from burning, smarting eyes? Murine brings quick, amazing relief. A drop in each eye night and morning—that's the modern way to cleanse and soothe your eyes. Murine is alkaline—its six extra ingredients completely wash away irritation and strain*. Get Murine from your druggist today.

*Strained eyes due to driving, sun glare, dust, swimming, close work, movies, late hours. Murine will not correct eye deficiencies. For such deficiencies, see a competent professional at once.

MURINE FOR YOUR EYES

THE RIGHT KIND OF BEGINNING, MOTHER, gives best results! So thousands of children are given cod liver oil. Many doctors say nothing takes its place in helping children build strong bones and good teeth. Also in helping adults recuperate after illness. Now there is a BETTER WAY TO GIVE COD LIVER OIL . . . SCOTT'S EMULSION!

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes into the intestines.

3—Easy to take—Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Easy to take and retain by children and adults.

4—Economical—Scott's Emulsion is an economical way to obtain the Vitamins A and D so necessary to strong bones and sound teeth.

"RAGS, I DON'T BLAME YOU—This Sanka Coffee tastes g-r-and!" (Note: The Council on Foods of the American Medical Association says: "Sanka Coffee is free from caffein affect and can be used when other coffee has been forbidden.")

KNIT ONE, PURL TWO . . . Z-Z-Z-Z. What wouldn't some people give to be able to doze off as easily as Grandma . . . particularly those kept awake by caffein in coffee! No reason why you shouldn't enjoy both good coffee and sound sleep. Just switch to Sanka Coffee. It's 97% caffein-free. Yet it's REAL coffee—all coffee. Only the sleep-disturbing caffein is removed. The flavor stays in! Get Sanka Coffee at your grocer's tomorrow . . . "drip" or "regular" grind.

DON'T GIVE YOUR CHILD
a "Bargain" Remedy You Don't Know All About

Ask Your Doctor before giving your child any remedy you aren't sure of. No family need take this chance today.

Wait. Think first. Are you absolutely sure you should give a single dose of that drug to your child? Internally, remember. You don't know anything about it, do you? It was sold, you recall, as "something just as good" and it cost you, perhaps, a few pennies less.

A very dear purchase it could be! For your own peace of mind alone, give no home remedy you're not quite certain about without getting your own doctor's opinion. And never go against it.

Even in the case of the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, ask your doctor what he approves. And when he says "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia", see that you get exactly that by asking expressly for "Phillips'" when you buy . . . never ask for just "milk of magnesia".

If your child prefers Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets scarcely larger than an aspirin tablet that children chew like candy, give it this way. For each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs only 25c at your drugstore.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA

"It's an Inside Job" Says: STAN. LAUREL of "LAUREL and HARDY"

Featured in the HAL ROACH production, "A CHUMP AT OXFORD"

You'll say Stan was mighty generous to offer half of that delicious Crunch Bar. It's a sensation! And when you taste that wonderful "Crunchy" flavor inside, you'll understand why Stan looked that way when Oliver got it all. Set yourself and the folks up to this new chocolate hit. Only 5¢ at your favorite candy stand.
